BIGAMIST BEAT WIFE TO DEATH, AUTOPSY SHOWS

Will Re-enact Crime at Inquest Today.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Platteville, Wis., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The head of Mrs. Hattie Hales Coffey, 33 year old wife of William N. Coffey, bond salesman and church worker, found late today in a grave in Ritter's woods, tonight revealed injuries that may wreck Coffey's story of killing her accidentally.

An examination conducted by Dr. Carl H. Andrew disclosed that a piece of skull near the left temple had been driven clear into the brain, leaving a hole in the bone. Other cuts, bruises and scars about the right side and front of the face were also revealed, lending strength to the theory that Coffey struck many blows in the attack on the woman whom he married in a bigamous ceremony.

Uncover Eight Graves.

The head was last of the thirteen pieces of the woman's body found in eight different graves in Ritter's woods by more than a score of diggers who worked throughout the day under the direction of Coffey.

Coffey in his confession declared he picked up a ball bat that his wife had thrown at him while they were camping in a tent on Sandy Hook, on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi river, and attempted to throw it out of the tent opening, but in so doing struck Mrs. Coffey in the head, killing her instantly. He hit her only once, Coffey maintains, but then carried the body in his car two days, finally dismembering it with a knife and burying it in Ritter's woods on Oct. 11 last.

The recovery of the head late this afternoon was the reward of more than a month's search for the woman who married Coffey last September and disappeared a month later.

Coffey Directs Diggers.

Coffey directed and watched the disinterment, his face unmoved as the parts of his bride's body were removed. He even mounted himself on the bumper of an automobile, that the idle morbidly curious might get a better look at him.

As the day wore on, however, and more pieces of his knife or ax craft came to light, he weakened and neared collapse. He refused to eat his lunch at noon, and had to be supported by two men as he was walked through the woods this afternoon.

There was little business transacted today in Platteville and about two thousand people went to Ritters woods to see a sight that sickened and sent hundreds of them away. But the others enjoyed it and they thronged and yelled about the diggers and climbed trees to obtain a better view.

Will Reenact Crime.

Coffey will be taken to Sandy Hook, just across from Dubuque, where he says he took his bride's life, there to reenact tomorrow the tragedy to its last detail. Mrs. Anna Holdridge of Rockford, the slain woman's sister, will be called to identify the body, the inquest will be concluded and the decision made as to whether Wisconsin or Iowa will get the man to try for murder.

Coffey prefers Wisconsin, for life imprisonment is the maximum punishment here, but his stories of the slaying cause Iowa officials to suspect the killing was done in that state, where murder is punished by hanging.

Rushed to Scene.

The first part of the woman's body was found last night. Upon hearing of this, Coffey, who was held in Mauston, was rushed here by Sheriff Wright of Juneau county, Wisconsin, and Sheriff Kennedy of Dubuque. The party this morning drove to Ritters woods.

Coffey then was ordered to direct the movements of the score of diggers, and he pointed to a strip of land along a fence which he said contained three killing places.

An hour later another grave was uncovered 20 feet away, and discovery of the third grave soon followed.

That completed the morning's work. Late in the afternoon, after a lengthy questioning of Coffey, Sheriff Wright announced that the prisoner had admitted the head was buried in the woods.

Clear Off Snow.

Coffey had the snow cleared from a wagon lane, found a stone marker, stepped off thirty yards to a tree at right angles, turned right again fourteen feet and announced the head was buried there. Diggers failed to find it. In the meantime, another group of diggers uncovered more fragments in another grave.

Coffey then was started on a march throughout the woods. Finally the diggers found a piece of ground and broke it the head.

Tells $15,000,000 Plans for Chicago Opera

DETAILS GIVEN OUT BY INSULL AT GALA NIGHT

With New Theater on Market Street.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Take a trip over to the space bounded by Madison, Market, and Washington streets and the river. Draw a mental picture of a building that will contain an opera house the size of the Auditorium. Picture Market street—widest street in town at that point—converted into a continuation of Wacker drive, and round about the automobiles, the crowds, the general excitement that attends opera performances at the Auditorium now.

That, on the authority of Samuel Insull, is what Chicago is going to have, conditioned only on Chicago's being willing to pay part of the cost. But it will not happen for a year or so yet.

Talks to Opera Guarantors.

Mr. Insull made his annual speech to the guarantors of the Civic Opera company and the Friends of Opera during the gala performance at the Auditorium last night. Before he had finished he had promised that and some other things as well. Among them, he told of the coming opera house with its stage equipped in the most modern fashion, a main floor with 50 per cent more seats than are in the Auditorium, a third less boxes—there was a gasp among the customary boxholders at this—also a smaller theater in the same building for the presentation of intimate operas and concerts, and, finally, surmounting all, a huge office building the rents from which will have an important share in paying the expenses of the opera company.

This promise came toward the end of his speech.

Values Dramatic Suspense.

Mr. Insull has evidently been studying his operas and how they are put together. He has learned the values of climax and dramatic suspense. Up to that time he had talked of how good the attendance had been, how meritorious the performances, how expenses had gone hand in hand with merit, and, incidentally, that the guarantors would be assessed 80 per cent this season, making an average of 75 per cent for the first five years of the Civic Opera company's existence. He told also that a new five years' guaranty had been raised on a firmer financial foundation than the first.

It was not entirely news out of a clear sky. Only a few weeks ago Oscar Hewitt forecast in the columns of THE TRIBUNE a plan for a new opera house at just this location. In general Mr. Insull followed Mr. Hewitt's outline with much accuracy.

To Cost About $15,000,000.

What he added was to tell how it will be paid for, and that is an incident of between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000.

First of all, the venerated Auditorium, soaked in the memories of thirty-seven years of the finest music in the world, must sooner or later be given up. "Our present lease of this house ends next September," Mr. Insull said. "We can get a renewal of the lease for a few years. This block of buildings ultimately will be torn down, and we are faced with the absolute necessity of moving if we want to preserve our organization."

Mr. Insull explained that the new Market street situation is the most desirable in the city from the point of view of transportation. There are two street car lines flanking it, the elevated goes near by, the Union and Northwestern stations just across the river, and boulevards offering easy automobile access.

Looks for Impressive Effect.

"It is the only thoroughfare in the city wide enough for a plaza, or square, near the center of business and transportation, comparable with European plazas," he said.

"It cannot be purely monumental," he added. "It must be commercial, not only self supporting, but profitable." Hence the office building around and above the two theaters, "suitable," he said, "to serve its part in the enlargement of the business center of the city, which we contemplate it is likely to bring about."

If you have absorbed this much, you are ready to learn that Mr. Insull and his associates have even now made arrangements for paying for at least part of this $15,000,000 project.

"Probably about half the amount

STUDENT ENDS HIS LIFE ON I. C. RAILWAY TRACK

The decapitated body of Frank Forgy, 21 years old, who lived at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. hotel and was a student at La Salle Extension university, was found early this morning on the Illinois Central tracks at 47th street. A note found with the body indicated he had committed suicide and asked that an uncle, W. A. Forgy, 4706 North Central Park avenue, be told.

Young Forgy was a son of W. O. Forgy, Crescent, Ia., and on the envelope containing the note was a direction to forward his possessions to his father. The note read: "It is my wish that W. O. Forgy take charge of all my property and dispose of it as he wishes."

Forgy had been employed as a bookkeeper and city salesman by L. E. Myers & Co., contractors.

Treasury Gets $50 Bond for "Conscience" Money

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A $50 Liberty bond was received at the treasury today from a conscience stricken citizen.

"I was a party touring Europe a few years ago," said a letter accompanying the bond, "and I fear the party in charge did not declare everything. Will enclose this bond. One who wishes to obey our national laws."

Model Slain; Torn Photo of Actor Near By

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Eighteen hours after the body of Miss Marion Hunt, a beautiful model, just a few months short of 21 years of age, was found with a bullet wound in her head, lying on the doorstep of her sister's home in Queens Village, detectives were unable to say whether the girl had been murdered or had committed suicide.

A .22 caliber revolver with five unexploded cartridges and one spent shell, was lying about three feet from her head. By her side were the torn fragments of a photograph of Harry Richman, proprietor of the Club Richman and a member of the cast of George White's Scandals.

The girl's body was found shortly before 8 a. m. by Robert Callahan of Jamaica, as he passed on his way to work. A milkman, who delivered milk at the house at 2 a. m., said the body was not there when he left the milk bottles.

Frequented Night Clubs.

Friends of the girl said that of late she had been a frequent visitor at night clubs and her sister, Mrs. Paul Schwefel, with whom she lived until last Saturday, said that when she had been reprimanded for staying out late at nights, Marion had replied.

"I'm going to have a good time while I am young."

While twenty-five detectives who worked on the case are inclined to believe the girl committed suicide, officials at the morgue said that they were unable to discover any powder stains on the forehead. The position in which the body was found, reclining on the second step of the porch, indicated that she may have met her death at some other place and her body brought there in an automobile.

Bought Gun in Philadelphia.

Last Saturday morning Miss Hunt left her sister's home, taking with her some of her best clothing, and went to the home of a girl friend in Harlem. This friend said that on Saturday night Marion went to visit friends in Philadelphia and returned the following day. She brought back with her the revolver which was later found by her body and told her chum that she had bought it in Philadelphia to protect herself.

Mrs. Schwefel told detectives that some months ago Marion had swallowed some bichloride of mercury, but that she had taken the poison by mistake.

Richman, whose torn picture was found near the girl's body, said that as far as he knew he had never seen her. He explained that at Christmas thousands of his photographs had been given out at his night club.

PORTUGESE PAL SHOT BY GANG GUNMAN IN WAR

A renewal of the gang wars on the west side, dormant for several months, was seen by the police last night in the shooting of Sam Kaplan, 710 West 14th street.

Kaplan, who was a close friend of the notorious gangster, Jules Portugese, who was slain while on bond in a robbery case, was standing at Maxwell and Newberry streets when one of five men in an automobile fired at him with a shotgun. Several slugs grazed his head, but at the county hospital it was said his injuries were not serious.

Portugese was supposedly killed by Big Louis Smith, another tough. Smith was killed a little later, and the police theory is that friends of the slain man blamed Kaplan for his death and are trying to add him to the list of dead.

TAKE PICTURES OF PATRONS AS CLUB IS RAIDED

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—"Vive la France! This is a hell of a country," was the greeting given eight prohibition agents by one of the 100 or more fashionably dressed women in "La Basque," when that sumptuously furnished three story night club and cabaret was raided early today.

The agents herded the 200 men and women patrons into one end of the dining room on the second floor and took flashlight photographs of them. The pictures will be used as proof that the cabaret was open.

Fifty roadhouses in the New York district were served with padlock notices today.

COAL AND BLOW ON HEAD ROUT GIRL'S ANNOYER

Miss Louise Townsend, 20 years old, was carrying a bucket of coal up the back stairs of her home at 1208 Wrightwood avenue last night when a man seized her. She screamed and the man tightened his hold. Then Miss Townsend struck him with a flashlight and stunned him. As he staggered down the steps she poured the bucket of coal on him. He didn't stop.

Baby Nursed by Mother Isn't Destitute, Court Rules

Falls City, Neb., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Pleading that a baby cannot be classed as "destitute" when it receives its food supply from its mother's breast, John Mullen, Falls City attorney, secured the release at Holton, Kas., of Leonard Ege, charged with failure to support his child.

John D. Hits W&LE Bears for Millions

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller Sr., 88 years old, was held responsible by many Wall street observers for the $2,000,000 spanking administered shorts in the common stock of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad on the New York stock exchange today.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

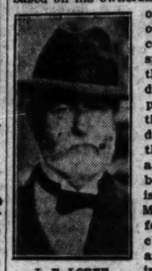
The stock shot eleven points to a high of $65, trapping many bears and forcing others to pay the high premium of $1 a share for "borrowed" stock in an effort to postpone the day of settlement.

The financial community sensed a merger fight for control of the road, but none could confirm the identity of the interests directing today's manuevers.

Wants Road for Link.

The report most generally credited was that L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson, known to desire the 540 mile W. & L. E. for a link in his proposed fifth trunk line, had effected an agreement for the purchase of Mr. Rockefeller's controlling interest, perhaps contingent on accumulation of a certain amount of the common stock. Other interests also want the road, and the "squeeze" resulted.

The elder Rockefeller's control is based on his ownership of 95 per cent of the $11,862,600 outstanding 7 per cent prior lien stock on which there are back dividends of 71 per cent. Until these back dividends are paid, the right to elect a majority of the board of directors is with that stock. Meantime the preferred and the common stock are without voting power.



L. F. LOREE.

Mr. Loree is ordinarily willing to comment on all railroad matters that come his way, but today he maintained silence. Mr. Loree agreed at the time he filed his plan with the interstate commerce commission not to say anything and he has held to that promise.

Many of today's sales were made on a cash basis for delivery at once. At its high price of 65 the shares were 38 points above the low price of 1926.

Stocks Technically Cornered.

Reports that transactions in the last week involving more than the total amount of shares outstanding had produced at least a technical corner in the market and word that bears who had sold the stock short had been called upon to make delivery before 2:15 p. m. today caused the suddenly increased demand for the shares.

The price gyrations tended to unsettle the general stock market, but scarcely to the extent that would have been expected if a genuine corner, with no stock available for sale or loan, had existed in Wheeling.

What Street Reports.

Some reports have it that the Rockefeller group was taking in the common and preferred shares against the day when the dividends in arrears could be paid off gradually without running the risk of losing control of the line.

The high loan premium for the shares and the fact that when the shares were being quoted at 61 on the tape, $65 a share was being paid on the floor of the exchange, strongly suggested that a corner was threatened. Officials of the stock exchange stated, however, no action had been deemed necessary by the authorities of the board.

MOVES IN CHINA

Increasing isolation of Great Britain by refusal of United States and Japan to join in armed intervention brings statement from British minister to China that England will relinquish its concessions and grant tariff autonomy. Tension in Shanghai lessens.

United States consul mobbed at Hankow where Russian soviet agents continue to agitate for spread of bolshevism.

President Coolidge reaffirms policy to employ armed forces of the United States, if necessary, to protect Americans in China from violence during civil strife.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 28.—The first definite result of Secretary of State Kellogg's announcement of a liberal American policy in China came today when the British minister to China, Sir Miles Lampson, informed Peking and the Cantonese National government simultaneously that Great Britain also was prepared to adopt a liberal policy. His note said Britain stands ready to return the British concessions, grant tariff autonomy, and asks China to prepare to take over the British concessions without delay.

Great Britain's sudden announcement is not comprehended in view of the heavy troop movement to China, unless it is the result of the definite statements of both the United States and Japan that they will not participate in armed intervention, thus leaving Great Britain in an embarrassing position.

British Anti-U. S. Propaganda Active.

Although Reuters, the only news service here and exclusively British, carried only a fifteen line summary of the Kellogg statement, its publication produced an immediate lessening of the tension, since it constituted definite information that America will not participate in armed action. The local British press minimizes the statement, saying:

"The mountain hath labored and brought forth a mouse."

The Japanese press hails the announcement as coinciding with the Japanese policy of friendship for China.

Chinese Strive to Avoid Trouble.

The immediate effect among the Chinese nationalists is to cause a redoubling of the efforts to prevent incidents arising from the landing of British troops. The Chinese thereby hope to show the world the British action is not justified.

C. T. Wang and other nationalist leaders renewed their efforts to obtain the powers' co-operation in a plan to establish a neutral area about Shanghai, hoping to convince the world that the nationalists are capable of constructive endeavor and maintenance of order. The foreign municipal authorities also are adopting a more conciliatory policy.

Many British Troops on Way.

Despite the announcement of a change of British policy, reports from London tonight state 8,000 troops will sale from England before the week end, while almost as large an embarkation of troops will take place from India simultaneously, the Indians including a contingent of crack machine gunners.

Marines were landed at Hongkong today from the cruisers Durban, Dispatch and Cradoc to conduct a demonstration parade.

It developed today that Great Britain's present troop and marine movement to China is equal to the expeditionary force dispatched to China in the boxer rebellion twenty-seven years ago, when America, Great Britain, Germany, France, and Italy cooperated.

U. S. Stand Pleases Japan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 28.—The British are arranging to charter five Japanese tramp steamers, now in Indian waters, for use as transports.

The press is pleased with Secretary of State Kellogg's memorandum on China. Tokio papers say the American policy closely approaches that of Japan. They say the Japanese are prepared to consider the question of remodeling the tenure of the foreign concessions or abolishing them, provided a legitimate approach is made, but they will not tolerate the methods employed at Hankow. Many papers urge the Cantonese to act discreetly, protect foreign interests to the utmost, and thus demonstrate the worthiness of their recognition by Japan, which will arise soon when Mr. Saburi, whom the foreign office has dispatched to Canton and Hankow, returns with Tai Tien-chou, the Cantonese emissary.

U. S. CONSUL ATTACKED

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 28.—The Cantonese censor at Hankow has suppressed the details of an outrage upon American Consul Richard P. Butrick, which Consul General Lockhart doubtless has reported to Washington. While on his way from his lodgings to the consulate he was attacked by a mob, presumably mistaken for a Briton, and manhandled. The mob also covered him with sewage.

The Cantonese finance minister, Soong, was attacked at Hankow by railway employés who had not been paid for a long time, and publicly paraded through the streets, which in China is a terrible disgrace.

The soviet activities in Hankow continue. The railway shops are building, according to Russian plans, two demonstration trains for the distribution of bolshevik and anti-foreign literature. For the entertainment of the Cantonese troops at Hankow and the dissemination of bolshevik ideas, Irma Duncan and twenty Isadora Duncan Moscow school dancers are giving shows, including bolshevik plays.

M. E. Bishop Blames Reds.

Methodist Bishop Birney, long regarded as "the Red bishop" because of his liberality toward student thought, has returned to Kiangsi province to aid the evacuation of the remaining missionaries. The bishop told THE TRIBUNE he was convinced the Cantonese army in Kiangsi province was directly financed by Moscow with $100,000 monthly, on condition that Russia's agitators should receive a free hand. He asserts the students at the mission schools are organized under Russian supervision and the anti-Christian movement is wholly directed by Moscow and does not originate with the Chinese.

Bishop Birney says the Methodist students were forced to join anti-Christian and anti-British parades. One great demonstration was staged before the Methodist church, where students with anti-Christian banners were photographed with the church in the background by photographers direct from Moscow. The bishop adds that the missionaries are becoming disillusioned, while there is a danger that all students will be intimidated and caught in the bolshevist net.

He also says the Cantonese army asked permission to use one of the mission buildings for the use of the staff, which, as the school is closed, he granted. He now finds it occupied by Russian agitators training students in anti-Christian activities. As a result all Methodist institutions in Kiangsi province are being closed.

More British Troops Sail.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The transports Assaye and Kildonan Castle sailed this morning from Southampton for China with the Green Howards and Devonshires, as well as a service corps and medical detachments, for the Shanghai defense forces. The transports also took ten armored cars and a large number of motorcycles, wireless and other equipment.

The foreign office reports that the conversations between Counselor O'Malley and Eugene Chen, the Cantonese foreign minister, are proceeding amicably and have not been upset by Chen's protest against the shipment of troops to China. This is regarded as inevitable and designed solely to keep his record clear.

Russia Avoids Armed Intervention.

LENINGRAD, Russia, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Armed intervention in China does not "enter into the plans" of the Soviet government. Assurance to this effect was given in a speech here yesterday by J. E. Rudzutak, vice chairman of the Soviet cabinet.

"Even if the foreign powers open war on China we shall not interfere," he said. "We shall maintain toward Canton [the Cantonese or Nationalist government] friendly neutrality and war sympathy, and shall help Canton in every way, but armed intervention in China does not enter into our plans."

The Soviet government cannot and does not wish to forbid Soviet citizens voluntarily joining the Cantonese army to "fight the imperialists," he went on, but from this it must not be assumed that the Chinese revolution is the work of Moscow.

"During our own civil war," he pointed out, "we had many foreign soldiers in our ranks, but it would be absurd to say that the October revolution and triumph over foreign intervention were accomplished by foreigners."

Reiterating his previous warning that Europe was preparing to attack Russia, M. Rudzutak urged that the people thoroughly arm themselves and be ready to resist.

STATE CLOSES SLAYING CASE AGAINST 9 BOYS

The state closed its case yesterday in Judge John J. Sullivan's court against nine boys of high school age, charged with the murder last Halloween of Stanley Ciesla. Assistant State's Attorneys Louis Gelman and Scott Hogan concluded the prosecution by reading to the jurors the confessions made by all defendants, in which they admit assaulting Ciesla when he resisted their attempt to rob him of $40 and a watch.

The defense started out by introducing testimony of alleged brutality on the part of the police to force the confessions. Fred Marshall, 15, 2139 West 18th street, testified that he was with Joseph Stancel, one of the defendants, at the time of his arrest. He charged that a policeman he could not identify struck Stancel and that another policeman put a rope around the defendant's neck and threatened to hold an immediate execution.

The defendants today are expected to deny the truth of their confessions.

Evanston's Health Officer Warns of Measles Epidemic

Residents of Evanston were warned yesterday by Dr. John W. H. Pollard, city health officer, that an epidemic of measles existed and that unusual care should be taken to prevent infection of children. More than 100 cases of the disease have been reported since Jan. 1. Dr. Pollard said it was not likely the schools would be closed unless the epidemic becomes more serious.

Coolidge Stands By His Guns for Protection of U. S. Citizens in China and Latin America

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—President Coolidge made it known today that he does not purpose to ask Americans to quit China to seek safety from the civil strife raging in that country, as urged by Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations.

The President will employ the armed forces of the United States to protect Americans in China from violence if such measures become necessary.

Mr. Coolidge gave his attention also during the day to the situation in Mexico and Nicaragua. He was informed that the negotiation of peace between Diaz and Sacasa in Nicaragua is progressing favorably.

Won't Meet Calles.

The President rejected an informal suggestion that he meet President Calles of Mexico, presumably on the Mexican border, and discuss an amicable settlement of the alien land law controversy. Mr. Coolidge took the position that American Presidents are not in the habit of conducting international negotiations in that manner. Passing over the exception constituted by President Wilson's direct negotiation of peace in Paris, Mr Coolidge recalled that President Washington, when approached directly on a question of foreign relations, had established the precedent of referring all such matters to the secretary of state.

On the subject of the resolution unanimously adopted by the senate, declaring in favor of arbitration of the controversy with Mexico, no comment by the President was obtainable. Whether he will pursue his original policy which contemplated withdrawal of recognition of the Mexican government if American properties should be confiscated or will modify his course to conform to the senate resolution remains to be seen.

Blocked by Democrats.

At a meeting of the house foreign affairs committee the Republicans sought a favorable report on the Fairchild resolution indorsing the Coolidge Mexican and Nicaraguan policies, but were blocked by the Democrats, who left the meeting in order to break the quorum.

On the Chinese question the President sees his way more clearly and states his position more positively. He has not encountered the opposition to the use of force to protect Americans in China that exists against aggressive measures to protect American lives and properties in Mexico. American church influences which have been exerted so powerfully to deter the administration from employing forceful measures in Mexico are interposing no objections to the use of the navy and marines in China to protect Americans, many of whom are missionaries.

Borah Plan Ignored.

Virtually the only voice lifted against the dispatch of armed forces to China is that of Senator Borah. The President has dismissed Borah's protest as unworthy of serious consideration. Mr. Coolidge holds that it would be unreasonable and unwise to ask the 4,000 Americans in Shanghai to leave their occupations there and seek safety in flight.

If the foreigners were to leave Shanghai, the President pointed out, the business of the city and surrounding region would be prostrated. The result would be disastrous to the Chinese people dependent on the business in which the foreigners are engaged.

Cites Hankow Disorders.

By sending American naval forces to Shanghai the United States, Mr. Coolidge explained, is endeavoring to provent a repetition of the experiences of foreigners who were caught in the rioting at Hankow. He is convinced the Chinese government did all it could to protect foreigners at Hankow and will do the same at Shanghai. He thinks there is every reason to suppose that the foreigners in Shanghai will continue safe. The whole purpose in sending our marines there was to protect Americans as best we can.

The President had not seen the statement issued by Dr. Sze, the Chinese minister here, proposing that the United States name at once the delegates to confer with the Chinese delegates on the negotiation of new treaties restoring tariff autonomy to China and abolishing extraterritorial rights.

"With reference to the missionaries," said the Chinese minister, "I have stated clearly in my St. Louis speech of Jan. 15 that the Chinese people have no fault to find with them as a class. We like them and think they have done a good deal of good.

"With reference to the unequal treaties the Chinese do not feel that they can tolerate their existence any longer. We do not wish, however, to abrogate them by violent means. In fact, we wish to avoid violence. But there are ways of terminating antiquated treaties recognized by international law.

"With reference to unequal treaties and the basis of negotiating future treaties of an equal and reciprocal nature Mr. Eugene Chen issued a public statement on the 24th of this month.

Asked New Treaties.

"Mr. W. K. Wellington Koo, on behalf of the Peking government, appealed to the United States last Monday to commence negotiations for new treaties. So the Chinese have stated their position. I personally urge that the powers themselves should declare in irrevocable terms and unconditionally the termination of all unequal treaties and negotiate forthwith new treaties on an equal and reciprocal basis. To evidence their desire for negotiating they should make their position clear and in simple language. The foreign governments should confirm their readiness to negotiate by naming their delegations. China is just as much interested to know the composition of the foreign delegations as they seem to be anxious to know the composition of the Chinese delegation.

"I would not be frank if I did not tell you that the Chinese people are asking why the foreign powers should send fleets, troops, and marines in numbers greatly exceeding the needs for purely protective purposes. We agree with public opinion expressed in this country that such huge expeditions are 'provocative and dangerous.' If there is ever a time when all provocation or challenge, whether intentional or unintentional, should be avoided by all the parties it is certainly the present."

REBELS FLEE TO HILLS BEFORE MEXICAN ARMY

Citizen Guard Routs Band in Battle.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—In all parts of the republic where revolt was rampant two weeks ago the rebels are surrendering to federal troops and the guerilla leaders are being driven from the towns and villages into the mountains, the war department says.

Gen. Escobar, commander of the troops in the state of Durango, reports that the rebel bands have fled before the federal troops and that in the last two days 250 rebels have surrendered unconditionally. Rebels are reported to have been driven out of Tlaxcala, after they tried to hold up the Tlaxcala-Puebla train last night. The rebels fired on the train but the engineer would not stop. None was killed.

Rout Rebels in Battle.

Federal troops under Gen. Pedro Sosa, after a battle of several hours, drove rebels out of the town of Ixtlahuacan, in Jalisco, which they had held for two weeks. There were heavy losses on both sides. The rebels fought to the cry of "Long live the church and Christ the king."

When rebels tried to capture the town of El Grande, in the state of Vera Cruz, the citizens' guard, aided by agrarians, and shouting "Long live Calles and down with the priests and the domination of the church," routed the rebels after a two hour battle.

It was stated semi-officially today that Alberto J. Pani, minister of finance in President Calles' cabinet, will leave the cabinet on Monday.

U. S. Oil Firm Gets Injunction.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—[U. N.]—The District court of Tuxpan, sitting today in the town of Villa Cuauhtemoc, in the state of Vera Cruz, granted a permanent injunction to the Transcontinental Oil company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company, against application of the new oil laws of Mexico. The government's attorney indicated that he would appeal to the Supreme court.

RUSH MARINES TO CAMP FOR CHINESE DUTY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The emergency marine battalion at San Diego, held for possible service in China, today was increased to a strength of 1,133 men.

The force, which the navy says is stationed at the California port for use anywhere needed, has been augmented by 500 men withdrawn from the mail guard, marines from Mare Island, and a detachment en route from the Puget Sound. It is ready to move immediately on receipt of orders, Maj. Gen. Le Jeune, commandant of the marine corps, said.

Half of the force from the Puget Sound yard was sent yesterday to the concentration point.

J. O. STOLL FINED FOR DEALING IN LEWD MAGAZINES

John Otto Stoll of 1120 Lake Shore drive was fined $50 on each of six charges of violating the city ordinance against the sale of lewd magazines yesterday by Municipal Judge Leroy Fairbank.

Stoll heads the J. O. Stoll company and according to his attorney has the second largest business of its kind in the United States. The concern, it was stated in court, distributes more than 20,000,000 magazines a year.

Mrs. William Harrison Cade, chairman of a committee from the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, was present and expressed gratification at the outcome. She declared that the campaign against magazines featuring art in the nude would be continued.

K. OF C. SEEKING TO START U. S.-MEXICAN WAR, HEFLIN INSISTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Charges that the Knights of Columbus have sought to embroil the United States in a war with Mexico were renewed in the senate today by Senator Heflin of Alabama.

SENATOR HEFLIN. [Kadell & Herbert.]

Replying to a speech delivered at a Knights of Columbus meeting here last night by Joseph Scott, a Los Angeles lawyer, the senator said that the meeting itself was an evidence that the Catholic organization is spending money to spread propaganda throughout the United States to cause intervention in Mexico.

Although Mr. Scott had said in his speech that he was opposed to war, Senator Heflin continued, he had aided in preparation of the resolutions adopted by the Philadelphia convention of the Knights of Columbus, which "bristled with war."

Senator Broussard of Louisiana interrupted when Heflin declared that one person had written him that the Knights of Columbus was "the standing army of the pope."

"I am a Knight of Columbus," Broussard said. "In '98 I answered the call of my country and went to fight against a Catholic country, and I think we demonstrated our loyalty."

MOON, SATURN DODGE SCIENCE'S MOVIE EFFORTS

The moon and Saturn may have played hide and seek with each other as scheduled early yesterday morning, but astronomers at Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis., saw nothing of it. So low and so thick did a curtain of heavy atmosphere and clouds hang that it was impossible for the scientists to pierce it even with the 40 inch 20 ton telescope that poked its head up from the observatory dome. Prof. Edwin B. Frost, director, said another favorable opportunity to take motion pictures, as was planned, had the skies been clear, may not come in years.

GALES RAGE OVER BRITAIN; 15 DIE, HUNDREDS HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A 102 mile an hour gale struck Scotland, north England and north Wales today, causing enormous damage.

The total death toll of the storm is expected to be heavy. So far, fifteen persons are known to have been killed and many places have not been heard from. Hundreds have been injured.

BROWNING CALLS SHEIKS TO LEARN OF PEACHES' PAST

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—More disclosures are to come in the separation suit which Edward W. Browning has brought against his youthful "Peaches." Capt. Francis Dale, one of the lawyers retained by Browning, announced that several youths would be called Monday, when the case is resumed in White Plains, to testify that the sixteen year old bride used to join in "strip poker parties" at her mother's apartment in upper Manhattan before she was married to the real estate operator.

Capt. Dale asserted he had located several "sheiks" who had been the guests of Mrs. Catherine Heeran at these entertainments and that one affidavit involving Peaches herself showed she was not the simple little girl she posed as being on the stand.

John E. Mack, chief of counsel for Mr. Browning, today filed with Justice Seeger a brief on the question whether or not the diary kept by Peaches prior to her marriage, and recording, as she admitted on the witness stand, love affairs between herself and some of her boy friends, shall be admitted as evidence. Mr. Mack wants the little book accepted in evidence, contending that the contents will reveal Mrs. Browning as a woman of the world at the time of her marriage. If Justice Seeger permits admission of the diary, it is expected Mr. Mack will call several of Peaches' boy friends.

HANKOW BISHOP WILL TELL OF CHINA WAR TODAY

An eyewitness to the siege of Wuchang, China, and a participant in arranging favorable terms with the Cantonese government for the capitulation of the city, the Rt. Rev. Alfred A. Gilman, suffragan bishop of Hankow, will describe his experiences Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the Episcopal Church of the Atonement, at Ardmore and Kenmore avenues. Charles Dailey, correspondent for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in China, refers to Bishop Gilman as "having braved gun fire to visit the Cantonese to ask for terms of peace." Mr. Dailey's cable was dated Oct. 7 from Wuchang and was printed in THE TRIBUNE the following day. Bishop Gilman will speak at the Auditorium hotel dinner Monday evening given by the Church club and at the diocesan convention which opens in St. James church, Cass and Huron streets, Tuesday morning.

BAR GUN SALE BY STATE LAWS, IS BAKER'S DEMAND

Citizen Has No Need for Pistol, Conference Told.

Federal law may aid somewhat in divorcing the gunman from his gun, but the cure is to be found only in uniform legislation in the states, it was declared last night by Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, in his address before the special committee on firearms regulation of the national crime commission, banqueting at the Union League club.

Mr. Baker and many others who addressed the committee agreed that a great stride in the restoration of law enforcement may be taken with the banishment of the revolver from the hands of all except police officials. It is no longer of use to the citizen, it was held.

Chiefs of police from midwestern cities gave their testimony to the committee yesterday, and today the prosecutors will be heard. Then the committee plans to lay down some fundamental suggestions for the passage of required legislation.

U. S. Can Regulate Imports.

The federal government may be looked to, Mr. Baker believes, to regulate the importation and the interstate transportation of arms.

"But more than that we will not get from the government, and I am one of those who believe it would be unfortunate if the federal government were to branch out into a local supervision of a police subject as distinctively local as the use of firearms. We have now the difficulty of the government with its attempts to enforce the national prohibition constitutional amendment.

"We ought to look to the state governments, and there are 43 state legislatures now in session. There is no difficulty whatever in getting the kind of legislation we want passed.

Public Sentiment Needed.

"I hope the conference will not adjourn without it being deeply impressed upon all our minds that we have a further mission. It is the stimulation of an informed local opinion which will bring the citizens back of cooperative effort between the public authorities—those on the bench, the executive authorities, the police, and prosecuting attorneys. If the public will support them, a very great deal can be done without any additional laws at all."

Charles P. Taft II., son of Chief Justice Taft and recently elected county prosecutor at Cincinnati, O., called upon the commission to give specific advice to the nation.

"Furnish a method, call it technique if you will, for a group of earnest men in a local field to put across this war upon crime and gunmen," Mr. Taft said.

"People don't know what to do," he continued. "May I suggest a plan? Get the leading citizens of the communities, join with them the men of ability who will give of their time and energies, and then have them present a program, in a diplomatic way, to the officials of the community. With that united effort, any city may conquer its criminals."

Gun Imperils Private Citizen.

J. Weston Allen, former attorney general of Massachusetts, and chairman of the special committee, asked the officials if they had ever known of a case in which a citizen found a revolver useful in an encounter with a holdup man. Sixteen of the chiefs of police testified that a citizen was imperiled, rather than aided, and that to attempt the use of a pistol during a holdup was certain to make the bandit use his own gun.

Other speakers at the banquet were Dean Albert J. Harno of the University of Illinois law school, who asked the committee now to recommend legislation which will not add to the thousands of foolish, unintelligent statutes now cluttering up the law books; Prof. Andrew A. Bruce of Northwestern university, who said that the time must come when judges, police and prosecutors must not depend upon votes of the underworld as well as the higher classes, and Dean Frederick Siedenburg of Loyola university.

Capper Promises Farm Aid.

That farmers are as eager as others to stop the improper possession and use of firearms was testified to by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, in a telegram sent to the banquet meeting.

"They cry that the farmers do not want regulation, and that farmers' wives must have pistols for their protection has been used by other agencies as pretext to defeat proper legislation," Senator Capper stated.

Ogden L. Mills of New York, special adviser of the committee on national legislation, had been scheduled to speak, but was unable. He sent an address, which was read by Chairman Allen, and stated in part as follows:

"Machine guns are now being sold openly and without restriction by hardware and sporting goods dealers. I am informed that in Chicago reputable hardware dealer bought two of these machines in Chicago and sold them to criminal gangsters there.

Asks Embargo on Guns.

"There is no justification for such a state of affairs and I suggest that congress be asked to place an embargo forbidding the importation of all machine guns except by the government. Further, that a 200 per cent tax be put on all machine guns sold by American manufacturers."

The morning session was opened by addresses of welcome by Mayor Dever on behalf of the city, and by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden on behalf of the National Crime commission, of which he is a director member.

"I would go much farther in this matter than preventing the sale of weapons through the mails," declared Mayor Dever. "The law ought to take charge of those who manufacture these guns. I would not assume that a law should be passed that would entirely prohibit their manufacture. But there ought to be some steps taken under government supervision that would trace every one of these weapons from the moment it was completed at the factory until it finally was sold to a proper user or consumer."

Gov. Lowden said the crime commission wished to coöperate wholeheartedly with authorities everywhere. To search out the facts, to ascertain the cause, and to help apply the remedies, if possible.

FORMER OWNER OF LARGE STORES HELD FOR FRAUD

Charged with operating a confidence game, Max Levy, one time wealthy furniture dealer with business interests in six different cities, including a store at the Chicago Furniture mart, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Max Luster. He admitted cashing bogus checks at several large stores and hotels, and putting slugs in the stamp machine at the Palmer house.

Levy gave vague and incoherent replies to most of the questions put to him, and Judge Luster, unable to determine whether he was hazy or feigning mental illness, continued the case until this morning. Police in the meantime will try to locate relatives.

Levy said he lost $100,000 in Florida real estate deals. He declared the checks he wrote were not honored because he failed to sign his middle initial.

WHAT POLICE THINK OF GUNS

What police chiefs and other officials of large cities in the middle west think about guns and gunmen, and what should be done to separate them, is expressed in the following symposium of their testimony given yesterday at the Union League club before the special committee on firearms regulation of the national crime commission.

William H. Rutledge, commissioner of police, Detroit, Mich.—Stop letting Uncle Sam help murderers by letting them get guns through the United States mails. Pass laws in all states to outlaw the concealable weapon. Put a prohibitive tax on the importation of weapons.

Jacob Graul, chief of police, Cleveland, O.—All arms should be manufactured and sold under federal supervision. Let no politicians issue permits for their sale.

J. M. Clancy, commissioner of public safety, St. Paul, Minn.—A gun for self-protection is worse than useless. The other fellow has the drop on you and to pull a gun then is suicide.

William Copelan, chief of police, Cincinnati, O.—Give us drastic and certain punishment for gun toters and prompt trials. Send them to prison for life without commutation or parole in their cases.

Joseph A. Gerk, chief of police, St. Louis, Mo.—We have a law requiring all pistol owners to have permits, but they go across the river in East St. Louis and come back with a carload. If a man is convicted of using a gun in a crime, the usual punishment for that crime should be doubled.

Matthew Zimmer, deputy superintendent of police, Chicago.—Carrying of weapons should be dispensed with entirely, except by regular peace officials. There should be a record kept of every gun manufactured, from the time it's made to the time it is broken. Violation of the anti-gun toting law should be made a felon. We issue permits to lawful citizens, and last year issued only 79. But the department seized 2,237 revolvers. Thugs had bought them in suburbs and by mail order. We smashed them with sledge hammers.

William Schoemaker, chief of detectives, Chicago.—We arrested 444 gun toters in four months. Of them only 96 were fined, 58 sent to the Bridewell, 180 were discharged, 37 placed on probation, 8 forfeited bonds, and 65 are still pending. Courts ought to punish gunmen. A citizen has no use for a gun on the streets, but I think he ought to have the right to have one in his home to repel burglars.

Today the committee will hear the county prosecutors of the various communities.

1,000 LEGIONNAIRES TO OPEN CONVENTION AT ROCKFORD TODAY

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—One thousand northern Illinois Legionnaires who will arrive here tomorrow to attend the Second district convention of the American Legion will hear addresses by State Commander Farre C. Watkins and others.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has been invited to speak at the public meeting Sunday afternoon which will close the two day program.

The Rev. N. B. Clinch of Chicago, state chaplain of the Illinois department of the American Legion; the Rev. Father Joseph M. Lonergan of Rockford, past national chaplain, and Ben C. Krieder of Sterling, vice commander of the state department, will be among the speakers.

Legionnaires from 118 posts in eighteen northern Illinois counties have been invited.

H. E. DODGE JR. SUED FOR DIVORCE IN DETROIT BILL

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Lois Knowlson Dodge revealed today that she had filed suit for divorce from Horace E. Dodge Jr., speedboat manufacturer and son of the late millionaire automobile maker.

"There is nothing sensational in the bill," she said. "It is just a question of incompartibility."

Mrs. Dodge is living at the million dollar home completed last year by her husband, but plans to leave soon with her two children for California. She said she would return to Detroit in two months, when she expects her case to be heard.

Mr. Dodge left for Europe a few weeks ago and is said to be in Paris. They were married June 1, 1921.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF JOHN D. GOES ROMANCE HINTED

Handsome Argentine Also Vanishes from Paris.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Mystery surrounds the disappearance of Miss Marguerite Strong, daughter of the famous American psychologist, Charles Augustus Strong, and the late Mrs. Bessie Rockefeller Strong, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, simultaneously with the disappearance of the young baron, some Argentinian, Georges de Cuevas, who holds a trusted position with the aristocratic dressmaker, Prince Youssoupoff, who maintains a magnificent estate near Paris.

Friends who were aware that Miss Strong and Señor de Cuevas were seen together frequently at dances and social affairs suspected an elopement, but are becoming mystified at the continued absence. They have been missing more than three weeks.

Prominent in Society.

Miss Strong, who is about 20 and pretty, is a prominent figure in European society, maintaining an apartments in Paris, although she travels most of the year. Her father, who is the author of the psychological work "Why the Mind Has a Body," is at present in Rome visiting the philosopher, George Santayana. Mr. Strong ignores his daughter's absence.

At one of her apartments near the Luxembourg gardens the servants said that Miss Strong would be absent three months, while at her luxurious flat in the Champs Elysées it was said that she went to Switzerland three weeks ago, saying that she would return in a week.

Señor de Cuevas, who is the director of Prince Youssoupoff's dressmaking firm, is handsome, has an athletic figure, dark eyes, a swarthy complexion, and is known as an elegant charmer with wit and personal magnetism, but of small means. He told his private employer that he was going for a two weeks' motor trip with friends, but has not notified the prince of the cause of his delayed return.

"We still hope that nothing unfortunate has happened and I believe that Señor de Cuevas will return shortly," the prince's secretary told THE TRIBUNE correspondent. "An elopement? No, I could not say. Possibly."

Reported in Geneva.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Jan. 28.—Miss Marguerite Strong and Georges de Cuevas spent the night in separate rooms at the Hotel des Bergues a week ago, THE TRIBUNE is informed. It is said they left Switzerland last Saturday for the French Riviera.

RIPS GLADSTONE CRITIC'S TALES OF "SERAGLIO"

Lawyer Forces Writer to Admit He's Sorry.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Capt. Peter Wright shrank today beneath the withering cross-examination of the Gladstone defense counsel in King's Bench court. He regretted finally his mention of Lily Langtry, who still is living somewhere in England, and he withdrew altogether his statement that he knew an illegitimate son of the late William Ewart Gladstone, Victorian premier and grand old man of British politics.

Nevertheless the case rolled on with sprightly repartee marking the sharp contacts of the two interests in the courtroom. Capt. Wright yielded only on a few details. He stood firmly behind the statements in his book of essays, "Portraits and Criticisms," in which he said that Mr. Gladstone, while posing in public as a saint, made it a practice in private to "pursue and possess every kind of woman."

Presses Father's Critic.

Viscount Herbert Gladstone, son of the former premier, who rushed to the defense of his father, calling Capt. Wright a "liar" and a "foul fellow," pressed the writer hard today, although he is the defendant in the suit. Capt. Wright suing him for libel for the above quoted words.

Today's proceedings were devoted to grilling Capt. Wright. The cross examination was carried on by Norman Birkett, attorney for Viscount Gladstone. The court was filled with a fashionable crowd, attracted by reports of yesterday's proceedings. Lord and Lady Gladstone sat in the front row, and with them were Augustine Birrell, former cabinet minister, T. P. O'Connor, M. P.; Lord Phillimore, famous judge; Lady Milner, widow of the statesman; Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, playwright, and many others.

Attacked by Judge.

Capt. Wright made a bad witness for himself today and was severely handled by the counsel, and occasionally by the judge, who seemed appalled at times by the lightness with which the charges were made and withdrawn. Mr. Birkett first took up the alleged quotation from Lord Milner, saying that Mr. Gladstone was "influenced by his seraglio," in deciding national policies, and asked Capt. Wright where Lord Milner had said it. Capt. Wright repeated that Lord Milner had said it at meetings of the supreme council at Paris and added that T. P. O'Connor quoted the same phase from Lord Milner in his obituary of the latter.

Counsel Birkett pounced like a cat on a mouse, and read from Mr. O'Connor's articles: "It was with these disrespectful words, uttered with a laugh, that he spoke of the devoted wife and daughter, who looked after the domestic comforts of the great Liberal leader."

"Do you mean that T. P. O'Connor supported your charges?" asked Mr. Birkett, "knowing full well that Mr. O'Connor had made it as plain as words could make it, what his meaning was?"

Accuses T. P. O'Connor.

Capt. Wright replied slowly, "Knowing full well that Mr. O'Connor, in his commentary, had not spoken the truth."

Mr. O'Connor, who was sitting on a front bench, smiled, and then Capt. Wright produced the dictionary to prove that seraglio could not mean wife and daughter. At this point the captain became excited. "It never did, does not, and never will," he shouted, and the judge rebuked him for the noise.

"Where is the French officer who was present when Lord Milner used the word referred to by you?" the counsel asked.

"O, I don't know," Capt. Wright answered.

"Lord Milner is dead?" was the next question.

"Yes," from the captain.

"And the only other person who heard the words used you know nothing about?" the counsel pursued.

"Met Officer in War."

"The French officer and I met during the war. I met him for two or three months and never saw or heard of him again," Capt. Wright answered.

Counsel Birkett then turned to Cecil Gladstone, who, Capt. Wright had alleged, was the illegitimate son of the statesman. Capt. Wright said he had been told so by several persons in Eastbourne, but had not made any investigation. Mr. Birkett then cited the birth and marriage certificates and the peerage book to show that Cecil Gladstone was the son of William Gladstone, cousin of the great prime minister. The captain then said he withdrew his contention that Cecil Gladstone was the illegitimate son of the statesman.

Mr. Birkett then passed to the charge that Mr. Gladstone had a liaison with Mlle. Brassine, the French actress.

Q.—Do you know that at that time Mr. Gladstone was 72 years of age?

A.—Yes, that was the astonishing thing about Mr. Gladstone. He had these affairs between 70 and 80.

The charge against the famous beauty, Lily Langtry, brought a dramatic scene.

Q.—Mrs. Langtry is still alive, isn't she?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you think that the charge might cause her pain or grief?

Says He Is Sorry.

Capt. Wright looked confused, hesitated, and then answered, "Yes, I am afraid it would. It very much annoys me to do so. I am sorry."

"Sorry about what?" asked Justice Avery.

"The worry, vexation, and annoyance caused to a living person," Capt. Wright answered. "I am sorry about it—more than I can say."

"You do not like causing annoyance to a living person?" the judge asked.

"Not to a woman," the captain answered. "I don't like to say things like that about a woman."

"An Exception for Women."

"You make an exception for women?" the judge asked.

"Yes," Capt. Wright answered.

Mr. Birkett interposed, saying, "But if they are bad it is all right?"

"To make a charge against a living person is more serious than against the dead," the captain said.

Capt. Wright was then questioned about Dr. Greatorex, who, the captain said, told him he had been advised by his women patients that Mr. Gladstone pursued them; then about Olga Novikoff, the Russian girl who was an agent of the czarist government. Capt. Wright said he had never seen the Russian woman, who in fact was quite a plain woman, and asserted he did not know she was a friend of Lord Gladstone, Lord Phillimore, T. P. O'Connor, and many others in court. He repeated his stock statement that Lord Malmesbury had told him the story about the detectives waiting for Mr. Gladstone outside Mme. Novikoff's house, although Lord Malmesbury was in court and it was said he had never heard the story until Capt. Wright told it yesterday.

The case of Laura Bell, the "famous courtesan," was perhaps the most dramatic breakdown. Mr. Birkett got Capt. Wright to admit that he knew nothing of Laura Bell, who married a Mr. Thistlethwaite.

McKinley Birthday Celebration Today Recalls First Cabinet

President McKinley made several changes in the cabinet and others were caused by death. The picture shows the original members. Reading around the table from President McKinley's left hand they are: Lyman J. Gage, who died this week, secretary of the treasury; Joseph McKenna, attorney general; John D. Long, secretary of the navy; James Wilson, secretary of agriculture; Cornelius N. Bliss, secretary of the interior; James A. Gary, postmaster general; Russell A. Alger, secretary of war; John Sherman, secretary of state. The offices of secretaries of commerce and of labor had not then been created.

SENATORS UNCERTAIN ON CROWE, INSULL CONTEMPT TACTICS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Legal questions involved in the proposed citing of Samuel Insull and State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe of Chicago for contempt in conection with their refusal to testify in the senatorial slush fund investigation were considered today by the Reed special committee.

Senators Goff [Rep., W. Va.] and King [Dem., Utah] were appointed as a subcommittee to report on the power of the senate to summon and punish for contempt, the power of the courts, and procedure to be followed. Members were uncertain whether to cite Insull and Crowe before the bar of the senate or to propose a resolution requesting the district attorney to institute contempt proceedings in the District of Columbia courts. The subcommittee will report back to the full committee tomorrow.

The senate elections committee will hear arguments tomorrow in the contest involving the seating of Frank L. Smith as senator from Illinois. James M. Beck, former solicitor general, will present the chief argument in behalf of the contention that the senate has no right to exclude Smith under the constitution. He will be followed by Attorney General Carlstrom of Illinois and C. J. Doyle, one of the Smith counsel.

Mr. Doyle said today that the condition of Mr. Smith's health is such that it would not be surprising if his physician ordered him to drop his contest at this session. Mr. Smith and Attorney General Carlstrom will arrive in Washington tomorrow.

RICHBERG CITES COPLEY'S GIFTS AND GAS RULING

Smith Then Head of Utilities Body.

Former Congressman Ira C. Copley's payment of $25,000 to Frank L. Smith's campaign fund was cited last night as an unusual coincidence with a ruling of the state commerce commission, while Smith was chairman, said to have been in line with the wishes of Copley's utility company.

The two events came to light in a statement issued by Donald S. Richberg, special attorney for the city in gas matters. He says the commerce commission's ruling resulted in profits to the Copley concern of from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

On Jan. 25, 1925, Richberg declared, the commission permitted Copley's firm, the Western Gas and Electric company, as an "experiment," to cut the heat units in its gas from 565 to 450 a 1,000 feet, in effect, he says, raising the rate 20 per cent. In December, 1925, the utility magnate gave Smith $10,000 and another $15,000 about Feb. 1, 1926. Between these dates, Richberg said, Copley had sold out his control of the firm, and five months later the commission ordered the heat units raised again.

Not in Slush Inquiry.

None of the data concerning the heat units was disclosed in Senator James A. Reed's slush fund hearings last July.

"In other words," Richberg's statement continued, "Mr. Smith's body allows the Copley corporation to make an 'experiment' that clears it nearly a million dollars. Copley donates to Mr. Smith's campaign. He goes out of the firm and, after the commission approves the deal, he makes another gift. Then the commission calls the experiment off.

"To say the least, this is an unusual—most unusual—coincidence of events and the result is Illinois gas consumers have got the raw end of an illegal deal."

Hearing Is Put Off.

Mr. Richberg said he discovered the "coincidence of events" in his study of the heat unit case which came up for a hearing yesterday. It was postponed until Feb. 12, however, upon the demand of attorneys of fifty cities and villages, led by Mr. Richberg, who contend that it may mean poorer gas all over the state.

"Authorities in Washington already know of the Smith-Copley doings in the gas case, and it probably will be heard soon in the senate," Richberg said. He did not name the authorities he referred to.

Informed of the Richberg statement, Patrick H. Moynihan, a member of the Illinois commerce commission, warmly refuted its intimations.

"Any charge that political favoritism was mixed in this case is absolutely false," he declared. "It has had nothing whatever to do with any funds Mr. Copley may have contributed to Mr. Smith's campaign fund."

Would Use Illinois Coal.

The chief argument for gas with reduced heat units, Mr. Moynihan explained, is that Illinois coal can be used in making it, whereas eastern coal must be imported for the 565 unit fuel. The commission is anxious "to protect the vast coal interests of our own state," he said.

Nevertheless, despite Mr. Moynihan's explanation, Mr. Richberg maintained records are records and dates are dates, and they speak for themselves.

The donations of Mr. Copley, as brought out in the Reed inquiry, were part of a total of $253,517 received by Mr. Smith. Of this amount, Samuel Insull and Clement Studebaker, two other utility men, contributed $125,000 and $20,000 respectively.

What Moore Said.

Regarding the Copley donation, Allen F. Moore, Smith's campaign manager, said on the witness stand:

"The Hon. Ira C. Copley, former congressman from Aurora, who served in congress with Mr. Smith and also myself, called at my office, the headquarters office in the Congress hotel, rather early in the campaign. He expressed his great regard for Frank L. Smith.

"He suggested $10,000. Some time later he gave me, I think, $10,000 in one amount. It might have been two fives; I have forgotten just how that occurred. Later on in the campaign—I think he was going away—he gave me an additional $15,000, making a total of $25,000.

To Honor McKinley

The eighty-fourth anniversary of the birth of President William McKinley will be observed by the Hamilton club this afternoon. Patriotic services will be held at 1:30 o'clock in the lounge at the club house. The Hamilton club chorus will sing and George Edmund Foss, who served in congress with Mr. McKinley, will speak on the character and achievements of the late President. Mrs. Jacob Baur also will speak. Red carnations, the favorite flower of President McKinley will be worn by all the club members.

Beefsteak for Airedale That Chased Off Robber

John Braun's big Airedale dog, Pal, was given an extra feed yesterday. Braun, who owns a candy store at 2850 Fletcher street, asserted that from now on Pal is to have all the good beefsteak he can eat. Pal earned his rations Thursday night when he walked in to find his master, hands elevated, confronted with an armed robber. Without delay the dog attacked the bandit and forced him to flee without loot.

Mrs. Butler Again Chosen to Head the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Herman B. Butler was re-elected president of the Young Women's Christian association of Chicago at the annual meeting of the organization held at the central branch, 59 East Monroe street, last night. Other officers elected are: Mrs. William C. Boyden, first vice president; Mrs. Edgar J. Goodspeed, second vice president; Miss Elizabeth Webster, recording secretary; Miss Ruth Stone, corresponding secretary; Miss Elizabeth True, treasurer.

McADOO ENTERS 1928 LISTS WITH TAMMANY DEFI

Charges Wet Talk Is Plot to Seize U. S. Reins.

Toledo, O., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—In a speech here today before the Ohio State Bar association, which is generally considered to proclaim his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928 as the leader of the extreme drys, William G. McAdoo charged that Tammany Hall, already in control of New York, is using the campaign against prohibition as a smoke screen to make a concerted advance upon the national government.

W. G. McADOO. [U. & U.]

Without mentioning Tammany directly in this connection and with no mention at all of Gov. Smith, his challenge to both was obvious. The drive, he said, is directed by the forces that have been "mainly responsible" for the sale of "protection against the law to crime and criminals" since the days of "Tweed and Croker."

Denounces Political Machines.

Mr. McAdoo denounced in strong terms the political machines in the great cities, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston. He declared they are largely responsible for the crime wave often blamed on prohibition.

"The problem before us," he said, "is to resist the debasement of our civilization at the hands of machine politicians, whether they come in the guise or Republicans or Democrats. . . . They have entrenched themselves so thoroughly in many positions of local power that the people do not clearly see that unless and until they are driven out crime and lawlessness will go on increasing until it may ultimately prove impossible to repress it. When that day comes Democracy is doomed."

Has Plan for Wet States.

Two "great political bosses," he declared, tried to enter the United States senate at the November elections, making their campaign "primarily as the champions of the liquor traffic and every evil force connected therewith."

He declared that the action of New York state in repealing its enforcement act, with the concurrence of Gov. Smith, was unconstitutional. For such "nullifying" states Mr. McAdoo proposed drastic measures.

"The remedy," he said, "is for the President to report the situation to congress and to request the necessary appropriations and measures to enable him to enforce the constitution and laws of the United States in such nullification or recalcitrant state."

U. S. Good Will Flyers Hop for Colombian Town Today

PANAMA, Canal Zone, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The five planes of the reunited "good will" squadron of the United States army Pan-American flight around South America are due to take off early tomorrow for Buenaventura, Colombia, the next station in their progress down the Pacific coast of South America.

FRANK L. SMITH OFF AGAIN TO SENATE BATTLE

Frank L. Smith, senator-designate, left for Washington yesterday to attend the hearings of the senate committee on privileges and elections which start today. He was accompanied by Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, who will present the argument as to the constitutional rights of Mr. Smith to be seated before his case is heard and voted upon.

The abscess in Mr. Smith's ear is improved, but his physician advised him to remain at home until completely recovered. He was apparently in good spirits and reiterated his belief that he will be given his seat.

3 1870 GRADS AT NORTHWESTERN ALUMNI DINNER

Three members of the Northwestern university class of 1870 were among the 300 alumni who gathered at the Orrington hotel last night to celebrate the seventy-sixth anniversary of the granting of the university's charter.

The veterans are the Rev. Olin Mathison, A. D. Langworthy, and Dr. M. C. Bragdon. All expressed the hope that they would attend many more anniversary dinners.

Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston university and a 1906 alumnus of Northwestern, was the principal speaker. He asserted that the principal aim of education was to develop personality and condemned so-called mass education. President Walter Dill Scott also spoke.

SEEK TO IMPEACH U. S. JUDGE WHO SET DRY TRAPS

House Refers Resolution to Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Prohibition enforcement by espionage received a sharp setback today. The house was asked to bring about the impeachment of Federal Judge Frank Cooper of Albany, N. Y., who cooperated with dry spies to entrap suspected bootleggers. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews at the same time announced the suspension of Leyton H. Blood, an under cover agent, who operated a notorious speakeasy in Norfolk, Va., ostensibly to secure evidence against moonshiners.

Outwitting dry members, who planned to kill his resolution demanding an investigation of Judge Cooper's connivance in the entrapment scheme, Representative La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] claimed the house floor on a point of high personal privilege. He submitted articles of impeachment against the New York jurist, charging him with "high crimes and misdemeanors, usurpation of power, violation of law, and general unfitness to hold judicial office." The resolution was referred to the judiciary committee.

Shuts Off Dry Speeches.

La Guardia, with a half dozen dry leaders prepared to defend the judge, defied Representative Snell [Rep., N. Y.], chairman of the house rules committee, to move the previous question. He thereby shut off further debate and brought his resolution to an immediate vote without giving the drys a chance to speak.

Shouts of "Sit down!" "Keep quiet!" and "Let him go on!" greeted Representatives Cramton [Rep., Mich.], Blanton [Dem., Tex.], and Stalker [Rep., N. Y.], from all over the house when they sought to heckle La Guardia. Less than twelve dissenting votes were heard when the motion to pass the New Yorker's resolution directing the judiciary committee to undertake an immediate investigation was put.

Mills Encourages La Guardia.

When the confusion was at its highest, Representative Ogden Mills [Rep., N. Y.], who becomes undersecretary of the treasury next Tuesday and as such will be the immediate superior of Assistant Secretary Andrews, moved to La Guardia's side in the well before the rostrum and encouraged him to "stick to his guns."

"The thing before us now," declared La Guardia, "is the misconduct of the judge in agreeing and conspiring with these agents to entrap and induce the very men who were brought before him, knowing all the time how these men would come to violate the law, how their indictments would be brought about, and that they would be brought before him for trial.

He read at length from the Andrews-Blair report to the senate disclosing that Judge Cooper, tired of hearing cases against small offenders, had urged R. Q. Merrick, formerly a dry agent in Chicago, to build up big conspiracy cases by having his agents purchase liquor at the Canadian border and sell it to bootleggers in Albany and Troy, N. Y. In every instance the violators thus entrapped by the agents were haled before Judge Cooper, who imposed maximum fines and prison sentences, it was stated.

Calls Judge Equally Guilty.

"The judge," continued La Guardia, "was equally guilty with the men before him on trial—he had originated the very conspiracy for which these men were being tried."

Assistant Secretary Andrews, when he announced the suspension of Blood, whose illegal operations were admitted in the Andrews-Blair report, but excused on the ground that Norfolk city officials had requested the help of federal officials, declared he did not contemplate similar action against A. Bruce Bielaski, under-cover agent who operated the Bridge Whist club in New York City.

Bielaski was acting under the instructions of the then chief prohibition investigator, R. Walton Green, according to Andrews. Merrick was similarly authorized to undertake his bootlegging operations, which involved Judge Cooper, the dry chief asserted.

During the day, Senator Edwards [Dem., N. J.] introduced a resolution in the senate prohibiting the use of poisonous adulterants in the denaturing of industrial alcohol. It was referred to the committee on manufactures.

Richard E. Kropf was last night elected potentate of Medinah temple, Ancient, Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, succeeding Past Potentate E. Edwin Mills. Other officers elected were Edward H. Thomas, chief rabban; Arthur Willis Jones, assistant chief rabban; Albert Hancock, high priest and prophet, and Ralph H. Wheeler, oriental guide.

Robert M. Johnson and Samuel H. Smith were re-elected treasurer and recorder, respectively.

DEMOCRATS FAIL IN LAST TRY FOR TAX REDUCTION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Senate Democrats made a final futile effort today to obtain action on tax reduction.

Vice President Dawes ruled out of order an amendment by Senator Harrison [Dem., Miss.] to the deficiency appropriation bill reducing the tax on corporation earnings from 13½ to 11 per cent, effective on earnings of 1927 reported in 1928.

After his amendment had been ruled out of order, Senator Harrison introduced a resolution declaring it to be "the sense of the senate that permanent tax legislation be enacted during the present session of the congress providing for tax reduction sufficient to absorb the surplus in the treasury resulting from revenue received under the tax laws now in force."

Senator Harrison asked for immediate consideration of his resolution, but Senator Curtis [Rep., Kas.], majority leader, asked that it go over under the rules, which was done.

ALKY INDUSTRY TO FIND U. S. TAP HAS GONE DRY

Need Not Prove Illicit Sales, Yellowley Says.

Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley yesterday slashed into the supposed legitimate alcohol industry in Chicago with unprecedented vigor, hitting property with a present total value of $3,500,000.

When Mr. Yellowley gets through with his new program, it was said, the $3,500,000 valuation will have shrunk to a few hundred thousand dollars—the bare real estate appraisal, in some instances, of what have been veritable gold mines.

Among the most drastic of Mr. Yellowley's acts of yesterday was final disapproval of the permit application of the Greendale Products company, 3311 Carroll avenue, one of the largest operators in alcohol in Chicago during the last five years.

Court Restored Permit.

Late in 1926, Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe, after almost a year of expensive litigation, ordered Mr. Yellowley to restore a permit to the Greendale plant.

Mr. Yellowley complied with the order, but with the subtle reservation that "1927 is another year." Yesterday, in a public announcement, Mr. Yellowley made it clear what he meant by the reservation.

"Regardless of whether they have been bootlegging or not, there is no economic excuse for organizations such as the Greendale," Mr. Yellowley said. "Plants of this type henceforth will not be given permits as long as I am in charge of this zone."

W. H. Kennedy, assistant administrator in charge of the permit division, explained further:

"Alcohol plants that did not receive their permits the first of the year may look upon their chances as hopeless. We have information that the Cragin Products company, 1333 Laramie avenue, one of the biggest in the business; the Alleghany Chemical and Products company, 641 Orleans street, and several other big timers expect to make requests for permits in a few days. We're ready for them and will knock them off the minute their papers reach this office."

The Duffy Chemical company, which has been the holder of one of the most valuable whisky permits in Chicago, fell under the Yellowley ban, although in years past it has been successful in court battles with the prohibition department. Until Mr. Yellowley clamped on the lid the Duffy company had been withdrawing 900 gallons of good old pre-war warehouse bourbon a month.

Regard Bourbon as Tonic.

It is said that the bourbon was used in some sort of patent medicine elixir. Last year the government urged that grain alcohol would be just as invigorating in the tonic is the fine red likker, but Duffy chemists were said to have contended that without the bourbon thousands of users would droop and waste away.

Another big permittee that Mr. Yellowley announced had fallen by the wayside, as far as his office is concerned, is the Marvel Cosmetic company, 4014 Parker avenue, which has been withdrawing 1,300 gallons of alcohol a month.

A similar fate was met by the Renat Drug and Chemical company, 1507 East 55th street, which has been withdrawing 650 gallons a month, the Lipsey Products company, which claimed to use 1,900 gallons of alcky a month in the manufacture of bitters, and a number of smaller concerns with a withdrawal total of 1,850 gallons a month.

During the day Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson issued a padlock injunction against the McEvoy Brewery company, a half million dollar property in Chicago Heights. Judge Wilkerson also padlocked twelve restaurants and saloons for violation.

ORDERS RETRIAL OF SEVERINGHAUS BRIBERY CASE

Lindsay Raps Prosecutors —Charges Espionage.

Without argument by the defense Chief Justice William J. Lindsay in the Criminal court yesterday set aside a verdict returned in his court Thursday evening by a jury finding Policeman Edward Corda of the Marquette station, Joseph Cook, former clerk in Judge David's court, and John R. McWane, former Municipal court bailiff, guilty of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The verdict was founded on the testimony of Ralph F. Ritter, who was a juror in the suit by the Severinghaus Printing company against Dr. William H. Reid, follower of William Hale Thompson. Ritter charged that he was bribed by the defendants.

Judge Jabs at Prosecution.

The judge in granting the motion of Attorney Benedict J. Short for the defense charged that there had been "snooping and spying around his courtroom" and that the prosecution was "trying to put him under pressure."

"I am not satisfied with certain things that took place in the courtroom and have taken place," the judge added. "A new trial is granted without further argument."

"If you people [talking to the prosecutors] think you can put me under pressure by having snooping and spying around here, one way and another you are mistaken. The only irregularity that occurred was a man who sat over there."

Has One Spectator Ousted.

The judge did not explain his final remark, but it is believed that he was referring to a man, whom he had ejected from within the inner court circle during the trial when he was found nodding while Ritter was on the witness stand. The man said he was waiting to talk to one of the prosecutors. The state had several investigators in the court during the trial.

TWO NAMED IN FRAUD CASE TO BE EXONERATED

H. W. Thornton, 50 years old, and Mrs. Betty Pipes, both of 908 Windsor avenue, probably will be dismissed on Feb. 15, when they appear before Judge Allegretti in connection with fraudulent operations of the Las Animas Mining and Milling company. With George W. Ray and Milton Denny, officials of the concern, they were named defendants, but Thornton testified for the prosecution and declared they were dupes. Ray and Denny were found guilty, but sentence was delayed. The story in yesterday's TRIBUNE erroneously stated that Thornton and Mrs. Pipes were also found guilty.

ARMY TO ISSUE VANITY CASES TO DOUGHBOYS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Hereafter doughboys of the United States infantry will carry "vanity cases," which is the name generally applied to the new toilet kit decided upon today by the war department.

This new article has been added to the soldiers' equipment, army officials here explained, because such toilet articles in the doughboy's equipment as his tooth brush and razor have heretofore been lost frequently. When one observed a column on the march, tooth brushes could be seen ensnared in hat bands and razors in the top of a legging. Such dispositions were the result of certain experiences where men had turned their toilet articles loose in their packs, later to discover that these articles were lost when the pack was unrolled.

The new toilet kit will accommodate tooth brushes, tooth powder, soap, razor, shaving brush and mirror and will be carried either in the haversack or meat can.

STUBBORN, UNSIGHTLY PIMPLES ON FACE AND BACK

Skin now clear and smooth

Doubs, Md., July 13:—"Three or four years ago, my face and back broke out with pimples and blackheads. When I picked or pressed them they would get very sore and burn. I used several kinds of cold cream, but none of them helped a bit. Then I happened to see your advertisement and thought I would try Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. Within a few weeks I had not a pimple or blackhead at all and now my face is nice and smooth. I have also found Resinol Soap very refreshing after coming in out of the sun or wind." (Signed) Miss Elsie E. Painter.

If you are troubled with a rough, pimply skin, ask your druggist today for Resinol Soap and Ointment, and see what an improvement a week's use will make.

Room Rented Under Unfavorable Conditions
Fur Coat Sold at a Profit
Through Tribune Want Ads!

HERE'S typical testimony of the remarkable power of Tribune Want Ads to produce eager inquiries:

Mrs. B. G. Lester, 1525 E. 85th Street, relates that one married couple who saw her Room to Rent Ad in The Tribune came to look at the room at ten o'clock at night, even though street lights and pavements had not been installed on her street!

Similarly, Mrs. B. Cambridge, 1225 Foster Avenue, sold her fur coat at a profit to one of the ready buyers who answered her Tribune Want Ad.

You, too, can make useful extra money by supplying the numerous, varied wants of Tribune readers. Use the cheapest, most productive way to sell—a Tribune Want Ad!

Letters in the $1,000 Want Ad Contest are being judged now.
Watch for the Winners!
They will be announced soon.

"When I inserted an ad to rent a room, there were ten inquiries. The couple I accepted came out at ten o'clock that night, even though I told them we were in a new subdivision and there were not many lights out there and also that the street was not paved. They stayed with us two years, and left to go into their own new home."
MRS. B. G. LESTER,
1525 East 85th Place.

"When I learned how little a furrier would allow for my old fur coat, I put an ad in The Tribune. The third person that saw the coat bought it at a price which was a bargain for her and allowed a margin of profit for me."

REVIEW BOARD VALUES COUNTY $3,886,074,382

Figures Vary from Some Others Offered.

Cook county is worth $3,886,074,382, according to figures issued yesterday by the board of review. The figures include the board's estimation of the value of personal property, real estate and capital stock of corporations in the Chicago district.

Because of interest aroused by the charges of the city and board of education that local property is undervalued tax experts paid much attention to comparing the new figures with the valuations set by the board of review in 1925. Meyer Cossman, chief clerk of the board, produced figures to show that there has been an increase in the valuations. Statistics in the books of the tax extension department of the county clerk showed a decrease.

Says Small Owners Benefited.

"The board of review cut down personal property valuations by approximately $40,000,000 in order to protect the small home owner," declared Mr. Cossman. "But there was an increase in the real estate valuation of more than $110,000,000. That made a net gain in valuation of Cook county of about $70,000,000."

He produced the following statement on board of review figures to support his claim:

	Real estate.	Personal property.	Total.
1925—	$3,689,884,176	$760,290,266	$3,886,074,382
1926—	$3,956,616,488	$820,023,816	$3,815,023,946
Gain			$79,434,979

The board of review's complete figures for 1925, as shown in the county clerk's records, show a valuation of $4,909,711,556 for all Cook county property. This would indicate that for the first time in many years local property is worth less than in the preceding year. The following table shows how the board of review's valuation, according to figures in the county clerk's office, mounted steadily in the last four years:

1922	$3,535,968,728
1923	3,863,646,888
1924	3,814,031,474
1925	4,909,711,556

According to that reckoning yesterday's figures showed a sudden drop in valuations to $3,886,074,382, a decrease over last year's figures of $123,637,174.

Explains the Discrepancy.

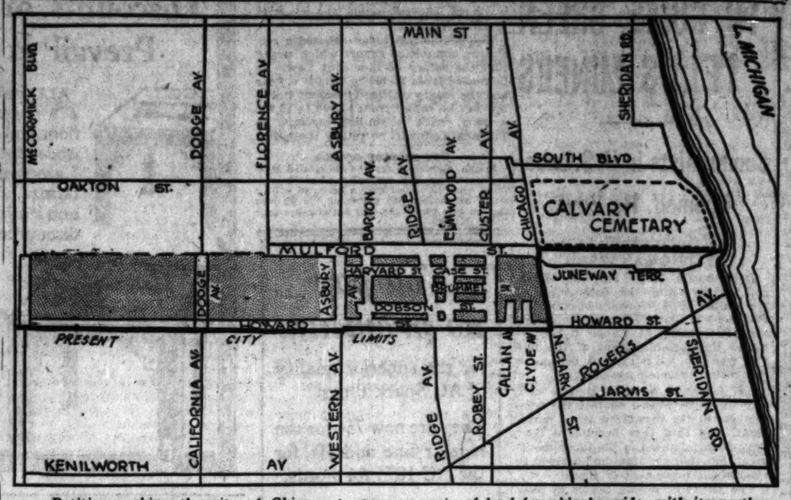
Mr. Cossman, in the absence of any of the members of the board of review, explained the apparent discrepancy by declaring that errors often were made in figures which later were corrected. He also stated the final figures, as shown in the county clerk's office, took into consideration the valuation of certain taxable property, not considered by the board of review.

In any event, it appeared that the tax spending bodies of Chicago will receive less revenue this year than last if the same tax rate applies. This was indicated in the face of protests by the city and school board that they needed millions in added revenue. They have filed thousands of complaints with the board of review asking for increased valuation of certain pieces of property.

Gemmill Rules Against Suits.

Judge William N. Gemmill ruled a few days ago that tax spending bodies might not bring suits to compel the board of review to hear their complaints. The school board still places hope in a suit filed by James A. Meade, a taxpayer and school teacher, to tax $450,000,000 of capital stock in 75 corporations. Judge J. C. Eagleton ruled yesterday that the state tax commission and board of review must answer this suit by Feb. 4.

WANT TO JOIN CHICAGO



Petitions asking the city of Chicago to annex a strip of land four blocks wide, with its southern boundary at Howard street, and extending from Clark street to McCormick boulevard, are being circulated by real estate brokers.

At present the land is in Evanston, but residents feel that they would get cheaper transportation, lower telephone cost, and better fire protection if they were transferred to Chicago, it is said. The promoters of the project say the majority of residents have signed. The proposal will be presented to the city councils of Evanston and Chicago. Evanstonians are likely to oppose it in their council.

EXPECT RECORD CROWDS TODAY AT AUTO SHOW

300 New Models to Be Displayed.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Chicago's old Coliseum—scene of stirring national conventions and athletic contests—was transformed last night into a vast and elaborate stage for the 300 glistening new car models and thousands of motor accessories which make up the twenty-seventh annual National Automobile show. Doors of the huge exposition buildings will open at 2:30 p. m. today to what is expected to be the biggest premier crowds of motor enthusiasts on automobile show records.

Samuel A. Miles, veteran manager of the national shows, whose service as an exposition producer ranges over the entire automobile period and well back into old bicycle show days, made a final inspection of the Coliseum and its adjacent buildings last night in company with other officials of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and pronounced the show ready for its grand opening this afternoon.

Expect 200,000 Visitors.

Approximately 200,000 show and automobile week visitors have been prepared for by the show management and loop hotels, it was announced last night. The national exposition brings thousands of automobile men and their families to Chicago for the week, in addition to the armies of car owners and prospective car owners, who make show week a gala occasion for their Chicago visits. Practically every official of the forty-four automobile factories exhibiting this year, had registered last night for the show and the merchandising conventions, which will feature the week. In some instances factories have sent as high as fifty delegates, and have arranged to entertain hundreds of their middle west and western distributors and dealers.

Salon Opens at Drake.

At the same time that Coliseum doors swing open to show crowds today, the annual Automobile Salon will receive its first Chicago visitors in the Drake hotel. This annual showing of fine cars manufactured in Europe and America and of exclusive custom coach work, begins its international swing in Paris and visits Berlin and London before coming to New York in November and Chicago in January.

This year the salon is the biggest in its history and is featured by motor car innovations, new body developments and car interior refinements in astonishing numbers.

The National show in the Coliseum, featured by a decorative scheme which has employed 40,000 yards of cloth of gold, and mural paintings drawn from the age Darius, king of Persia, will close on Sunday. It will reopen at 2:30 Monday afternoon and remain open from 2:30 to 10:30 p. m. each day next week including Saturday.

Award Chicago-Coast Contract for Air Mail

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Postmaster General New today awarded the contract for the western section of the transcontinental air mail route between Chicago and San Francisco to the Boeing Airplane company of Seattle. All bids for the contract on the eastern section between New York and Chicago were rejected. New bids will be called for shortly.

DRUGGAN DENIES ANY PLOT FOR BRIBING OF JURY

Branding the government charge of jury fixing in his recent trial for his jail escapades as "emanating from a person of disordered mind," Terry Druggan yesterday denied any participation in a plot to bribe a juror.

Druggan's answer was filed by his attorney, David Stanbury, and will be heard before Federal Judge Louis Fitz-Henry on Monday.

The answer sets forth that Druggan knew Joseph Delehanty, who will be the chief government witness against Terry, only as a seeker of financial aid, who was helped because of his family.

It denies that Druggan and Grover C. Dullard entered into a conspiracy with Delehanty to have Juror Charles Peterson vote "not guilty" for a sum of money.

SEIZE SLAYING SUSPECT.

Michael Blackburns, alias Earl Stone, wanted here for the murder of Henry Gutick, a railroad switchman, on March 11, 1923, was arrested yesterday in New York, according to word received at the detective bureau. Blackburns is also wanted in East St. Louis for the murder of Patrolman James O'Brien there on April 1, 1925. Lieut. Edward Birmingham will leave Monday to bring the prisoner here.

U. S. PLANES IN CANADA FLIGHT DOWN IN STORM

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Nine planes of the United States pursuit squadron from Selfridge field Michigan, on their way from Montreal to Buffalo after a good will visit to Canadian cities, were caught in a blinding snowstorm today. They were forced down on the ice of the St. Lawrence river near Fisher's Landing, six miles from Clayton. All the planes made the ice safely.

The three others planes are at Pointe Claire, near Montreal. They were forced to return by the snowstorm.

Plans New York-Paris Flight.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.] — Lieutenant Commander Noel Davis, United naval reserves, will attempt to fly from New York to Paris next summer, it was announced here today. Commander Davis, who is in charge of naval reserve activities here, hopes to win the $25,000 prize offered by Raymond Orteig of New York.

PILL-TAKER FREED FROM HIS HABIT

ALL-BRAN brought natural relief from chronic constipation.

Constipation is almost a universal curse — father of more than forty diseases. Yet there is real assurance in Mr. Ladue's letter:

"After sixteen years of taking pills, it cured me. If the millions of people that suffer from constipation only knew what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN would do, some of the pill-makers would go out of business. Every doctor should recommend it. I tell all that I know so that they can get the joy out of life I am getting since I started on Kellogg's ALL-BRAN 3 months ago."

MR. JULIAN LADUE,
Burlington, Vt.

Hollow cheeks, pimples, listlessness are some of the symptoms Don't risk it another day. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Use in cooking. Comes ready to eat. Sold and served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Recipes on package.

Saturday Night in Henrici's

¶ During all the fifty-nine (almost sixty) years of Henrici's existence, Saturday has been a day apart.

¶ Starting with the pleasant admixture of matinee patronage which begins at luncheon time and is revived after the matinee, there is, on Saturdays, a holiday atmosphere that continues (without orchestral din) through dinner before the theater in the evening and through late supper afterward.

¶ Many who sense the subtle influences of Saturday in Henrici's feel that a play, concert, an opera or a lecture on that day, when not preceded or followed by a visit to Henrici's, loses something of charm.

¶ And have you never taken a late breakfast at Henrici's on a Sunday, or a Sunday dinner there? Well—but enough said—one thing at a time. Why not Henrici's this noon, evening or night?

STRICKEN GIRL'S FRIEND TESTIFIES AGAINST EGAN

Victim's Father and Sister Hear Attack Story.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Alphonso Taylor and Jessie Quinn, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in the bridewell by Judge Emanuel Eller.

Charles Clark, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the bridewell by Judge John J. Sullivan.

Buford Carter, crime against nature, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Jacob Hopkins.

Frank Johnson, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Earl Dent, larceny, sentenced to 1 year to Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Leo Adamcuk, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Ralph Surber, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge William J. Lindsay.

Eager to tell her story, but hesitant how best to phrase one so stark, Miss Mary Kavanaugh, 21, yesterday in Judge Emanuel Eller's court, related how she had ministered to her friend, a 20 year old girl, who, she charges, had been beaten and twice attacked by Frank Egan, 23, of 7843 Cornell avenue, in a south side apartment. She said the attack was on the evening of May 30, 1925.

The girl whom Miss Kavanaugh described was not in court.

She was at home, the victim of a nervous breakdown, of St. Vitus' dance, and of creeping paralysis. All of these ills, her physicians have sworn, are the direct result of the ordeal in Egan's flat. Those have lingered on with increasing seriousness after the three broken ribs, the two black eyes, the broken nose, the split lip, and bruises have healed.

Told Story Then Collapsed.

Electing to face a court room hour of agony in order that she might tell a jury her story of what Egan did to her the night she thought she was going to his sister's apartment, the young complaining witness appeared in court Thursday and testified.

That night she collapsed at the home of her parents and spent yesterday under the care of her mother.

It is on her amazing story that Assistant State's Attorneys Frank Matousek and Albert Carlsten rely largely for the jury to give to Egan, on trial for rape, the maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

In court yesterday, listening to every word, was the injured girl's father, who clenched his fists as Miss Kavanaugh told of her friend's screams for help from behind a locked door that night. And the girl's sister was there, biting her lips to keep from crying as she heard Miss Kavanaugh describe the way Egan had mistreated the young girl.

Tells of Second Beating.

The gentle-faced father, seated well back in the court room, and the young sister, seated less than two feet away from Egan, leaned forward in their chairs, nervous and rigid when Miss Kavanagh told about another brutal attack.

"It's terrible to sit and hear this story," the girl's sister said yesterday afternoon during a recess.

"But we want to see that awful man punished if we have to keep at it until we are old and gray haired. We would have gone to trial earlier but my sister was so sick. We thought she'd get better. But she didn't. She never could, with the experience haunting her like a nightmare.

"Now that she has braved the publicity of it, and told her story, I really believe she will be better. After the first reaction I think she'll be less nervous."

Say $3,000 Was Offered.

The woman added that her sister could have been spared the ordeal of testifying if she and her family had been willing to accept the money settlemen which, they declare, friends of Egan sought to make with them. Prosecutor Hatousek also declared, out of court record, that the girl's father had told him that he had been offered $3,000 in lieu of prosecution, by friends of Egan.

She repeated what she had told on direct examination, that they met the two boys [and they knew Egan] that afternoon as they turned away from a south side club, where they had gone, expecting a Knights of Columbus dance. Invited, she said, by Egan to his sister's apartment, they were well in the flat before they discovered Egan and "Irish" Farrell lived there. From then on, for something like five hours, the girls were imprisoned in the apartment, she declared.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED BY TAXICAB—AUTO TOLL FOR 1927 IS 56

HILDA HANDRAHN.

Confused by traffic, an unidentified man about 45 years old, ran in front of a taxicab last night at Washington boulevard and Curtis street and was killed. Harold Thompson, 4349 Washington boulevard, driver of the cab, was taken into custody and charged with manslaughter.

The victim was about 45 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighed 130 pounds. He had brown hair and eyes and a brown mustache.

This death and three others yesterday raised the 1927 auto toll in Cook county to 56.

While being taken to the J. B. Murphy hospital, where she was to receive treatment for injuries suffered Jan. 11 in an automobile accident, Miss Florence Cordery, 27 years old, 6625 Lakewood avenue, died suddenly last evening. She had been a patient at the Lake View hospital, but had been taken to her home and became ill yesterday. Miss Cordery was injured when a taxicab in which she was riding collided with another automobile at Sheridan road and Irving Park boulevard.

Zigmund Dalinski, 45 years old, 1354 West 14th street, died at his home from hemorrhages resulting from internal injuries suffered on Sept. 21 in an automobile accident at Ashland and Milwaukee avenues. The car in which Dalinski was riding and a taxicab driven by Arthur Jensen collided when the latter is alleged to have swerved to make a left turn.

Richard Maloy, 77 years old, 162 West Grand avenue, died of injuries received Jan. 4, when he was struck by an automobile at Clark street and Wacker drive.

Hilda Handrahn, 24 years old, 1937 Fowler street, was killed by a truck Thursday at Le Moyne and Robey streets.

While running home from school yesterday, 11 year old Frances Maule, 3010 Kenneth avenue, was struck at Diversey boulevard and Kostner by a vampire truck and badly injured. She was taken to the Keystone hospital and police started a hunt for the driver of the truck, who did not stop.

ILLINI GIRL IN MORO FORT SLIPS FROM BESIEGERS

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 28.—[U. P.]—Flapper Princess Tarhata, adopted daughter of the Sultan of Sulu and a former University of Illinois girl, has disappeared from the Moro rebels' stronghold, where she was holding out against the constabulary with her insurgent husband, Datu Tahil.

When the American-led constabulary surrounded the stronghold bent on capturing the Moros, word was flashed through the constabulary ranks that the bobbed haired princess had gone inside with Datu Tahil and firing ceased. It was feared the princess might be harmed if the fort were assaulted and that this would cause a widespread Moro outbreak.

Then, while soldiers reconnoitered, the princess slipped out again as mysteriously as she entered. Where she went and why is a mystery. She is reported to be the brains of the rebellion and it is feared she may arouse the countryside to rescue the little band of 250 Mohammedan warriors now entrenched in the fort. Meanwhile the sultan has ordered his bravest men to find the princess.

INSULL TELLS OF HIS $15,000,000 PLAN FOR OPERA

Guarantors Hear of New Market St. Theater.

necessary," again Mr. Insull, "will be raised by the sale of bonds, arrangements for the underwriting of which have already been made. The balance will be raised by the sale of preferred stock, and I have no doubt that the community readily will absorb, as a matter not only of good investment, but of civic pride and duty, the preferred stock of so laudable an undertaking.

"We will start paying off the securities within three to five years of the time the house is opened. All that stands between us and the carrying out of such a scheme is the willingness to provide us with the $15,000,000 or $16,000,000. If we are able to raise the money—and I have every confidence that we will be able to do so, as the scheme is a commendable one artistically and financially—we will rear a home for opera that will last long after we are gone.

Would Avert Annual Deficits.

"Ultimately, probably within the lifetime of many of you present, the enterprise will provide us with a home for opera not only free of charge, but with funds enough to pay any deficit on our season's operations as well as for other forms of musical entertainment and musical education for the public.

"If the plan goes through we shall have created a great civic foundation with income enough to educate artists, musicians, choristers, dancers, and technicians, and to add prestige to this community as an artistic and financial center.

"Naturally this plan will require a great deal of work, and I should be loath to undertake it unless I had men like my colleague, Mr. Stanley Field, and my colleague on the committee of management, Mr. Ernest Graham, to coöperate in dealing with the matter. It needs men of that character who are authorities not only on the building but the operation of the institution we have in mind.

"I hope that when I meet you here a year from now I shall be able to say something more of having carried the plan somewhat further along the road toward success."

HOOVER SAYS SEAWAY WILL POUR MONEY INTO MIDDLE WEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Economic advantages which would accrue to Chicago and the middle west through the construction of the St. Lawrence route from the great lakes to the ocean are set forth in a special report published today by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Savings which would be effected and the potential commerce available for such a waterway were outlined together with reasons why the St. Lawrence route would be more economical to build and operate than the proposed All-American route from the great lakes to the sea via the Hudson river.

Special attention was paid by Mr. Hoover to the economic disadvantages under which the middle west is now operating as the result of the construction of the Panama canal. He asserted that building the St. Lawrence waterway will bring Chicago 1,000 miles closer to foreign markets and give that section of the country a substantial rate advantage "which will enable it to compete successfully once more in the world markets."

Mr. Hoover pointed out that the wheat farmer would receive from $50 to $80 more for each 1,000 bushels of wheat transported to Europe via the St. Lawrence than he would receive if the grain were shipped by rail and water.

5 DAY WEEK SURE TO COME, GREEN TELLS MINERS

Communists in U.S. Labor Doomed, He Says.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Addressing the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today declared that establishment of the five day week in industry had become a recognized economic possibility.

Mr. Green announced that a new war would be waged against the communists in the organized labor movement. He said that heretofore they have been tolerated in the labor movement, but that the time had arrived to cleanse the movement of them.

The strike of needle trades in New York City, he said, was responsible for the uncovering of communist activities in their right light, and these showed every "Red" participating, he asserted, to be wolves wearing sheep's clothing.

Productivity the Right Basis.

"Wages of American wage earners should be based on productivity, and the productivity of American labor today is 50 per cent greater than it was two decades ago," Mr. Green then said. "Prosperity based on low wages is unsound, and is bound to result in industrial depressions and unemployment, and when these conditions set in the reaction is felt by the nation as a whole. Show me the pay roll of any city and then I can measure the prosperity of that community. Every European city is evidence of that fact."

Upholds Jacksonville Pact.

Referring to the Jacksonville agreement, President Green said that all mine owners of the central competitive field of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois negotiated that pact three years ago with open eyes. Yet they later repudiated its terms, while through it all the mine workers' officers upheld the sanctity of an agreement."

The convention today debated a resolution committee report which urged that the salary of President Lewis be increased from $5,000 to $12,000 a year and the salary of Vice President Philip Murray be raised from $7,000 to $9,000 a year, with a similar increase to Thomas Kennedy, secretary treasurer.

BOY DIES OF SCALDS.

BRUNDAGE HURLS TRICKERY CHARGE AT CROWE CAMP

To Sell Out Thompson at Election, He Says.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The typewriters almost burned out their bearings in the battle of the Republican mayoralty camps yesterday over the subject of bipartisan alliances. Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, wound a spool of asbestos ribbon on his machine and ripped off a smoking hot letter to B. W. Snow, Municipal court bailiff, and one of the Thompson managers. Mr. Brundage said the Crowe-Galpin-Snow outfit is for Bill with a view of eliminating him after the primaries and making State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe "dictator of the G. O. P. in Cook county."

Mrs. Johanna A. Gregg, who has filed as a candidate for mayor in the Republican primaries sent Mr. Crowe a letter saying she was cheated out of first place on the ballot and asking whether the fact that Mr. Thompson landed top place indicates a bipartisan working agreement.

Absurd, Judah Says.

Col. Noble Brandon Judah, head of the Litsinger campaign committee, said the Galpin-Crowe-Snow charges that Litsinger-Deneen-Brundage are in league with Brennan Democrats were ridiculous, and they belonged over with the comic strips.

All told, the day was pleasantly sulphurous.

Mr. Brundage of the Litsinger camp, in his letter to Mr. Snow of the Thompson-Crowe-Galpin camp, said:

"Dear Barney, I notice in this morning's paper the amusing diatribe in which I am presented as aligned politically with Gov. Small. It is amusing because it is so preposterous.

"You are mistaken in some of the facts. I did convict Len Small, at least in the judgment of decent people. And I also succeeded ere I went out of office in getting a finding holding Small liable for an accounting of the interest on public money.

No Help From Crowe.

"In my battle against Small I received no help from your present associates. In fact, Crowe was trading in and with the governor whenever Crowe could profit. He traded so well that he traded me out in his ward on primary day. The returns will verify this statement.

"You know he intended to trade you out the time you were elected bailiff. Nobody knows that better than you, because you feund it necessary to appeal to William Hale Thompson for assistance to overcome Crowe's treachery. That is the real reason you are supporting Mr. Thompson now, is it not? I do not blame you for it.

"It is gratitude and you are the kind of a man who is grateful. But I do think it rather a shame to ask the public to pay your debt of gratitude to 'Big Bill.' You know what you said about him all through his eight tempestuous years as mayor. Nobody was a keener critic.

Charges Double Cross.

"You know as well as I do that Crowe and Galpin are only for the nomination of Thompson. They would not be for him election day were he nominated because they do not want Thompson to dominate. Crowe wants to be sole dictator of the political situation and by being for Thompson at the primary and defeating him election day 'Big Bill' will be eliminated. Crowe will possess his political raiment. There is no secret about this. Crowe and Galpin have frankly stated their intentions. Mayor Dever delayed his announcement of becoming a candidate until he was assured of the election day whereabouts of Crowe and Galpin.

"Now, if you do not know about my employment as one of the attorneys for the sanitary district, let me say that I was, by unanimous vote of the entire board (Deneen, Lundin, and Crowe Republicans and Brennan Democrats), designated by resolution to have charge of certain litigation. Many other attorneys were employed in important legal work, but not selected by the entire board in open session.

Earned the Money.

"I did that work competently and earned the money. I did not desire to continue the work and nearly a year ago asked the attorney for the sanitary district to relieve me of the cases. For reasons stated by him he asked, as a favor, that I continue on until after election, and I reluctantly did so.

"Your present associates are, I am told, assuring Len Small they are not unfriendly to him for renomination. They are doing this in the hopes of keeping the governor's patronage from being used against them. Whether Mr. Lundin or Mr. Thompson prevail in this struggle for the governor's favor, I do not know. I am not in the confidence of any of the three. But I do know this primary campaign so far as your co-signers are concerned is simply for the purpose of making Bob Crowe sole dictator of the Republican party in Cook county.

"You know Mr. Thompson blames all his errors and mistakes on Fred Lundin. Candidly, Barney, do you think Mr. Thompson will do any better by substituting Bob Crowe for his boss and political mentor?"

Council's 50 Seats Are Sought by 191, Including 46 Present Aldermen

When the final bell tapped in City Clerk Al F. Gorman's office at 5 o'clock yesterday 191 candidates had filed petitions for aldermen in the fifty wards.

Five get it on a silver platter, having no opposition. They are Aldermen Jacob M. Arvey (24), Thomas J. Bowler (41), Dorsey R. Crowe (42), and Oscar F. Nelson (46), and ex Ald. James B. Bowler who is running for the seat of Ald. John Powers (25) who is retiring after a full generation in the city council.

Forty-Six Seek Reëlection.

Forty-six aldermen seek reëlection. Ald. Powers and W. H. Pontow (50) are not running, while there are two vacancies caused by the election of John J. Touhy (27) as drainage trustee and Francis L. Boutell (48) as county commissioner.

The list contains many a stalking horse and unknown and the usual percentage of names is expected to be wiped off before the election and primaries Feb. 22. About a dozen hard battles, maybe less, are looked for after the ward situations crystalize.

*Present aldermen.

Primary May Elect Some.

Since Chicago's 35 wards, with two aldermen each, were changed to 50 with one each, the aldermanic ballots have been without partisan designation. In each ward the candidate getting a majority at the primary is elected, without further contest, but in scase of a mere plurality the two high candidates go into the regular city election. The primary is Feb. 22. The election is in April.

PROGRESS STOPS IN PARLEYS ON TRANSIT TANGLE

Lines Ask Delay on Giving Valuation.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The negotiations on an indeterminate transportation franchise reached a point yesterday where progress stopped. To avoid an actual deadlock an adjournment was taken until next Thursday afternoon.

The council local transportation committee asked the representatives of the companies to name the valuation upon which they will agree to consolidate the surface lines and the elevated roads, the rate of return they will accept on the valuation, and their approval of a mayor appointed commission to supervise the merger company.

Attorney Cyrus H. Adams for the elevated roads said he was unable to give a figure and could not say when he would be able. Finally he promised a valuation "at an early date."

Attorney Weymouth Kirkland for the Chicago Railways company (north and west side surface lines) pleaded for delay until next Wednesday, when he predicted bondholders will file a bill for foreclosure because of default by the company on payment of bonds then due.

"Then the property will belong, in effect, to the bondholders and they can speak with more definiteness than any one can speak in the meantime," said Mr. Kirkland.

Further discussion of valuation was deferred and the committee switched to the regulation of the consolidated company. Ald. Albert talked for almost an hour for the bill of Representative Michael R. Durso, presented to the lower house Thursday. This provides for a commission appointed by the mayor to regulate, supervise and control transit matters in Chicago.

Ald. Albert insisted that he would not "budge an inch from real home rule." In a parliamentary tangle Ald. Arvey made a motion to adopt the city's plan and it was approved by the committee without giving the representatives a chance to even be heard on the subject. Immediately the action was rescinded.

Mr. Busby then talked and the committee accepted his suggestion that all interested bankers, receivers and members of bondholders' protective committees be asked to present their views next Thursday afternoon.

Residents on Loomis Street Oppose Boulevard Move

Property owners residing on Loomis street, between 67th and 87th streets, filed a bill in Superior court yesterday asking that the south park commissioners be restrained from levying a special assessment for the purpose of improving Loomis street as a boulevard in their district. Through Attorney William E. Furlong the property owners declared that a boulevard nowadays is a speed highway which is a perpetual hazard for children. They claim the park board has no jurisdiction over the street.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. [Adv.]

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR METROPOLITAN CHICAGO

1. Make Chicago the First City in the World.

3. Electrify the Railroads.
4. Abolish the Smoke Pall.
5. Build Safe Streets and Highways.
6. Re-establish Constitutional Representation.

THE RIGHT OF REPRESENTATION.

Arthur Roe, representative from Vandalia in the legislature, has introduced a resolution calling for a referendum in 1928 on the question of reapportionment. If the vote is favorable the state outside Cook county will be redistricted, but Cook county can have no more than nineteen of the fifty-one senatorial districts, as at present. Under the 1920 census Cook county is entitled to twenty-four senatorial districts. The effect of Mr. Roe's scheme is to correct inequalities between districts downstate but to ignore the major injustice.

"Chicago has plenty of representation now," said Mr. Roe. "We from downstate have always looked out for the city's interest." That must remain a matter of opinion. If Mr. Roe of Vandalia conceives that his function in the legislature is to represent Chicago, no one in Chicago will object after an honest reapportionment has been ordered.

Mr. Roe's proposal is a recognition of the wisdom of the tactics recently pursued in the attempt to obtain constitutional representation. Growing communities all over the state were reminded of the injustice being done them as well as Chicago by the oath breaking legislature. Mr. Roe, observing the progress that has been achieved in this campaign of education, is seeking to alienate the flourishing downstate communities from the movement by promising them a reapportionment which still will not increase Chicago's strength. His scheme is in direct violation of the plain terms of the constitution of the state which he has sworn to uphold. He is trying to evade his duty and his oath by hiding behind a referendum and he is asking other members of the legislature to join him in oath breaking.

Obviously there is nothing in this proposal which will recommend it to Cook county and without support from Cook county no reapportionment scheme is likely to succeed. The county already has its nineteen districts and will be no better off than it is today if Mr. Roe's proposal or another like it is adopted. Today Cook county has a moral and legal claim to its proportion of the legislature based on population and there is no need for compromising. Time and the constitution are on the side of the growing communities. If the legislature at this session does not reapportion in the light of the 1920 census it will soon have to reapportion in the light of the 1930 census, which will be even less favorable to rotten boroughs downstate. Growing communities all over the state are feeling the injustice, but can have no relief without the support of Cook county. Under the circumstances the alliance between the flourishing sections of the state is a natural one and will not be disrupted by ill disguised efforts toward permanent disfranchisement such as this one.

RE-EXAMINING GLADSTONE.

Capt. Peter Wright, the English writer, sued Viscount Herbert Gladstone for libel. Wright in his book, "Portraits and Criticisms," had said that the late Lord Salisbury was too fastidious to tolerate some of the hypocrisies of liberalism and was repelled by the pious fidelity of William E. Gladstone in public and his woman chasing in private.

Herbert Gladstone, now an old man, wrote Capt. Wright that he was a liar, that because he had slandered a dead man he was a coward, and because he thought any one would believe the slander he was a fool. He invited Wright to sue him and Wright did.

Wright is a member of the staff of the supreme war council. He justified his statement regarding Gladstone as being true, privileged and honest criticism. He said he had been told that Gladstone had been intimate with Lily Langtry, that he had succumbed to Olga Novikoff, the Russian beauty sent by her government to get the British statesman; that he had annoyed women on the street with his attentions and that detectives who guarded him had complained of the hardship of having to stay up all night watching a house and then escort him to church in the morning.

Lord Malmesbury, Wright said, had told him the story of the detectives. The late Lord Milner, he said, was authority for a statement that Gladstone was "governed by his seraglio." The late Walter Morrison had told him of the affair with the Russian. The late James Haslam, a friend of the Gladstone family, he said, had told him of the Langtry episode. The late Dr. Greatrox, in his day a fashionable London physician, had told him of women patients who had complained of Gladstone's attentions to them. A steeplechaser, still living, had told him of scaring Gladstone from making overtures to a woman friend. Wright said he had met a man who bore a resemblance to Gladstone and said he was an illegitimate son.

He also read passages from Mrs. O'Shea's book on Parnell expressing her contempt for certain persons in the British government who lived in a freedom far exceeding that which they condemned in Parnell and her.

No one, said Wright, thought of objecting when Lord Nelson's name was connected with that of Lady Hamilton, not even in the family. Who would think of silence regarding Charles II. and Nell Gwyn? Wright lost his membership in the Bath club because he wrote of Gladstone's amours, if they were amours. Is he to be read out of society?

It is a general rule that a person of historic importance has immunity for a certain period. His greatness may have had human elements inconsistent with a reputation for good, but pitiless publicity does not begin to operate until consideration for his descendants has prevailed for a suitable period. To say nothing of the dead except good is a rule which recognizes, first, that the man cannot defend himself, that dead men have no remedy in law, and, second, that it is unkind to cause the family unhappiness.

Gradually time washes out these considerations and history regards the character as available for analysis. Then it is unworthy of the historian to obscure the life and it is unworthy of the student or reader to demand it. We doubt that this period has been reached in Gladstone's case. There are living children, and even if Capt. Wright could prove the truth of his statement he was taking a risk with public opinion. Even some people who do not believe in obscuring facts might think it better to allow flesh and blood to disappear before facts not notorious in public knowledge should be given their proper place in an estimate of character and of actions which flow out of character. This is a rule of behavior which is more generous than it is hypocritical. It is more amiable if less candid. Something can be said for it. Just how much would be a matter of opinion.

The justification of truth is that better decisions and better opinions come from better understanding. When shall that benefit be available? False conceptions of public men have consequences in false behavior of public men.

Then there is the question of truth in this Gladstone case. Capt. Wright must feel that there is a great deal of his material presented as coming from The Late So-and-So. Many of his witnesses are in the grave. Evidently he believes that his material is true. It may be all to his disadvantage that he cannot produce corroboration, having ventured into the field of complete criticism before the public is willing to accept it.

MORE CENSORSHIP PROPOSED.

Congressman T. Webber Wilson of Mississippi has introduced a bill to set up a national board of censors to which all proofs of magazines would be submitted before publication. It would pass on all stories, articles, and pictures, and publication without approval would expose the publisher to a fine of $10,000 or imprisonment not to exceed ten years. Mr. Wilson is after the salacious publications. There are some, edited and issued as dirt. There also is law to restrain them. The federal government has it in its control of matter admitted to the mails. The states have it in their police powers.

Offenses against public decency and morals can be punished and prevented in the ordinary procedure, but it is insufficient in the modern American scheme to rely upon this entirely adequate and ordinary method. The majority of American publications are clean, but under censorship they would be subjected to restriction and oppression. An intelligent censorship is virtually unknown. Its instinct is to be operative, and to operate is to suppress. The merely passive operation of passing what is submitted would not be recognizable to the censors as censorship. Censorship implies the prohibition of something and consequently a censor is not on the job unless he is rejecting or suppressing.

This has become the great American mania. Mr. Wilson is preparing to submit evidences of the need for his bill. To the extent that he may do so he will only show that authorities have been lax in using the power they now have.

THE AGRICULTURAL BILLS.

If half of the energy which seems to be exploding in congress over the Nicaraguan affair were put into a cylinder and directed at agricultural legislation we should have some substantial results at this session. There is certainly need for results and congress should not fail to accomplish them before adjournment.

The parliamentary difficulty is that the President favors one bill, while the most representative and vigorous organizations of farming opinion favor another. Yet this ought not to prevent action. The situation is too serious and the ability of congress to relieve it materially is too real to permit of excuse for further postponement.

Mr. Haugen's statement of the agricultural situation and his analysis of means required to correct it was admirably considered, and Mr. Dickinson's discussion of the Haugen bill and the Curtis-Crisp bill ought greatly to strengthen the former measure and impress even the administration supporters of the latter. The Haugen bill has been amended by the removal of the provisions chiefly criticized and we believe has the preference of the general body of agricultural opinion and of men, like Mr. Lowden, who have given special study to the economics of agriculture and are by no means radical or impractical. We do not think the best opinion in the west will be satisfied with the Curtis-Crisp measure, and we think the Haugen bill in its present form represents at least an experiment which can safely be tried and ought to be tried. The objections to it are largely theoretical, if not prejudiced, and pride of opinion should not be permitted to defeat it.

Editorial of the Day

THE REBUKE TO ILLINOIS.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

It may be time for Illinois to take note of where it is being led by certain callousness in the matter of campaign finance.

Though a merciless publicity was given to what Gov. Small had done, and it had been made the subject of a preliminary court finding, the voters of Illinois renominated and reelected him to a second term. The Illinois voters also elected Mr. Smith senator, though all the facts as to huge sums contributed to his campaign fund by utility interests over which he could hold a heavy regulating hand were made known by a senate inquiry.

If so many of its own voters seem to have little concern over such things, Illinois can read what is thought of them outside that state in the senate vote of 41 to 53 by which Mr. Smith was not even permitted to take the oath as a member-designate of that body. It is true that, in one particular, his case did differ from all preceding cases in which eligibility to qualify was denied, particularly from Mr. Newberry's case. Though the newspapers were filled with charges at the time Mr. Newberry presented himself, the senate had no official knowledge of his campaign expenditures and he, therefore, was allowed to take his seat until investigation had been made. In Mr. Smith's case, however, the facts were already in the possession of the senate, an investigating committee having held sittings contemporaneously with the progress of his campaign.

We have expressed doubts as to the legality of any such action as has been taken in Mr. Smith's case, but that was not due to any belief that Mr. Smith is worthy of senate membership, or that a terrific rebuke should not be visited on the kind of politics which he and his sponsor exemplify.

How to Keep Well, By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, of matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitation and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make a diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

SODA HABIT CAUSES MUCH ALKALOSIS.

ALMOST every one has heard of acidosis. Many know about it by reason of experience with it. Few know about the opposite condition—alkalosis. In alkalosis there is an excess of alkali in the system, just as there is an excess of acid in acidosis. The one produces symptoms just as the other does. Both cause death occasionally.

The symptoms of alkalosis are given as thirst, headache, lassitude, nausea, vomiting, fever, and a tendency to convulsions in some instances. The people who are prone to have definite symptoms due to alkalosis are said to be nervous and irritable, to suffer from vertigo, dizziness, and light headedness, and to have pains in their muscles and joints.

So far as we now know there are four causes of alkalosis. The first is the habitual taking of alkali, and especially the habitual taking of soda for sour stomach. Soda has its place in medicine. There are people who need to take it. But the promiscuous taking of soda on slight provocation, in a free and easy way, is doing much harm. The soda habit is widespread and very harmful. As a cause of alkalosis it overshadows all others.

A second cause is prolonged vomiting, particularly that which is due to obstruction in the upper stretches of the intestine. The symptoms of obstruction in that part of the tract which is near the stomach and bile ducts differ from those of obstruction elsewhere. Alkalosis due to this cause is infrequent, but when present is important. Prolonged vomiting is both a symptom of alkalosis and a cause of it. In other words, alkalosis tends to perpetuate itself. It causes vomiting, and the vomiting in turn keeps the body out of chemical balance.

A third cause is too much deep, rapid breathing, especially in fevers. Breathing removes carbonic acid from the tissues. Carbonic acid is the great source of acid needed to balance the alkalis of the body. There are other acids there, but they are unimportant as compared with carbonic. Ordinary natural breathing removes carbonic acid at just about the proper rate. Deep breathing and rapid breathing, without extra muscular exertion to produce more carbonic acid, is likely to abstract too much of this chemical from the tissues and leave them overalkaline.

And, finally, deep treatment with X-rays and heavy dosage with radium has been found to cause alkalosis.

Up to the moment we do not know whether eating too little meat, eggs, cereal, and bread can act as a cause or not.

There is a medical treatment for alkalosis, but the most important point for the public to know is that breaking off the soda habit will cure many cases of alkalosis.

BABY SLOW AT WALKING.

Mrs. J. writes: I am a mother of five children. I have a little girl 2 years old who does not walk alone except by holding on to something. She can climb. I have been told that the child will never walk. The front tooth has decayed. Do you think it is from her food, or does she need medicine?

REPLY.

Many children who are backward about walking eventually catch up all along the line.

See that your child gets plenty of milk and vegetables, and whole grain bread and cereals.

Have a physician decide whether she needs a small daily dose of thyroid.

When the sun plays out, try to find a place where they treat with an ultra-violet lamp.

THE MAGIC OF SERUM.

H. D. B. writes: 1. Has scarlet fever serum been developed to a point where I can be assured of getting it if my child catches the disease? Our first boy had it at 10 months and while we were very successful in combating the regular fever stage (we used baths to reduce the fever, which I believe aids the heart), the complications were severe, especially in the ears. Mastoiditis developed and an operation was necessary.

2. Would the serum make complications lighter?

3. Why is measles so fatal in the city, while it is not even a serious disease in this town?

REPLY.

1. Scarlet fever antitoxin acts like magic in suitable cases. The disease is bad today, an adequate dose of antitoxin is given, and the disease is virtually gone tomorrow.

2. It is least serviceable in the cases with complications.

3. It may be measles is no worse in the city than it is in your town. Measles without complications is a fairly mild disorder. Measles with complications is a grave one. Measles is milder in some epidemics and more severe in others. Your next epidemic may be a severe one.

NO FARE.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—What is the law concerning the conductor of a passenger train putting off a passenger who has inadequate transportation? The passenger in question had good intentions, but he was put off in a desolate section of the country. Should he have been taken to the next station? W. J. C.

He should have been taken to a station. If he can prove substantial damages he should employ an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RELIEF IN SIGHT.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you advise, through your column, what obstacle stands in the way of paving South Bishop street from 77th street north to the Wabash and Belt railway tracks, as all the property owners have signed several petitions for this paving?

The present condition of this street [as well as others between Racine avenue west to Ashland north from 77th street] is impassable and residents thereon are forced to use the alley, which is also in a deplorable condition. H. J. Q.

We will go ahead with this proceeding as rapidly as possible, and the property owners will be notified when the date is set for the public hearing. The estimate of cost has not yet been prepared by the engineer. There are many improvements under way, and the engineer is at work preparing estimates, each in proper turn.
EDWARD J. GLACKIN, Secretary,
Board of Local Improvements.

INHERITANCE TAX EXAM.

Chicago Jan. 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A niece of mine whose husband is suffering from an incurable disease tells me that he told her that when he died he wanted her to go to his safety deposit box, to which she has permission to enter, and remove all of his securities before it is known that he is dead. Would not such an act be unlawful and subject to punishment? I feel sure I am right in my opinion. I. C.

You are right. Under the inheritance tax law the securities should not be touched until there has been an inheritance examination. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 29, 1862.

FORTRESS MONROE.—The steamer Eastern States brought the first official intelligence of the Burnside expedition, consisting of 125 vessels of all classes, which sailed from Hampton Roads on Jan. 11 and 12. After it arrived at Hatteras it experienced a series of unparalleled storms. The City of New York stuck on the bar, and with its cargo of $200,000 worth of powder, rifles, and bombs, was a total loss. The Pocahontas went ashore and was a total loss. The Louisiana stuck on the bar and was burned. The Grape Shot went down at sea. An unknown schooner went down with six of its crew. The Eastern Queen and Voltigeur are also ashore. It is thought the Hatteras pilots were traitors and purposely ran several vessels ashore. Gen. Burnside has succeeded in getting half his vessels, including gunboats, with 7,000 troops, over the bar. Fair weather has set in and things look more promising.

FORTRESS MONROE — The Richmond Dispatch says it has it from reliable authority that Gen. Beauregard has been sent to take command of the rebel army at Columbus, Ky., and that Gen. Gustavus W. Smith succeeds him in Virginia. Beauregard will be subordinate to no one except Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston.

CHICAGO.—The Hecker-Jaeger regiment which left Chicago last June has been thoroughly reorganized and is in camp at Bacon Creek, Ky. Its officers are: Colonel, Geza Mihalotzky; lieutenant colonel, John Van Horn; major, Julius Standan, and adjutant, Julius Fann.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 29, 1902.

NEW YORK.—John W. Gates spent $100,000 in an hour for pictures in Edward Brandus' art gallery. The gem of the collection was a Rembrandt, "St. Paul," for which he paid $60,000.

LONDON.—The premier of Holland has made an offer to the British government of his services in bringing to an end the war in South Africa.

PARIS.—Santos Dumont made an ascent in his airplane at Monte Carlo and sailed around apparently at will.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A substitute for the Nicaragua bill was offered in the senate which authorizes the President to choose between the Nicaragua and the Panama routes for a canal.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The senate passed the bill creating a department of commerce and labor.

NEW YORK.—District Attorney Jerome was arrested charged with assault on a coroner's clerk.

CHICAGO.—Plans for the completion of the east front of the Art institute were announced. The proposed cost is $150,000.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago health department is considering the advisability of quarantining against Iowa, Wisconsin, and Indiana towns on account of smallpox.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 29, 1917.

LONDON.—The entente allies have answered the kaiser's defiant proclamation to "make peace with the sword" with a vigorous offensive by both the French and the British on the western front; by the Russians in Bukowina, and by the British in Mesopotamia. The British attacked in the region of Le Transloye, north of the Somme, with infantry, which was preceded by terrific artillery action. The official report says all objectives were gained. The French attacked German positions between Les Eparges and the Calonne trench near Verdun. Many German dead were found in trenches gained. The Russians pierced the German lines for more than two miles on the Kimpolung-Jacobeny road on the Bukowina-Roumanian front.

LONDON.—The British auxiliary cruiser Laurentic was sunk by a submarine or a mine. Twelve officers and 199 men were saved. This probably means there was heavy loss of life, because the size of the vessel, 14,892 tons, necessitated a large crew.

CHICAGO.—At a mass meeting of patients in the Municipal tuberculosis hospital they voted to "strike" and march on the city hall with protests if Dr. Roscoe Giles, a Negro physician, is named on the staff of the institution. He has been certified for appointment by the civil service commission.

CHICAGO.—Miss Isabelle Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Landon Baker, and Robert M. Curtiss were married on Saturday, Jan. 27, at the Baker home. Miss Mary Landon Baker was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses Lolita Armour, Elizabeth Adsit, Emma Blair Pittsbugh and Helen Walkers, and Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer.

MANY MOONS.

I.

Alien and cold, while as the face of the dead,
Why do you gaze with that fixed, contemptuous stare?
Harsh critic of all human warmth and frailty;
All eyes, no heart; all keen, unfeeling vision,
No kindly understanding of men's ways;
You watch the generations come and go,
Yourself unchanging; only a deep, slow breathing,
A monthly alternation of staring insolence
And a thin, wry, bitter smile of deep contempt.
Oh ghastly face, inhuman luminary!
Beauty and love to us are new and wonderful;
To you, stale, vapid, commonplace and gross.
You hate all youth and scorn its fine fresh ardor
With laughter, cynic and sophisticate.
You would be wise—if you had not, forgotten
What every simple youth and maiden knows.

DEBATING WITH THE DEPOSITORS.

GUS ABBOTT—In Evanston, Gus, you should have abundant opportunity to sit unvexed by the noise and confusion of this great, busy world, and study Slieve's immortal problem until, suddenly, upon you comes a flood of glorious light—the light that never was on sea or land.

CHICAGO HANK—We are perfectly willing to give Slieve the dollar, as you suggest, and have the agony over. But it is principle for which we are fighting, not the interest.

MARY OF OLD ELMHURST—Slieve Na Mon is no piker. A drop of water is just as much water as is the whole ocean.

P. J.—What has your great idea to do with Slieve? Let's see; you say we write a number containing three digits, the second digit being less than the first and the third less than the second, such as 976. We reverse the number and subtract from the first. Is that it? Then we reverse the remainder and add to the remainder. Then we take away 6. Then we refer to the Chicago Telephone directory at page indicated by the answer. Then we count down to the eighth name and ninth number, and we will have the name of the lodge we belong to. All right, we'll try it, but we don't see why you want to hitch this thing on to Slieve Na Mon.

Dick: Did it ever occur to you that the genius who designed the stage at the Goodman theater as a fireplace blundered, in the witless way artists have of blundering, upon a profound thought, universally applicable? What is anything in the world, after all—friends, sweethearts, high projects, incredible follies—but a fireplace in which one is permitted for a while to burn one's own fuel? Sometimes the fireplace is faultily constructed, but more frequently the fuel is of poor quality. TOBOTHER.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

Dick: You should be ashamed! You know quite well that it wasn't April, 1865, nor was it Mr. Garfield, who uttered those words. It was January, 1927, and the speaker was Col. Frank Smith of Illinois, and what he said was: "God rains, and the government at Washington is all wet."

WHY COLLEGE BOYS KILL THEMSELVES.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Something is wrong evidently with a society in which young people for no apparent reason take their own lives, leaving behind them vague and pathetic philosophies, which, when translated tell us precisely: "There is no misery so great as that of living with you."

Several conditions lead to this state of mind:

Man is naturally and physiologically an actor, a doer. Stimulus is followed normally by response; and if for any reason no adequate motor outlet is possible, a pathological condition follows, leading to melancholy. College and university students usually pass through such a period of forced inaction, spending four years assimilating material, forced to bide their time for action and achievement.

Another cause for youthful pessimism is that the vast enthusiasms and idealisms of adolescent years are often quenched and dimmed when the first real contact comes with life. Disillusionment and disappointment follow, sometimes with shocking results.

Strangely enough, profound melancholia may issue from the attempt to fill lives of youngsters with unearned joys. Such conditions abound in a civilization such as ours when a highly organized and wealthy society showers upon its children comforts and conveniences which they have not earned. Wealth and ease which is inherited, not earned, is in most cases a degenerating influence. And thus it develops that the supposed comforts doting parents supply for their children are in reality often the cruel gifts of failure, pain, and sometimes even the hemlock cup.

A CORRECTION BY THE CORONER.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 27.—I was much interested in a letter in THE TRIBUNE in which C. G. Gros, '29, criticizes me for attributing the death of Mr. Noe to the fact that he studied psychology. He questions my knowledge of psychology and for his satisfaction I will admit my training in that subject is limited.

Just to enlighten him, I want to say that I am not responsible for the vivid views of the newspaper fraternity. It may be news to Mr. Gros, but the fact remains that I investigated the Noe case merely to determine whether it was a case of suicide or some other form of death and that conclusion having been reached my duty was ended. I did not go into the realm of psychology, higher mathematics or botany to arrive at my conclusion but Mr. Gros apparently does not realize that supervision of the press is not one of my duties. I have never made the statement that a study of psychology leads to suicide. Also I have no great interest in such a claim, and frankly, I do not know whether such reports are true. W. E. CAMPBELL,
Dane County Coroner.

THE NORRIS VERDICT.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—I was glad to read the verdict in the case of the Rev. Mr. Norris. It is gratifying to know that there is at least one state in the Union where politicians, graft and bootleggers don't mean a thing to a jury.
RALPH R. LOOKABAUGH.

A REBUKE LONG REMEMBERED.

Oxford, Kas., Jan. 23.—I noticed in your issue of Jan. 21 the picture of the office equipment and "tools" of Dr. G. V. Black. Some years ago I was a member of the freshman class at Northwestern Dental college and while I was doing some of my work Dr. Black, with a distinguished stranger, passed through the room where I was at work. He paused at my table and watched me and I explained to him that I did not have all of my necessary "tools." He looked at me a moment and then said: "Young man, WE call them instruments."
DR. G. O. SWIGERT.

THE NEGLECT OF MARQUETTE'S CAMP SITE.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Some months ago your brilliant correspondent, James O'Donnell Bennett, wrote so impressively about our neglect of the spot near Ludington, Mich., where Marquette died and was buried that the students of the university that bears the missionary-explorer's name took up the writer's challenge, collected funds, and are now redeeming the past by placing at the sacred spot a shaft with an inscription that becomes its importance.

I would invoke your interest in a similar project here at home. Yesterday I made a pilgrimage to the spot at Rose street and the Chicago river, almost the geographical center of our metropolis, where "the purest spirit that ever moved through our Chicagoland," as THE TRIBUNE characterized Father Marquette, tarried for four months 252 winters ago. What a desolate, forlorn, disgraceful appearance that spot presents: As on a tumbledown wagon drawn directly in front of the commemorative cross which is disfigured by the initials of modern vandals, a heap of rubbish piling high to the left and the river bank to the rear in its disorderliness and dilapidation reminding one of Bubbly creek. And this the most historic spot in our great city, the spot that should illumine the pages of their histories for our school children and should inspire our youth to unselfish devotion and to the firm purpose to do and dare for God and country!

Wouldn't it be possible for our wealthy city to give to her richest historic treasure a proper setting? The territory made sacred by the footsteps of the heroic Marquette should be converted into a park which will be easily accessible when the provision of the Chicago beautiful plan calling for the development of Robey street into a six-mile thoroughfare is completed.

TULEY TRADITIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Before I was graduated from the Tuley High school I edited the Tuley Review, and consequently feel that I am capable of at least partly answering the inquiries of Emil Jacobovits in his letter of Jan. 11. Every school, even Tuley, must have its traditions; every school, even Tuley, must be supreme in at least one field of endeavor. The origin of Tuley's traditions is shaded in mystery and is best expressed in four words, "Economy, and clean halls!"

The "powers that be" at Tuley sing great praises of the reputation for having the cleanest halls [high school jargon for corridors] in the city. In fact, it is no strange sight to see one of the office officials conscientiously pursue any elusive scrap of paper that happens to mar its appearance in the halls.

Tuley economy, which surpasses anything Coolidge could ever have conceived of, has resulted in a strict refusal on the part of the officials to permit any form of athletics except what is not only self-supporting, but profitable.

VICTIMS OF PROPAGANDA.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—The action of the United States senate in casting a vote of 72 to 0 in opposition to the policy of President Coolidge with regard to the Mexican situation is indicative of the sad condition which has been brought about in our country through propaganda of professional pacifist organizations and preachers who are determined to disarm the nation and place us at the mercy of foreign countries. Their skillful, insidious propaganda is being circulated in hundreds of ways and disguises. N. E. HEWITT.

FOUR BACKERS OF EX-KAISER ENTER GERMAN CABINET

Marks Triumph of Foes of Socialism.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—The bourgeois reaction against socialism triumphed in Germany tonight. The politicians headed the orders of the former field marshal of the ex-kaiser, President von Hindenburg, and finally built a new republican cabinet, in which the nationalists, former supporters of the former kaiser, play a predominant part.

Their reactionary ardor will be tempered and jealousy watched by the other members of the cabinet, the Centrists and German People's party, the only dyed in the wool republicans in the new Marx cabinet.

How Cabinet Is Made Up.

Chancellor Marx, leader of the Center party and prominent in German post-war history as a leader of liberal government, is assisted in the present cabinet by four Nationalists:

Vice Chancellor and Minister of the Interior Dr. Oscar Hergt, Minister of Agriculture Martin Schiele, Minister of Justice Walter Graef of Thuringen, and Minister of Traffic Wilhelm Koch of Dusseldorf.

The German People's party is represented by only two members: Foreign Minister Stresemann and Minister of Economics Dr. Julius Curtius.

Gessler Remains War Minister.

The Centrists control labor through Dr. Heinrich Brauns and finances through Dr. Koehler. Karl Stingl of the Bavarian People's party is minister of posts and telegraphs.

The war ministry remains in the hands of Dr. Gessler, President von Hindenburg's protégé, a former Democrat who was read out of the Democratic party after he agreed to collaborate with the Nationalists, at the special request of President von Hindenburg.

Agree to Back Republic.

All the Nationalistic members in the new Marx cabinet belong to the most reactionary wing of the former monarchist party, but all have agreed solemnly to recognize fully and participate in all the measures defined by the republican state, its symbols and institutions, and its peace policy as expressed in the Locarno agreements. As the price for this conversion from the monarchy o the republic, the Nationalists endeavored to secure the post of finance minister besides the four portfolios already in their hands.

This met with absolute opposition from Herr Marx, because the German finance minister can virtually rule the German cabinet. He controls all expenditures and has the right to refuse payments if he believes the budget is endangered. The Nationalists relinquished their claims to the finance ministry only after Herr Marx issued an ultimatum to them.

"Ruthless War" Man in Cabinet.

Herr Hergt, whom the Nationalists nominated for vice chancellor and minister of the interior of the new cabinet, is a man who acquired fame in the war days for his ardent support of "ruthless warfare" and his belief that even America's entry into the war was not dangerous for Germany.

"The Americans cannot fly over the ocean, and the Americans cannot swim in the ocean, and consequently the Americans won't come," he predicted from the rostrum of the Prussian diet in 1917.

Today he declares it was the American army which vanquished Germany.

REP. RATHBONE HEADS ADVISORY BOARD OF KLAN RADIO STATION

REPRESENTATIVE RATHBONE.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Representative Henry R. Rathbone [Rep., Ill.], it was announced today, is to head the advisory committee of 1,000 which will direct the great radio broadcasting station which the Ku Klux Klan and other anti-Catholic organizations are establishing adjoining the United States capitol. The announcement was made today by the Fellowship Forum, the anti-Catholic organ published here.

"In order that the great broadcasting station, over which the principles of Protestant Americanism are soon to be heralded, may be kept in close touch with the sentiment of genuine Americans, the committee in charge has decided to constitute an advisory board of 1,000 men and women, selected from every section," the Forum says.

The paper reproduces a letter from Representative Rathbone praising the radio undertaking and inclosing his check for a life subscription to the Fellowship Forum, which made him eligible to the advisory committee. The paper publishes a list of contributions to support the broadcasting station, 90 per cent of which are from klaverns of the Ku Klux Klan.

MIDWEST CITIES FARM BILL FOES, TILLERS ARE TOLD

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Charges that the McNary-Haugen surplus crop control bill was defeated in the last session of congress through the failure of representatives from midwestern cities to support the measure were made by Congressman Brand [Rep., O.] this afternoon at the concluding session of the Illinois Agricultural association.

Mr. Brand said his colleagues from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Kansas City and Minneapolis stood out "selfishly" against the measure. "These five cities had enough votes to put over this legislation," he added.

"Melvin A. Traylor, head of the First National bank of Chicago and president of the American Bankers' association, has not been justified in his opposition to the bill," the congressman continued. "He would deny farmers the protection that the bankers already have secured for themselves."

Readjustment of representation in the state legislature was termed "necessary," but wariness of upstate domination was shown in the resolution adopted."

Removes 2 1-2 Inch Safety Pin from Baby's Stomach

A safety pin measuring two and a half inches was removed yesterday from the stomach of thirteen months old Michael Economu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Economu of 6243 Vernon avenue, at the Washington Park hospital. Dr. David C. Goldberg performed the operation and pronounced the child in no danger. The pin was not unclasped and was swallowed by the baby a week ago while playing in his crib.

LIVELY SENATE FIGHT OUTLOOK TODAY OVER CRUISERS AMENDMENT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The senate is prepared for a lively fight tomorrow when the amendment to the naval appropriation bill, recommended by its naval affairs committee, to authorize an appropriation of $1,200,000 to begin construction of the three light cruisers of the 1924 building program, is brought up.

Hints of the battle which may be expected were given in the debate today when Democratic members twitted Republican members for failing to "stand by the President" and the budget bureau in their plea for a suspension of naval building pending the outcome of negotiations for a second international arms limitation conference. Both the President and the budget bureau opposed the appropriations.

Senator King [Dem., Utah] and Senator Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] challenged Senator Curtis [Rep., Kas.] to say whether the President has changed his mind since writing the annual budget message and to say if the naval committee's recommendation represents his present wishes.

Senator Curtis, however, refused to respond except to promise that when the amendment is reached he will announce the President's stand.

Members of the senate naval affairs committee assert that a majority of the senate is pledged for the cruiser amendment, which failed of passage in the house by only two votes, and they are equally confident that the amendment will eventually be accepted by the house in conference.

DEMANDS BANK OF ENGLAND LOOSEN GRIP ON CREDITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The conservatism of the Bank of England was attacked today by Reginald McKenna, former chancellor of the exchequer and now chairman of the Midland bank, at the annual meeting of the Midland bank shareholders. He pleaded for a more liberal extension of credit on the American plan.

Since the autumn of 1921, he said, there had been great extension of bank deposits in the United States, amounting to an increase of £891,000,000 [$4,445,000,000], while there has been a decrease of £122,000,000 [$610,000,000] in deposits in Britain.

Great Britain, he said, now had 1,500,000 unemployed and the population was increasing 200,000 annually. To employ these people usefully, an immediate increase in banking credit—that is, money—was needed.

Swinnerton Looks with Joy to New Monkhouse Book

By Frank Swinnerton.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—In my last letter I was not able to give the title of Allan Monkhouse's new novel. I now learn that it is to be called "Alfred the Great." It is quite a short book, and I am told extremely pleasing. Monkhouse is the literary editor of the Manchester Guardian, and he also contributes regularly to the weekly edition of that distinguished paper a regular causerie of a literary character. He is no longer a young man and his output has been too small and too delicate for wide popularity, but his reputation increases with each year, and those who make his acquaintance now will be rewarded by the possession of books which in days to come will be much sought after.

LIAM O'FLAHERTY.

A very much younger man, whose reputation is also growing, is Liam O'Flaherty. I have only read one of his books, called "The Informer," but it was enough to show me that this young Arran islander has exceptional power. It had its defects, of course, or it appeared to me to have them, but I can best indicate what I felt by recalling to my readers the fact that the human ear is capable of perceiving only a limited range of sounds. All the noises above or below that range are either completely unheard or they swim into a mere din. It is the same with sound above a certain volume. Mr. O'Flaherty's "Informer" began very powerfully, and I thought he was a most astonishingly able writer. As the book went on, however, I ceased to be able to relish it as I had done the earlier chapters. Either Mr. O'Flaherty could not himself maintain the necessary crescendo or my ears were incapable of perceiving and appreciating his increases in power. It is a problem which I shall leave to others to solve. In the meanwhile I hear very enthusiastic accounts of his new novel, "Mr. Gilhooley," and I observe with interest that he has written a story called "The Wilderness." This story is being published serially in the Humanist.

Lord Beaverbrook has a piece of rejoicing in the Evening Standard because he has induced Mr. H. G. Wells to write a series of articles for the Sunday Express, the articles to appear each fortnight, on the trend of forces in the modern world. Lord Beaverbrook is quite justified in his enthusiasm, for Mr. Wells is one of the three great author-journalists in England. The others are Mr. Shaw and Mr. Bennett, of course. Mr. Bennett, by the way, has been writing an attack upon the doctors. He says that if they can tell you what is the matter with you they are content, but that they have not yet discovered a cure for measles. This is true. I can remember having just such an experience myself.

And the point that Mr. Bennett makes, that diagnosis is no good by itself, is precisely the point that a novelist would be likely to make, because the novelist, like the doctor, makes a diagnosis—of character—but does not put his diagnosis into the book he writes. What he puts into the book is, in fact, the cure. Or at least the exemplification of the characteristics that he has duly observed. For this reason the novelist who depends upon written analysis of character really never makes a job of it. He is doing only half the novelist's work. Is it any wonder that Mr. Bennett, a most scrupulous novelist, should fall foul of the doctors, who also do only half their work?

The McCutcheons Issue Lively Book About the Bahamas

"The Island Song Book," by the McCutcheons. [Privately printed.]

A charming little book has just been brought out by the king and queen of Treasure Island. Its title page reads, "The Island Song Book, being a small collection of our favorite ballads, anthems, lullabies and dirges of this particular section of the Bahama islands, and also such other ditties as have seemed befitting by reason of their piratical, nautical or sentimental appeal, together with several local and topical lays relating only to Treasure Island, to which is prefix'd an explanatory and historical introduction to which is added a number of sketches and photographs illustrative of same."

What fun Mr. and Mrs. John McCutcheon must have had doing it, for they have included all sorts of favorite ditties, which must have been sung around the whatever corresponds to a roaring fire in the balm of the Bahamas. They have annexed paragraphs like this with a song by John Alden Carpenter: "This song was written and composed for a debutante party given by George F. Porter. Each of the five young ladies . . . was informed confidentially that the song was dedicated wholly and exclusively to her."

Some of the songs are native Bahaman, some favorite songs of visitors, a few of the poems the work of Mr. Charles Atkinson, and some just the joyous crazy airs that delightful people find glee in. Mr. McCutcheon has done some of the drawings, and there are photographs of the children and a pirate or two.

It is the kind of intimate, charming, amusing thing that charming and amusing people used to do now and again, but that every one seems to be too busy to take time for nowadays.

Science's Work in Behalf of Health Subject of Book

"Modern Science and People's Health," edited by Benjamin Gruenberg. [Norton.]

A book not in any sense anything but a book of facts—not, like "Microbe Hunters," a thrilling and exciting book to read for itself, aside from the facts it contains—is this one which is a collection of papers by different scientists on what research has done for people's health.

An anatomist, Dr. Stockard of Cornell, tells what science has learned about heredity and environment; a chemist, Dr. Taylor of Princeton, tells of what drugs science has created for the prevention and cure of disease; a physiologist, Dr. Eddy of Columbia tells of the principles of diet and proper nutrition, and of such new discoveries as vitamins and insulin; a psychiatrist, Dr. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital in Washington, tells of the fitting of human beings into the complex and trying conditions of our artificial life of today; a bacteriologist, Dr. Winslow of Yale, reviews the fight to control communicable disease, and a former health official, Dr. Emerson of Columbia, summarizes how these experimental sciences improve the quality of our health, lengthen life and make it more secure

CONFESSIONS

Dr. Joseph Collins is the author of those popular books of essays, "The Doctor Looks at . . ." His latest is "The Doctor Looks at Love and Life," a frank discussion, among other things, of the perplexing question of sex. When I asked Dr. Collins what book he would rather have written than any other he replied:

"My dear Miss Butcher:

"I should like to have written 'The Life and Achievements of Don Quixote de la Mancha.' I should like even to have been the lantern-jawed, never deservedly-enough-extolled knight-errant to have had a servant like Sancho Panza, a mount like Rosinante, and a lady like Dulcinea del Toboso, on whom I might bestow the empire of my heart and who would give strength to my nerves and infuse vigor into my sinews.

Were I such a one, I should devote my leisure to reading the works of Francis Rabelais, M. D., and my labor to purging the world of piety, prejudice, pretense, and piffle.

Yours very truly,

Joseph Collins

Nelle R. Eberhart's Lyrics Are Now Out in Form of Book

"From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water," by Nelle Richmond Eberhart. [Vinal.]

For many years Mrs. Eberhart has been writing lyrics for music, much of it for Charles Wakefield Cadman's melodies. She was the librettist of "A Witch of Salem," for which he wrote the score and which was produced at the Metropolitan and has been added to the répertoire of the Chicago Civic Opera company. "At Dawning" has sold, as a song, over a million copies, and the title poem, with Mr. Cadman's music, is taught in the schools as an American folk song. For the first time Mrs. Eberhart's lyrics have been gathered into a book, disassociated from the melodies with which they belong. They were written as words for music to be sung, not as lyric poems which were later set to music. The author modestly hopes that they may serve a student of the art of libretto writing if they do not satisfy the poet. She gives a few important principles of song-poetry writing in an introduction.

Ecstasy Dominates Ludwig Book on Napoleon's Life

By Fanny Butcher.

"Napoleon," by Emil Ludwig. [Boni & Liveright.]

A massive and impressive life of Napoleon has just come from Germany through the translation of Eden and Cedar Paul. It was written by Emil Ludwig, a well known German biographical lyricist — if one might coin a phrase: nothing else can express the heights of ecstasy to which the author flies in his work. There are only two reasons for writing the biography of any man who has been written of so extensively as Napoleon—the discovery of new material and a passionate urge on the part of the author to present a historical figure in a new light. The latter is not too righteous a reason, it seems to me, but it is reason enough. It certainly served for Elie Faure's "Napoleon," one of the most ecstatic biographical opuses I can remember, and it certainly served Papini for his "Life of Christ." But that reason must be backed up by a tremendous power of expression, to make it valid enough. The Papini and Faure books would have been great pieces of literature whomever they were written about, and they will stand as such.

[Little known engraving of Napoleon drawn at Elba and dedicated to Comte Bertrand. It shows Napoleon dominated in his work by his star.]

Herr Ludwig does not seem to me to have the literary skill to make his passionate espousal of Napoleon a great work of literature. He is too passionate about his subject to see him with the dry light that Bacon said was ever the best. And his literary style is too much a matter of exclamation points to give his readers an idea that he is anything but passionate.

I am speaking of "Napoleon" purely as literature. It seems to me a book keyed too high, with blurring ecstasies attempted, yet not entirely brought off. It is difficult to explain what I mean, other than to say that when you have finished seven hundred pages of "Napoleon" you feel as if you had looked upon disconnected snapshots of a great life, not always in focus, but each one highly emotional. There is a connected narrative, of course, but it is a narrative of the less important events of the life, with the great moments of history given slight paragraphs. A page or so, and the battle of Waterloo is over. "In nine days he had lost the empire which he had fought nine years to win."

It is a narrative for those who know the obvious facts of the Napoleonic legend. At times the reader thinks it is written as a political exposition until he realizes that the politics is mazed in the military ecstasies. At another moment Napoleon's passion for an heir seems to dominate the whole book; his dream of a dynasty, a dream which did not die with him. There are moments when you think the author is drawing an ironic picture of the man who stepped over the dead body of democracy to a Roman empire, but you decide that he isn't, after all, being ironic at all.

As to the authenticity of the book, I am no Napoleon authority, but certainly the author sounds authentic and the authorities haven't as yet brought him to the tribunal. The facts are too easy of access to make it likely that any author who has spent the loving effort that has obviously been spent on this book would be inaccurate. It isn't any feeling of inadequacy about the book that the reader gets, but the feeling of breathlessness that too many exclamation points (either actually set down or inferred) always give.

The illustrations are from little known portraits and engravings of Napoleon, most of them from a German collection.

It is especially interesting, in reading "Napoleon" just now, to realize that there is in Chicago his personal copy of "Werther," one of his favorite books. It is a part of a remarkable exhibit at Walter Hill's bookshop. Herr Ludwig describes the meeting between Napoleon and Goethe. Napoleon said of him, "There is a man," the only time in his life he is known to have used those words of any one.

NAPOLEON VIOLETS

Immense numbers of this print of "Violets" were circulated in France during the days that Napoleon was living at Elba. He was known to be an ardent believer in destiny. When he left for Elba he predicted that he would return "au printemps." In consequence all of his partisans wore some badge of violet color and generally carried about them somewhere one of the violet prints. They were freely circulated without exciting the least suspicion. The friends of Napoleon recognized the adherents to their cause by asking: "Do you like the violet?" If the person answered "Oui" ("Yes") he was not a confederate. But if he answer "Eh bien" ("Well") he was acknowledged to be one of the party and they completed the sentence, "Elle reparaitra au Printemps" ("It will appear again in spring"). Herr Ludwig says nothing about this memorable incident.

Best Short Stories of Britain, Ireland Compiled by O'Brien

"The Best British Short Stories of 1926," edited by Edward J. O'Brien. [Dodd-Mead.]

Edward J. O'Brien, who for so many years has edited "The Best Short Stories of ——," has gone into the English and Irish field. His latest book contains valuations of the short story output of the British isles and Ireland and twenty-two stories in their entirety from the pens of such writers as Stella Benson, J. D. Beresford, Thomas Burke, A. E. Coppard, Walter de la Mare, Aldous Huxley, D. H. Lawrence, Eden Phillpotts, Hugh Walpole, Frances Brett Young, and Liam O'Flaherty. The book does for the British short story exactly what the American one does for our short story writers and their work.

"My Adventures in the Golden Age of Music," by Henry T. Fink. [Funk & Wagnalls.]

Henry T. Fink was the dean of music critics in New York when he died in October of this year. He knew more musicians and had seen more schools rise and fall than any living man. The final proofs of his autobiography were received just a few days before his death. He calls it "My Adventures in the Golden Age of Music," and it is a thorough and characteristic record of the things he saw, the music he heard, and the people he knew.

Writing Is Good, Subject Bad, in John Gunther Book

"The Red Pavilion," by John Gunther. [Harper's.]

I remember with perfect clarity the first criticism which James Weber Linn wrote on the first theme which I presented to him in an English course that I took with him—a criticism which I have never forgotten and which has seemed to me of the greatest keenness. He said: "Of course you can write. Your trouble is going to be to find something to write about."

JOHN GUNTHER.

That might be said of so many of the young novelists today that it comes back to my mind at least once a month. It came back most vividly the other day when I was reading "The Red Pavilion," by John Gunther (a young Chicagoan who probably took just such a course with Mr. Linn as I had, though obviously was not so frankly deterred from novel writing by the sudden realization that every one in the world was writing a novel who didn't have anything to write about).

"The Red Pavilion" is full of writing. It is all interesting, attractive, amusing, sophisticated writing. It is about everything on earth, with the usual gestures toward frankness and psychologizing that young writers all tend to—but when you have finished it you realize that Mr. Gunther really hasn't had anything to write about. It is a novel of Chicago, of a young group just out of college, of a girl and a boy married, separated, reunited and reseparated—by the psychological urge that because the wife left the husband the husband must, to be fulfilled, leave the wife. There is a girl in it who, after having "lost her innocence," tells all of her young men friends about it and is hurt because they aren't shocked. There is the girl who must live her own life and therefore goes to Paris to sculp. There is the young university professor who has pedicures and seduces a girl in his classes. There are assorted characters all well drawn. There are assorted incidents all more than usually well described. But the net result is—what? You know that Mr. Gunther can write, that he knows a large number of facts about a large number of things, but he has not drawn a picture of his times or of his group. In a word, he is a reporter, but not a novelist.

As a story of Chicago it is interesting to Chicagoans. Every place is mentioned by name and the names are not misspelled or juggled or translated into a pidgin English. When he talks of the Blackstone it is the Blackstone, and not "one of the great hotels on the lake front."

Gala Program Over the Radio Delights Elmer

Grand Opera Stars Among Many Features.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Radio continues in full splendor:

First, a notable twenty-nine station [United States and Canada] chain concert by three great artists, Giovanni Martinelli, tenor; Miss Lucrezia Bori, soprano, and Pablo Casals, cellist, from WJZ, New York through KYW and W-G-N, 8 to 9.

This concert was unusually warm and full of life, one wherein the voices harmonized unusually well, one in which the program was well arranged and with a surprise in it.

At this moment I am bubbling over with enthusiasm for Mr. Martinelli, who in the singing of his operatic arias created an atmosphere that was operatic.

Miss Bori's voice has limpid purity and beauty of tone, ease, coloratura flights that are charming. Her occasional dippings into the lower register reveal tones of gloriously luscious quality, seldom surpassed by any soprano.

Miss Bori flashed an interesting surprise element at 8:55 by singing Irving Berlin's "What Does It Matter?" which the composer had completed earlier in the day at Palm Beach, Fla., and which was telegraphed to New York for this performance.

Mr. Casals' playing seemingly was all of the beauty, tonally, and technically, that one might expect to find eminating from the finest cello in the world in the hands of the finest cellist.

I could not find much time for the Little Symphony of Chicago, George Dasch conducting, WLS, 8 to 9:30. My stayovers, however, were pleasant moments. The station's signal strength at this receiving set has been very weak recently.

The half hour recital by Charlotte Cowan, soprano, KYW, Edison studio, at 9 o'clock, gave further reasons for admiring this remarkably clear toned, high soprano voice. It is remarkable how likeable this voice is even in the most difficult and trying sustained high notes.

The broadcast of the last act of "Il Trovatore" by the Chicago Civic Opera company, through KYW, W-G-N, WMAQ and WEBH, Chicago, 10:05 to 10:45, and a chain of over twenty outside stations was a remarkable improvement over the broadcast of last week. The voice tones were blurred last week, although the orchestra was very clear and strong. Last evening the voices were as clear as the orchestra. The singers at all times were heard perfectly, even those at most distinct points on the stage, including the chorus back of the stage. As it stands now, this opera broadcast is an absolute success.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: A Tough Break

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Saturday, Jan. 29.) (Standard Time Throughout.)

The Fitzsimmons-Jeffries bout will be repeated as this week's "Old Time Prize Fight" over WLIB at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

"MARTHA" will be sung by the W-G-N vocal group in the period devoted to "Great Moments From Grand Opera" at 9 o'clock tonight over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. While the presentation of Flotow's masterwork will be given in tabloid form, none of the numbers that have made the opera famous will be lacking—the two glorious melodies sung by the farmers and their wives at the fair in the time of Queen Anne, "The Spinning Wheel" quartet, the "Good Night" quartet, the aria "Ah So Pure" of the heart broken Lionel, and the joyful climax. The artists tonight will be Olive June Lacey, soprano; Kathleen Ryan, contralto; Gilbert Ford and Frederick Wood, tenors; Bryce Talbot, baritone, and Mark Love, bass. The W-G-N orchestra will play the instrumental parts, Henry Selinger directing the performance.

Miss Leopoldine (Polly) Damrosch, the third daughter of Walter Damrosch and Charles Naegele, pianists, will be featured during the program of the New York Symphony orchestra tonight at 8 o'clock. The program as arranged by Walter Damrosch, director, will be in memory of the great French composer, Camille Saint-Saens, who died at Algiers in 1921.

WLIB PROGRAM

The bout at the Coney Island Sporting club in which James J. Jeffries won the world's heavyweight championship from Bob Fitzsimmons will be recreated as tonight's "Old Time Prize Fight" over WLIB at 7:30 o'clock. Quin Ryan, announcer, will describe the crowd at the ringside, give a word picture of the fighters, and tell a blow-by-blow story of the event as though it were just taking place. There was much color and drama in the historic pugilistic battle, and revival of the struggle in detail should prove one of the most interesting of this popular series.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON

Lamb Stew with Vegetables.

We used to hear a good deal about the "plain" cook. The idea probably was that in engaging a plain cook that poor cooking that was plain was, on the whole, much better than poor cooking that made an attempt to be high class, and in so far the idea was a good one. A plain boiled potato is more eatable than a miserable scallop of potato, but which of two poor stews is the worst—two varieties, I mean—it would be hard to say. The watery stew is poor and the meat unpalatable. The stew that is half a flour paste, but palely seasoned may be absolutely repulsive, and the meat in it no better than in the other sort.

Water dilutes flavors. In a stew it dilutes the flavors of the meat. Therefore, the nicer additions we can make in the way of seasonings the better, and we may have as much thickening for our stew as meat rolled in seasoned flour before it is seared may give, but we can spare the flour. In the business of searing the meat we have added flavor, both from meat juices cooked quickly, as in broiling, and by browning the flour mingled with them. Dumplings may have their place in a stew, but they add insult to injury when it is also thickened too much with flour. An opposite sort is this one:

One five ounce shoulder lamb chop, one small egg plant, two onions, a stalk or two of celery cut as fine as possible, salt to taste, a bit of home made curry powder, garlic to rub the pan, three tomatoes sliced or their equivalent in canned tomato, one cup of liquid—preferably a meat stock or part meat stock, seasoning fats, or just those for frying. Remove any skin from the fat edge of the chop and cut it into walnut sized pieces. Some of the fat may be used for the sautéing of the meat by cooking it first. The meat should be well seared in it, or in some fat, along with the onions.

Cut the egg plant in pieces the size of an egg and sauté them in a tablespoon of butter for about fifteen minutes. Rub one of the sauté pans with a clove of garlic, combine mixtures with tomatoes, etc.

Cook them about one-half hour together, if each has been well cooked in the first operations. Or, put into casserole and finish in the oven. Serve with a dish of boiled rice. There is no masking of anything in this if the work is well done.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Trifle Large.

Although I am over 21 and the oldest of a large family of children, I am bashful. We are looking for a new home where we will have more room. The other day I was out riding for the first time with a new boy friend and we passed a vacant apartment that looked especially large, and I said, "O, look, wouldn't that be a lovely flat for us?"

He turned to me and said, "Well, I'm willing, but don't you think that is a trifle large for a young couple?"

Was I embarrassed? Not much!

B. K.

Force of Habit.

My most embarrassing moment occurred in a grocery store. I am cashier in a bakery and one of my duties is to answer the telephone. One day I went to the grocery store and while waiting there their telephone rang and, forgetting that I was not in the bakery, I went and answered, giving the name of the bakery. You can imagine my embarrassment when I realized my mistake and turned around to see several people laughing at me.

I left without ordering my groceries.

Modern Women's Hygiene

Ends worries of old ways Discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

SHEER gowns and gay frocks, business and social exactments under the most trying of hygienic handicaps are a comfort women of today enjoy.

This because old hygienic ways are being widely supplanted by a new way called Kotex.

✓ Kotex discards as easily as tissue. Thus no laundry, no embarrassment of disposal.

It's 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads." Thus you wear lightest frocks; dance, motor, go for hours without a moment's doubt.

Deodorizes, too; thus ending all fear of offense. 8 in 10 better class women now employ this way. Doctors advise it. Nurses widely urge it. Obtain at any store without embarrassment simply by saying "KOTEX."

Try today and you'll never again risk the uncertainty of old ways. Box of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

CURBS JACKSON BLVD. PARKING UNTIL WIDENING

Parking restrictions were ordered on Jackson boulevard yesterday to afford traffic relief until that road can be widened with funds from a bond issue soon to be submitted by the west park board for approval to the legislature.

At the suggestion of E. B. Whitney of the west park safety commission, the board established the hours 7:30 to 9:30 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m. as the time when the boulevard shall be cleared of parked cars from Clinton street to Garfield park.

Specifications for the proposed widening will be completed next week, Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the board, announced.

MRS. CHAPLIN'S HOME GUARDED AFTER THREATS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28.—[United News.]—The home of Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin in Beverly Hills was under police guard tonight. Numerous threats against her life made since she filed suit for divorce against her husband, Charles Chaplin, motion picture star, caused the police to be summoned, it was explained by her attorneys.

Mrs. Chaplin's mail each day contains scores of threatening documents, sent from all sections of the country, the attorneys said. One, received today, was signed "The H. W. Gang," and had the word "death" written across it in red ink. It was dated "Yonkers, N. Y., Jan. 18."

FOR GREATER PUBLIC SERVICE

. . The Sad Case of the J. L. Browns . .

TAKE for instance the sad case of Mr. and Mrs. James Livingston Brown . . . (Brown, Thompson, Jobbers) . . . The old stock that Brown had long since forgotten had suddenly shown signs of life . . . Came the mail . . . Came a check . . . Not so much, but something . . . Enough for a few weeks in Florida perhaps, or California . . . Maybe Bermuda even . . . That was just the trouble . . . The Browns couldn't quite decide where to go, what to see, or how to get there . . . Eventually they did go . . . Somewhere South . . . But they did so much fretting about schedules and hotels and side trips and the like that a perfectly miserable time was had by all . . .

Alas! Had the Browns only taken the advice of their neighbors, the Arthur Smiths . . . all would have been well . . . The Smiths knew that the Resort Bureau of The Chicago Tribune Public Service Office was equipped, ready, anxious, to answer all questions on travel and resorts . . . Just telephone Superior 0100—or stop in and have a look-see for yourself.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Edward Moore Writes of Music and the Musicians

SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1927.  13

Starring Dulcie Jayne

By Virginia Tracy.

SYNOPSIS.

Ornella March, employed in the scenario department of Hertzog's motion picture studio at Fort Lee, learns with sorrow that Henry Horner, the head of the department, has been fired by Lyman Hertzog, son of the owner of the studio. Every one knows that Lyman is jealous of Henry because he is in love with Dulcie Jayne, the star of the studio, but Dulcie seems to prefer her director, Daniel K. Leland.

INSTALLMENT VII.

A PREMONITION.

The scenario department, once more taken into the confidence of its superiors, sat spell-bound, its composite eye rivalling the roundness of Mr. Horner's.

Mr. Horner himself, desirous of leaving his house in order, had been cleaning out his desk; at this moment he was stooping to a lower drawer. And he continued stooping.

Lyman's exasperation mounted. "Oh, papa, what's the use? You'll never learn to do things right! What did you buy jewelry for? How do I know she'd take it from me, even? A sweet show I'd be then!" His flesh crawled. "Punk jewelry, too! 'Cause do you think Leland wouldn't have given it to her himself if he'd thought it was worth giving her? Do you s'pose he don't know what's what with women? Leland's leavings, is that what I'm to give her?"

"All right, don't give it to her, Lyman." Mr. Hertzog sighed, and wiped disappointment from his forehead with a thick hand. "I didn't start, even, to buy it yet, till I saw if it pleased you."

Through Mr. Hertzog's voice there ran a tired wistfulness, but Lyman did not notice it. In the relief of finding that he was not committed to an inferred course of wooing he tactfully ignored the absurd idea of an apology to Italian by starting off again on some improvised errand. Then, perhaps because he had so seldom seen an actor leave a set without turning back at the door, at the door he turned back.

"Thanks for wanting to help me out, papa. But just try and realize you've left the village maypole across the big pond. And on this side, if you do make a play for a peach, it's with the little bright ones, not something looks like it came out of the Turkish bazaar on the board walk." His hand rattling the doorknob, he flung back suite affably, "Nor a gentleman don't make presents to a lady on the installment plan!"

He restored good humor his

I'll tell
I'll tell
I'll tell your girl good-by!
Her kisses come too high—— and down the hall.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

The scenario department basked in the sun, full fed, savoring the cream on its whiskers. When had so full a meal been thrown over the partition? Or that from what scenarists call "the hopeless love angle" it could feel not of sympathy with Lyman, for this lack alone kept the situation from being "human interest." In fact, if only it had contained one simple, smile-producing of pathos it would have passed from human interest to heart interest, the highest praise known to scenario reports. To be sure, there was Mr. Horner.

But Mr. Horner seemed to have worked a little out of the hopeless love class as he went on cleaning out his desk and arranging upon it a neat pile of things to take home. Looking particularly undimpled and business-like he made Miss Jacobs put out her card index—that jewel of the filing cabinet—and go over various items with him. He fairly hounded Phil Nathan, the office young man of the department, into working up to a too curt synopsis of a best seller. To Cornelia, who had suffered the tenderest agonies of embarrassment for the boy at every mention of Dulcie Jayne, he returned "Briar Rose" her last attempt at a scenario, with the indulgent authority of a grandfather, sitting by her some time to explain changes he had suggested in the script. His guileless small town idioms couldn't keep Cornelia's heart from giving a high, hard kick when she heard him saying that he did just hate to return "Briar Rose" back.

She thought it unlikely he hated it half so much as she did but she choked with both elation and disappointment to thank him for the help he had given her all along and he said, "O, that wasn't anything, only fun."

There isn't any such fun in the world as limbering up a good story into continuity. The story, of course, a person would be prepared for in a regular writer like you, Miss Marsh. But it was your treatment was more unusual, and deal, for a beginner in pictures. I wouldn't insult you, Miss Marsh, by repeating it with the hand-me-down, hard boiled stiff stuff I mostly have to do. As soon as I saw you had a feeling for a movement—there's hardly anybody has, you know—and could work in little touches without breaking the current, why, I never was so interested in anybody I had working with me. If only I could have worked with you, Miss Marsh! If only it had been the policy of the office to encourage home talent——"

A feature writer, appearing in the doorway, beckoned Mr. Horner. These two creatures were nominally members of the scenario department but had spheres of their own across the building and revolved independently in their own orbits. This one began talking to Mr. Horner about immediately procuring and scenarizing for Miss Jayne a novel that was sweeping the country, a novel called "Heart of Fire." And none of the readers noticed a quick, cool gust and a sort of rush over Mr. Hertzog's threshold.

The office was immediately filled with a young, throaty tide of sound, a speech with a kind of celestial huskiness—that is, if you like husky voices. In any case, a voice sometimes as feminine as a Persian kitten's, sometimes as rough as an Irish ragamuffin's. It caressed and quarreled, argued, rebutted, wheedled, charged headlong, one might almost say it made love and made hate, and all in a kind of rich fog, low and clinging, which rolled no details over the partition. But Cornelia had noticed that at the sound of it Miss Jacobs, looking quickly at Mr. Horner, looked as quickly away. While Mr. Horner looked at nobody.

Swift footsteps thrilled nervously up and down Mr. Hertzog's office, pointed heels clicked, light knuckles rapped on a hard desk, new phrases rushed quickly by in sudden changes of wind, perhaps because the speaker had passionately tossed her head, and every now and then Mr. Hertzog, too, got a word in.

GASOLINE ALLEY—WALT IS GETTING AN EDUCATION

Coue's Disciples Win Right to Heal in France

Timidity Specialist Given Court's Approval.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Although the French Academy of Medicine refuses to grant the Coue institute a financial subsidy and branded the famous "cheer doctor's" methods as unscientific, disciples of autosuggestion have an inalienable right to prescribe Coue formulas.

This was the decision of a Paris court today in the case of Prof. Jean Baptiste De Critaux, a Coue enthusiast, who built up a large practice in France, specializing entirely in treating cases of "timidity" by this methods. The medics charged this was interfering with their profession. The verdict held that timidity is not a disease and therefore Prof. De Critaux, though not a licensed physician, could not be prosecuted for practicing the medical profession.

According to the evidence, Prof. De Critaux's principal patients were men who stuttered and women who were treated against blushing, though many persons unsuccessful in life, such as salesmen and small clerks, sought a cure to enable them to overcome the inferiority complex.

The professor prescribed strict autosuggestion treatment, but instead of the daily repetition of "every day in every way I am getting better and better," Prof. De Critaux devised phosphorescent placards bearing an illuminated inscription, which the patients hung over the foot of their beds nightly, repeating the formulas so long as they remained awake or whenever aroused from sleep. The placards were numbered:

"I am calm. I am completely serene. I speak glibly. I am master of myself. My gaze dominates those I regard. Confidence in myself is growing. My mind is clear. I possess poise."

Prof. De Critaux cited 1,000 testimonials professing cures of timidity, including several young men who were enabled to cast off their fears and propose marriage; two lawyers, dreading court pleadings; numerous actresses cured of stage fright, and several public speakers.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

On Thursday a TRIBUNE story stated that a riot developed at the New Trier-Deerfield township high school basketball game because New Trier partisans were angry at being defeated and blamed the referee's decisions. The game was won by New Trier, and the trouble, according to the police at the scene, grew out of rowdy actions by the rooters of the Deerfield team, disappointed when their favorites were beaten.

THE TRIBUNE yesterday stated that August Scholz and Miss Lee Higgins were arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct after a raid at 936 Sunnyside avenue. H. Y. Smith, of Baird & Warner, real estate dealers, states that the raid did not occur at that address and that Miss Higgins was not a resident there.

A story in THE TRIBUNE recently stated that Abraham Elkins had filed suit for divorce against Mrs. Bessie Elkins, of 1641 West Roosevelt road. The address of Mrs. Elkins should have been 1810 West Washington boulevard.

Maurice Cullerton denies that he owns or operates a saloon at 26th street and California avenue and that he is a lieutenant of Joseph Saltis. Cullerton says he is in the real estate business and never met Saltis.

American Culture Is Enfolding the World, Says Vassar's Prexy

DR. HENRY N. MACCRACKEN.

American university culture is gradually spreading its influences over the whole world, an audience composed mostly of foreign born citizens was told at the Abraham Lincoln center yesterday by Dr. Henry N. MacCracken, president of Vassar college.

"The peoples of the old world who threw off outworn forms of government to establish democracies and republics were improved by our university culture," he asserted. "Of course, it was in large degree an unconscious influence. Those peoples were swayed without knowing it."

Dr. MacCracken held that the most powerful attraction of American education to the European is its practicality.

"We do not hold that keeping the classics alive is the sole function of education," he said. "We consider the student himself the important factor and try to equip him so he can get the most out of life."

18 Boys Nominated for Arctic Cruise

Out of 150 Chicago Sea Scouts who applied for the opportunity of accompanying the John Borden-Field museum expedition into the arctic in May, eighteen have been selected as prospects. On Monday the boys will present themselves to Dr. Erskine of the United State naval recruiting station for the same rigorous physical examination to which candidates for the navy submit. Those who pass the test will meet with Mr. Borden, who will select a crew of nine from among them.

Each of the eighteen boys was selected by Thomas J. Keane, national director of the Sea Scouts, who recommended them on their records as able sailors on Lake Michigan.

600 Pupils to Enter New Roosevelt High Monday

The central portion of the Roosevelt Senior High school, at Wilson and Kimball avenues will be opened on Monday morning with ceremonies arranged by a committee headed by Dr. Joseph C. Ross. Six hundred students from Hibbard High school will be transferred to the new building. The Roosevelt school will not be completed until April 1, when it will be filled to its capacity of 2,500 pupils. James T. Gaffney will be principal.

School Inquiry on Graduation Rows Dropped

Pupils' Parents Rebuked for Interference.

Disciplinary measures taken by the principals of Englewood and Harrison High schools to punish members of their mid-year graduating classes for alleged infractions of school rules will not be investigated by school officials, according to an announcement made yesterday from Supt. William McAndrew's office.

The statement rebuked parents of the pupils for their interference in the cases and its tone indicated that school officials approved the principals' action in attempting to maintain the morale of their classes despite the distractions of graduation time.

Frank L. Morse of Harrison, who was dissuaded from his intention to keep forty girls from the diploma presentation exercises by excited parents, is one of the principals whose action will not be investigated. The other is David M. Davidson of Englewood High school, who threatened to hold up the diplomas of three leaders in a snake dance which he had directed should not take place.

Pointing out that Chicago is taxed $43,000,000 a year for educational purposes, the statement from Supt. McAndrews's office declares it to be the duty of principals to assure the citizens value received.

"Unless classes are maintained according to schedule, the last part of the semester will produce only ragged work," it says. "Although there has been no attempt to curtail graduating ceremonies of high schools, the exercises must not be permitted to encroach on the business of study.

"Parents who take the side of the pupils in these rebellions are not good citizens and are fostering a spirit of anarchy."

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Miss Mary Medrick, 1000 South Trumbull avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Would you think it advisable for our judges to hold office for life, as they do in England?

Where Asked.

County building.

The Answers.

Earl Fleming, 2608 Augusta street, clerk—I wouldn't think it would be advisable, not in this country, the way things are going politically. It is best to try them out with a limited term. Most of our judges are all right, but with others it is a case of profitable politics.

Mrs. Dale Cooper, 1033 East 63d street, office manager—No, because, being sure of a life position, they are apt to become less conscientious in their work. Apparently from the very nature of our makeup, even judges need the stimulus of competition to keep them on their mettle, and abreast of the times.

N. C. Van Slooten, 2103 North Karlov avenue, deputy sheriff—Not for life. But they should be appointed by a body of men, not elected, and should retire at 65 or 70. Appointed, because judges should be independent. And at 70, a judge should have money enough saved to retire and give another man a chance.

Miss Helene Riehl, 1252 Albion avenue, switchboard operator—No. Every man who's in line should be given an opportunity for that high honor. If that office were denied them, the other branches of the legal profession would suffer. The more capable of the younger men would give up and enter the business world.

Frederick R. Wray, 240 North Central avenue, public accountant—I am in favor of that. It is my good fortune to have observed the work of judges in England, and to have observed the wonderful results over there. They can follow the law without fear of consequences, and with absolute freedom from political obligations.

Civic Opera's Friends Receive Their Reward at Gala Performance

BY MILDRED JAKLON.

The guarantors of the Chicago Civic Opera company were accorded gratitude and recognition at the gala performance in the Auditorium last night. The large group of citizens who have given their money and their energies that the wheels of that enormous and complicated organization that is Opera might be kept running were represented in the box circle, on the main floor, and in the balconies and galleries. Name plates were off the box curtains, and there were no hosts and guests.

Besides receiving thanks for their services, society folk learned that Nov. 3 is to be the date of next season's opening.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker, president of the Friends of Opera, the group that takes upon itself the sale of boxes and tickets, occupied one of the favored seats in the back of the diamend horseshoe with Samuel Insull, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., Miss Caroline Kirkland, and Mr. Meeker. She was wearing her regal tiara.

The clan of McCormick, which has been such a mainstay to the establishment and encouragement of opera, was well represented. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick was in her familiar seat in box 5, with Mrs. Jacob Baur, whose labors as chairman of the opera' box committee have been prodigious and successful; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair, Ballard Moore, and Edwin Krenn. Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick were with the Harrett Wendells, Miss Mabel Linn, and Harold F. McCormick. Cyrus Hall McCormick and Chauncey McCormick were with Mrs. Waller Borden, another who has lent unfailing enthusiasm and help, Miss Ellen Borden, and Mr. and Mrs. James B. Waller.

Another group of important opera supporters occupying one of the boxes included Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell. George W. Dixon, his daughter, Miss Marion Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Dixon, George W. Dixon Jr., and J. F. Trotz were in another box, the position of which indicated the significance of its occupants.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift (Claire Dux) and the Charles H. Morses were together, and Mrs. John J. Borland, Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Blair, and Mrs. Chauncey Keep composed another party. The Earl J. Warners, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward Seabury, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan were box mates, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis had with them their daughters, Miss Sarane and Miss Emily Otis. Arthur Farwell, and Ira Couch.

In the upper box row were Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Welles, Miss Eleanor Donnelley, and J. Sanford Otis, Mrs. Thomas R. Lyon with Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, Mrs. Harry F. Williams, and Mrs. James C. Ames.

Others in the box circle who are identified with opera promotion work included Mrs. Edward Hines, Mrs. Clair E. More, Mrs. Samuel Weis, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Mrs. Christian Paschen, Mrs. Nathan L. Blackman and her daughter, Miss Elaine Blackman, Mrs. H. J. Wahner, Mrs. Stanley Field, Colin Fyfe, Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mrs. Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, and the Donald Ryersons.

Hospital Today Shown Speedy Path to Health

Stay of Patient Halved, Presbyterian Report.

Medical science, like everything else, has been speeded up to meet the demands of modern life.

Proof of this statement is contained in the annual report of Asa S. Bacon, superintendent of the Presbyterian hospital, to the board of directors yesterday.

Twenty-five years ago, Mr. Bacon asserted, the average number of days each patient passed in the institution was twenty-seven. In 1926 the average stay was only twelve days.

In former times an operation for appendicitis meant three to four weeks in the hospital. Now it means ten to fourteen days. Kidney and gall bladder operations require two weeks' hospital care, against the old four weeks' minimum.

Mr. Bacon pointed out that most of the patients received at the Presbyterian hospital were in moderate circumstances and that the speeding up process had been of considerable economic advantage. Despite the speed, results are far better, he said. In the twenty-five year period mortality at the institution has been cut from 6 per cent to less than 3 per cent.

The report showed that the hospital, since its establishment in 1883, had cared for a total of 288,400 patients. The number in 1926 was 10,970, of whom 2,070 paid no fees and 5,150 paid only a part of the expense. Total cost of charity work, not including fees of medical staff, was $154,666.75.

Officers were elected for the coming year. Frank S. Shaw was made president; John W. Scott, vice president; James A. Patten, treasurer; William A. Douglass, secretary, and Alfred T. Carton, assistant secretary.

Szigeti Again Proves He Belongs in Front Rank of Violinists

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For the second time in a week Joseph Szigeti qualified yesterday afternoon for a position in the front rank of solo violinists. Each demonstration was made through the medium of a concerto of major dimensions, and each took place on the stage of Orchestra hall to the accompaniment of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Yesterday's appearance was in the course of the Beethoven program and Szigeti's contribution was the single concerto that Beethoven ever wrote for the violin. He gave it an admirable performance, one to stimulate the belief that he has immersed himself in all the Beethoven traditions ever evolved—that is, all that are worth while. Because of his knowledge of Beethoven, and quite as emphatically because of his knowledge of the violin, he holds a high place in the esteem of his fellow violinists, though one wonders just a bit whether the inherent coolness of his tone is not going to keep some of his nonprofessional hearers from sharing the opinions of the violinists.

Just the same, it was a great performance, one that had dimensions and color, manly dignity, and an unobtrusive personal note in the interpretation—in other words, Beethoven playing as it should be.

Mr. Stock's share in the program consisted of the Third "Leonore" Overture, mightiest of the Beethoven overtures, and the Sixth Symphony. This may not be the mightiest of the Beethoven symphonies, but it is the most ingratiating. Mr. Stock and the orchestra gave both the kind of performance that they are in the habit of giving when they are moved to special deeds of musical kindliness and good feeling.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Father Deserted Them.

"We are badly in need of clothing and so I am appealing to your readers for their discarded things. My father deserted us and my younger brother and I must support the family. There are three other girls, 12, 6 and 4 years of age, two boys, 8 and 16, and the twins, 2 years old. I wear size 16 and my mother wears 38 or 40. L. F."

When other girls of her age are thinking only of good times, this young girl must always bear in mind the responsibilities which have been thrust upon her. The clothing you are about to discard will help her a great deal.

Chicagoans Begin to Hear Call of Climes Where Cold Is Exile

BY NANCY R——

Trying to keep up with our fashionable world when it sets out on its winter junketing is something of a job for even the most agile minded person. Every warm and sunny corner of the earth puts in a bid for favor. Only one thing is certain—Chicago's damp pavements, gray skies, and chilling breezes win no popularity contest.

Mrs. Charles Edward Brown has changed her plans made earlier in the season. She was going direct to Aiken, S. C., but now she has decided to visit her mother, Mrs. J. G. Deshler, down in Florida, first, and then come back up to Aiken. Her sister, Mrs. Rensselaer Cox, is with Mrs. Deshler now.

Mr. Brown expects to join his wife a little later on and, while they have not definitely made up their minds where they're going, they're considering slipping off to see the spring in Spain. At any rate, they probably won't return to Chicago before the end of May, when they will go out to Lake Forest to the same house they leased there last year.

The Noble B. Judahs have changed their minds about going away at all. They, too, were on the bound for Aiken for, but now Col. Judah's devotion to the political campaign is keeping him here in town, and Mrs. Judah doesn't want to go without him.

Mrs. Clyde Carr, who has quite recovered from her unfortunate encounter with a motor car which knocked her down and broke her collarbone, is one of those whose winter itineraries includes a visit to La Jolla, Cal. The John Barnes, too, are headed for La Jolla—they were in town for a day or so this week at their apartment at 50 East Pearson street, on the way out to the west coast.

Day's News in Society

Miss Mabel Linn, president of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters, is to entertain at luncheon on Thursday next for Miss Katherine Ludington of New York City, vice president of the National League of Women Voters. Officers and directors of the local league are to be guests.

Mrs. Robert J. Dunham is to give a tea at her residence at 1521 State parkway on Monday for the entertainment committee of the Red, White, and Blue ball, which will take place at the Aragon ballroom on next Friday evening. Actors who are to perform at the ball are to be present at the tea.

Additional tickets for the Red, White, and Blue ball may be obtained from Mrs. Nelson T. Levings, Diversey 2728.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen of 1430 Astor street has forfeited the tickets she had reserved to go to Pasadena, Cal., next week because of her own illness the last week and sickness of other members of her family. She and Mrs. George Dean have taken a bungalow in Pasadena until spring. Mrs. Bowen's daughters, Mrs. William McCormick Blair of 1416 Astor street and Mrs. Louise Bowen Phelps of 20 East Astor street are going out next week to occupy the house, and Mrs. Bowen will go later on if circumstances are favorable.

Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair of 515 Briar place expect Mr. Blair's mother, Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair, to arrive the latter part of next week for about a month's stay here, visiting her children and friends. Mrs. Blair is now visiting her son-in-law, Henry B. Farr, in New York City. The junior Mrs. Blair plans to visit Mrs. Walter Borden, who is to occupy the James Deering place at Miami, Fla., for February, during the last fortnight of that month.

Mrs. H. A. Richards, wife of the British consul in Chicago, is to sail on March 19 on the S. S. Tuscania for an indefinite stay in England. Mr. and Mrs. Richards have been residing at the Seneca hotel.

Harry Lee Williams of 220 East Walton place, his daughter, Miss Carolyn Williams, and his niece, Miss Rowena Day of Clarksville, Tenn., sailed on Wednesday from San Francisco for a trip to Australia, and the South Sea islands. Mr. Williams' other daughter, Mrs. Melvin Brorby, and Mr. Brorby, have returned from their honeymoon at Pass Christian, Miss., and are staying temporarily in Mr. Williams' apartment until their own, at 70 East Walton place, is ready. They were married on New Year's day.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, Miss Elisabeth McCormick, and Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney are well known Chicago names on the list of those sailing on the S. S. France today for Europe. Mrs. Palmer is to visit her mother, Mrs. H. H. Kohlsaat, in Rome, and Miss McCormick is returning to her residence in Paris.

Mrs. Robert Stuart of 4850 Woodlawn avenue plans to go some time next month for a sojourn at her winter home at Pinehurst, N. C. It is probable that her granddaughters, Miss Jean and Miss Ellen Stuart, daughters of the John Stuarts of Hubbard Woods, will accompany her. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, who have been living at the Lake Shore Drive hotel during the winter, that they and their gay daughters might be nearer to the hub of the social wheel, have as yet made no plans for a winter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell of 1125 Lake Shore drive are to depart on Feb. 16 for a stay at La Jolla, Cal. They plan to remain away until May 1.

The Jacket Arrives for a Long Sojourn

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—With the jackets on please! This is the order we are giving constantly to the sartorial chef and said chef seems to have no disposition to thwart us.

For resort wear we offer today a three piece costume with the jacket as an integral part of its philosophy. It is made of navy taffeta and the jacket has touches of individuality that set it apart from most of its competitors. Observe the way that it nips the waist at the sides in order to promote that popular blouse effect! Observe also the shaping of the front and the lines of stitching repeated on the overskirt!

I mentioned last week the combination of navy and violet as being sponsored by some of the French designers. Here is another costume to bear out that alliance of tone. For the undersleeves and the narrow scarf collar knotted to fall beneath the jacket are of a fine embroidered organdy in this lovely violet tint. Violet also forms the crêpe de chine blouse complementing the costume.

Black crêpe de chine is brought into a great deal of prominence among the midseason afternoon gowns. Premet, in particular, makes much of this material and of it he has fashioned numerous models with a flounce which gives the effect of a tunic, a flounce that is likely to be draped at one side. This designer is partial also to a jabot treatment on both bodice and skirt.

This Business of Deception Offers Food for Thought

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Here's a little subject for argument in the home, friends, if you are in need of one, that is.

Resolved: That a wife is never deceived by her husband. She only lets him think he is deceiving her.

On sober second thought, maybe you had better not bring the subject up at all. That last night's alibi of John's may be too recent for painless argument.

Let's just consider it from a purely impersonal standpoint. Uncle Henry, one of my favorite humorists, advances among other reasons why women pretend they believe when they do nothing of the sort, the necessity of saving their own faces. If a wife shows her husband up, tearing holes in his story, there is nothing left for her to do but to leave him, he says. Self-respect demands that she leave his bed and board. The number of deceived wives in this generation are just as minus as there were in the beginning, Uncle Henry insists.

Which reminds me of a story about a wife whose husband went about bragging of the little woman's remarkable intuition. Some one approached her about it.

"Intuition nothing! He gives himself away before he opens his mouth," she said.

Having thus disposed of the argument about men as gay, but poor deceivers, how about women? Can any man rise up in meeting and swear on his oath he knows every time the little woman is leading him down a false trail? Can he read her thoughts like a book? Just like a book printed in a foreign language, yes!

Our gentler philosopher suggests a divine plan in man's inability to read what's going on in a woman's mind—the heavenly intent to spare him the knowledge of what she is actually thinking.

The more I think of this topic for argument the less I approve of it—for fear my sex might get the worst drubbing.

So, Resolved: If we couldn't fool ourselves, no matter which sex we belong to, and believe we are fooling others, we'd be face to face with a critter in the mirror we couldn't bear the sight of."

For we're all deceivers, more or less. We wouldn't be tolerated if every dark nook and cranny of the mind were searchingly explored. Isn't it the truth?

Lines of Footgear Make Foot Seem Large or Small

by Alice Hazeltine

A figure, we women know, can be lengthened, widened, shortened, narrowed by the lines of a frock. The shape of the face may be practically made over by a hair arrangement that hides or exposes a brow, as the case may need, by slanting a lock across the temple, by parting the hair in the middle or on the side, and so on. A neck may be improved by the substitution of a V line for a round or square one. And so on. From head to foot you may do yourself over if you don't like the job that was wished on you at birth.

This is particularly true of feet and the shoes you can buy today.

You cannot change the bone structure, but you can, with a study of line for your particular foot, appreciably reduce the looks of the extremely long narrow foot or the short fat one. And with feet, taking no second place in first glances these days, why not apply yourself to the study assiduously?

Ornate footwear, for instance, if it is ever good taste, is only good taste on a slender foot of average length. There was a time when the rule held that only black shoes should be worn when it was desirable to make feet inconspicuous. There are still women who practice the belief to the extent of wearing black shoes on every occasion. With light dresses the opposite effect really is obtained. Feet are far less conspicuous if shoes, stockings, and dress match. With a dark street costume, it is true, black shoes might be worn successfully, but on the same sized feet black shoes worn with a pink evening dress would make the feet more conspicuous than the dress.

Fancy shoes of the milder variety have proved a godsend to many women who mourned the too, too aristocratic length of their feet. A two color shoe, for instance, dark in front and light in back breaks up the foot length. Incidentally, shoe buckles set rather low on the slipper help reduce the length.

The too short vamp shoes are not advised for the long foot, since they add breadth. A reasonably short vamp, on the other hand, is helpful, as is also the slipper cut low on the sides. This latter type of shoe is not good for the short fat foot since it "bulges" it all out of proportion.

The short, broad footed one must work for a longer and slimmer appearance. The short round toe gives her foot an ugly stubbiness. A one shade slipper with a fairly long pointed vamp is best for this kind of foot. Embrcideries and decorations of any kind, and buckled, were better eschewed entirely.

WOMAN'S COMBINATION.

These days, when every piece of clothing counts, a combination like the one illustrated is a blessing. The deep inverted plait in the front gives the necessary fullness and otherwise there isn't a sign of fullness.

The pattern, 639, comes in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 1⅞ yards of 36 or 40 inch material.

Making Advertising History in the World's Greatest Market

In 1926, as in every year since the consolidation of the Herald and the Tribune, the New York Herald Tribune has set a new mark in advertising history. Below is a brief outline of the advertising achievements of the Herald Tribune in 1926.

Greatest Gain in New York in Total Advertising
Weekdays and Sundays

During 1926, the New York Herald Tribune carried 18,785,853 lines of advertising—2,260,029 lines more than in 1925. This gain brought the Herald Tribune from fourth place in total advertising in 1925, to second place in 1926, and represents the greatest gain made by any newspaper in the World's Greatest Market.

Greatest Gain in New York in National Advertising
Weekdays and Sundays

During 1926, the New York Herald Tribune carried 5,652,444 lines of national advertising. This represents a gain of 1,262,752 lines over 1925, and the greatest gain made by any newspaper in New York, morning or evening.

Led 7 Months out of 12 in National Advertising in the weekday morning field

Further, in March, 1926, the Herald Tribune took first place in volume of national advertising in morning newspapers on weekdays in New York, and held this position during the months of April, May, June, October, November and December—a total of seven months out of twelve.

The advertising record of the Herald Tribune in 1926 means just one thing—the recognition by local and national advertisers of the unusual responsiveness of the circulation of the Herald Tribune—the logical keystone for a successful advertising campaign in the World's Greatest Market.

BIG TEN PUTS CURB ON "RECRUITING"

M'TIGUE STOPS BERLENBACH IN FOURTH ROUND

MIKE, ONCE 'THE AWFUL,' FLOORS FOE FOUR TIMES

Beats Down German with Right Hand.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—Mickey McTigue, regarded as the worst prize fighter in the world until a few months ago, slaughtered Paul Berlenbach in the Garden ring this evening, beating him down in four rounds with right hand smashes that crunched against Berlenbach's chin and drove him daffy before the third round ended.

PAUL BERLENBACH

As Mickey scampered down the cast iron steps from his corner to shoulder his way through a crowd of customers in evening dress surging up to have a closer look at him, he parted his Galwegian face in a sunrise grin and remarked that he thought he would get into the heavyweight elimination championship. And if this is the actual Mickey McTigue, this reckless brawler who traded punches tonight with one of the most dangerous men of the ring and finally smacked him down, there's room for him among the heavyweights.

Paul Hurt in First Round.

Although Berlenbach lasted until the fourth round was almost over, Kid McPartland, the referee, said after the fight that one of McTigue's first punches, a straight right to the chin in the first round, was the one that finished Berlenbach and brought his dazzling career to a serious pause.

Berlenbach began the third round with a left swing to the head which Mike fended off by idly raising his right arm. As the blow slipped off, Mickey dropped his right to Paul's face. Berlenbach shuffled into a clinch, with his arms working convulsively as he tried to batter Mike's body. Mike deftly wrapped up Berlenbach's gloves and shoved him off. Berlenbach then landed the only damaging punch that he laid on Mike in the whole bout, a right to the jaw. Mike went back a stride but flashed back with two straight rights to the face that made Berlenbach, grope for the ropes.

As Paul retreated to a corner with his jaw dangling and his dark eyes filmy Mike pounced on him and his right fist crashed against Paul's chin three times. Mike let him slide out of the corner, but Berlenbach was slow and weary and McTigue caught him in the middle of the ring with another right, flush on the chin, that sent him tumbling backward. Berlenbach was so confused now that he got up without a count, but when Mike leaped at him again he went to one knee without being hit. McPartland probably should have ruled Berlenbach out then but he lost his head. At the count of four the bell rang and Berlenbach was hustled to his corner.

Berlenbach Drops Again.

As Paul pulled himself off his chair to start the fourth round, old Mike quickly stepped across the ring and met him with a left hook to the jaw that spun him down. Paul bounced up and Mike, becoming overeager for a moment, thrashed the air with wild rights that fell short. He was missing for the first time and, although Berlenbach retreated into a corner, he crowded his way past Mike into the open ring again. McTigue then steadied down to his work and dumped Berlenbach on the seat of his tights for a count of nine with a right to the face.

Mike shifted the attack now and a left to the pit of the body pulled Berlenbach down in a huddle for another count of nine. Berlenbach got up, but his head was heavy and his knees were rattling. And as Mickey McTigue, the notorious cottontail who once ran away from Mickey Walker, a welterweight, for twelve ghastly rounds, prepared to shake Berlenbach loose and pot him again, the customers began to yell "stop it." McPartland stepped in, now waved Mike aside and led Berlenbach away.

MEHLHORN AND LESAGE WIN IN TEXAS GOLF PLAY

Shoot 69 for a New Course Mark.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Bill Melhorn of Los Angeles and Joseph Lesage of San Antonio won the sixth annual Texas amateur-professional title here today with a 69, which lowered the Willow Springs course record by one stroke.

BILL MEHLHORN.

Walter Hagen of New York and Florida and Jack Speer of Houston were second when Hagen's 20 foot putt on the 18th green stopped two inches short of the cup for a 70. Two teams, Leonard B. Schmutte of the Shawnee club, Lima, O., paired with Frank Brokl, St. Paul, and Anthony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., paired with S. A. Shaw of San Antonio, tied for third place.

Five teams finished just outside the money with 72s. They were. Bobby Cruickshank, Purchase, N. Y., and Clyde Cunningham, Houston; Tom Kerrigan, Mount Vernon, N. Y., and Emil Mueller, San Antonio; Willard Hutchinson, Oklahoma City, and Clarence Nordhaus, San Antonio; Harry Symons, San Antonio, and Qasie Carleton, Houston, and Tommy Armour, Washington, D. C., and F. J. Kannatzer, San Antonio.

Most of the players regarded today's matches as a practice session for the $6,000 open championship of the state, which starts tomorrow morning.

Ames Wrestlers Throw Penn State Team, 24-3

Ames, Ia., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Iowa State college wrestlers easily won a dual meet with Pennsylvania State college, 24 to 3, tonight. The Iowa grapplers won three falls and three decisions.

Boss of Cubs Hears Flap of '27 Pennant

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mr. Joseph McCarthy, who manages the Cubs, is an optimist. He mixes with his optimism a little determination, a little confidence, and a fairly god sprinkling of cunning. Thus one can easily understand why he rolled into town yesterday, California bound, and calmly and politely informed the boys that the Cubs of 1927 certainly have nothing to worry about when it comes to a matter of a championship fight.

Mr. Joseph McCarthy did not win a pennant in so many words because he realized the scribes were in a weakened condition following several weeks of inhaling scandal laden atmosphere, but he did step right up with a statement that the coming season will see the team in pretty good shape all around and that he and his ought to be comfortably close to the top to say the least, when the last nickel is counted by the owners next October.

Nobody Sure of Job.

The most important utterance by the square jawed pilot was that nobody need feel sure of a job. Positions are open to any athletes good enough to win them, and by his drastice moves of last season, his first in the majors, you can figure that McCarthy means what he says.

Of the new men who will start work on Catalina island Feb. 23 McCarthy is most interested in Webb, an outfielder purchased from Louisville last season. Webb is a left handed hitter of parts and the Cub boss deplored the absence of just such a fellow last season. Another good thing about Webb is that he can throw with the best of them.

Team of Youngsters.

"All in all, we are in pretty fair shape," said McCarthy. "We are a lot stronger than a year ago, and we finished the season in fourth place. Of course, it all depends on how much the other top notch clubs have strengthened, but I don't believe they've been very lucky in that respect. We have fine pitching, good fielding and star catching, but we could use a little more hitting strength in the infield."

An unusual feature about the Cubs is that only two men are over the thirty year mark. The pitchers who carried the load last season and who are expected to star in the coming race all are twenty-seven years or under.

McCarthy, accompanied by Mrs. McCarthy, will leave tonight for Los Angeles, where they'll remain until Feb. 27, when the Cub squad arrives on its way to Catalina island. Although forty men can be carried, McCarthy has decided to go into camp with only about thirty-three.

COLLEGE SWIM CHAMPIONSHIPS AT U. OF IOWA

The national collegiate swimming championships will be held at the University of Iowa April 15 and 16, Fred H. Luehring, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, announced last night. Luehring is chairman of the swimming rules committee.

The championships will be conducted in Iowa's new $500,000 field house, which has a pool 150 feet long and 60 feet wide.

GOPHERS SINK MAROON SWIM TEAM, 40 TO 29

Minnesota Betters 2 Conference Records.

Minnesota defeated the University of Chicago, 40 to 29, in a Big Ten dual swimming meet at Bartlett gym last night. Of the eight events Chicago won only two, the fancy diving and the 300 yard medley relay race.

Conference records for the 150 yard back stroke and the 160 yard relay were bettered, but records are not accepted unless they are made in open conference meets.

Jim Hill of Minnesota swam the 150 yard back stroke in 1:47 3-10, beating the present mark by nearly two seconds. The Gophers won the 160 yard relay in 1:15 5-10. The conference mark is 1:18 3-10. Summaries:

160 YARD RELAY—Won by Minnesota. Time, 1:15 5-10.

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Purdy [M.]; Baumrucker [C.], second; Myrdal [C.], third. Time, 2:48 3-10.

40 YARD SWIM—Won by Sam Hill [M.]; Noyes [C.], second; Okerr [C.], third. Time, :19 3-10.

440 YARD SWIM—Won by Bjornberg [M.]; Steenson [M.], second; Greenberg [C.], third. Time, 1:47 8-10.

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Jim Hill [M.]; Okerr [C.], second; Spitzler [M.], third. Time, 1:47 8-10.

100 YARD SWIM—Won by Moody [M.]; Noyes [C.], second; Bennett [M.], third. Time, :55 6-10.

FANCY DIVING—Won by Wilder [C.]; Fellinger [C.], second; Barnacle [M.], third.

300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Chicago [Fellinger, Baumrucker and Rittenhouse].

GOPHER WRESTLERS WIN.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The veteran wrestling team of the University of Minnesota opened its Big Ten season by scoring a clean sweep over Chicago here tonight, for a final count of 23 to 0. The Gophers won six of their bouts on the time decisions and one on a fall.

13 DEER GROVE SKIERS QUALIFY FOR JUNIOR MEET

Thirteen skiers of Deer Grove yesterday qualified for the junior championship tournament to be conducted by the Forest Preserve club at Beverly Hills, Feb. 5.

Three of the 42 who competed in the trial round made jumps of 45 feet, the longest of the afternoon. They were Fred Westphal, Raymond Klingenberg and Gus Altenberg. The qualifiers follow:

Fred Westphal, Raymond Klingenberg, Gus Altenberg, Foxy Scharff, Ray Wichman, Ed Wichman, George Cada, Joe Cada, John Vondlosky, Thorkel Thorkelson, Herbert Walbaum, Carl Wessell, and Alf Trestik.

The qualifying rounds in which all of the local clubs are represented started last week.

I. A. C. Relay Team Beats C. A. A. by Half a Yard

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Eight great quarter milers staged the high-light of the Illinois Athletic club's tenth annual indoor handicap games at the Broadway armory last night, fighting a thrilling battle from the crack of the pistol to the tape. The I. A. C. quartet of G. T. Stevenson, F. Morgan Taylor, J. Stak and Harry Oestrich, won by half a yard from the Chicago Athletic association's team of John Cameron, H. M. Fitch, Alva Martin and Vernon Ascher.

HELEN FILKEY.

Cameron, running first got a lead of four yards on Stevenson. Taylor sprinted at the start of his lap and increased the lead but Fitch cut it down in the last two laps and left Martin about three yards back of Stak. The former Northwestern captain picked up his heels and flew and was even in two laps and in two more he handed over a four yard lead to the baldheaded Ascher. But the tabips turned again and Harry Oestrich, the two headed flier from Gustavus Adolphus college, caught up in two laps. For two laps they sped around the track, stride for stride, but in the final dash Oestrich hit the tape half a stride in front. The time was 3:32.

Ames Beats Notre Dame.

Iowa State, in the two mile college relay, soundly spanked Notre Dame for beating them last year by an inch. Rollin Bonnell lost three yards on the first half mile, but Quincy Thornburg picked that up and gave Ames five yards lead on the second, Lindus Caullum held that advantage and the last half was a farce with the veteran Ray Conger, out in front half smiling with a stubby little Notre Dame runner plodding along somewhere in the rear. Ames won by a quarter of a lap.

There was no team trophy in competition but in points won the I. A. C. was far out in front. Tri-color athletes placed in every event entered except the 600 yard run and rolled up a total of 71 points. The C. A. A. was second with 46 points and Michigan State college third.

Osborn High Point Man.

Helen Filkey sprinted home in front as usual in the 70 yard dash, running the distance in :08 3-5. Harold Osborn won the running high jump, the standing high jump, and was second in the standing broad jump, which easily made him high point man. Bert Francisco, the stocky, brown eyed flash from Mooseheart, won the high school 70 yard in :07 2-5, after only three weeks' training this year, and Mooseheart also won the high school medley relay, with Francisco, Chrystal, Scott, and Conner. Summaries:

Ty, Tris Keep Ears Open for Loudest Offer

The services of Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb, thrown on the open market by President Barnard of the Cleveland Indians and Frank Navin, president of the Detroit Tigers, were in demand yesterday in several quarters.

BOB QUINN.
[United Photo.]

Speaker and Cobb were cleansed of all connection with baseball scandal by Commissioner K. M. Landis Thursday morning, and immediately the presidents of the Cleveland and Detroit clubs wired their former managers that they were free to negotiate with any other American league club. Both Navin and Barnard agreed to transfer the contracts of the veterans without cost to the clubs which offered Ty and Tris the best propositions.

Red Sox Can't Use Them.

Philadelphia, St. Louis, New York, and Washington yesterday were reported to have made offers to Cobb and Speaker. President Bob Quinn of the Boston Red Sox stated that his team didn't want either of the veterans because "we are building up a team of youngsters and I do not believe that men who have been in baseball for 20 years would be more than a temporary aid."

This announcement by the Boston president, together with the fact that Cleveland and Detroit have placed the two men in the open with the right to make their own deals, has ended talk of trades between Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis and Boston involving Cobb and Speaker.

But St. Louis still is interested in making a deal with Cobb. President Phil Ball of the Browns telegraphed Cobb yesterday asking the former Tiger pilot if he would accept a proposition to join the St. Louis team as a player.

Speaker in Philadelphia.

Speaker arrived in Philadelphia yesterday morning and tonight will attend a dinner of the Veteran Athletic association. Tris is the guest of Eddie Collins, who now is attached to the Athletics' pay roll. It is expected that Tris will hold conferences with Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics and President Clark Griffith of the Washington club relative to a contract, but what action he will take is unknown.

Cobb definitely announced yesterday that he would remain in baseball. "Right now I don't know where I will play, but I'll be back in the big show," Ty said. "I want one more big year in baseball before I quit."

Business Manager Ed Barrow of the Yankees said yesterday that the New York team was ready to take either or both Cobb and Speaker, but definite offers wouldn't be made until after Manager Miller Huggins had been consulted. Barrow hinted that the Yanks would try to get Speaker's signature to a contract rather than Cobb's.

Cards' Troubles Mount; 2 More Refuse to Sign

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Two more St. Louis Cardinal players have received their contracts for 1927 and after a week's consideration have neither signed nor returned them, it was learned today. They are Tommy Thevenow of Madison, Ind., shortstop, and Lester Bell of Harrisburg, Pa., third baseman.

Both Thevenow and Bell, over the long distance telephone today, declined to discuss their contracts, but they denied they were holdouts. They said they wanted more time for consideration.

Three Cardinal pitchers — Alexander, Haines and Rhem—have so far refused to sign contracts and have demanded salary increases.

BARS GIFTS AND SCHOLARSHIPS FOR ATHLETES

Fraternities, Alumni Held Accountable.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Scholarships, loans, and remission of tuition should not be awarded by universities on a basis of athletic skill, and unofficial granting of financial aid to athletes by individuals, organizations, or alumni, whose primary object in granting aid in any particular case is the subsidy of an athlete is unethical.

PROF. O. F. LONG.

This was the principal recommendation made yesterday at the meeting of presidents, faculty representatives, directors of athletics, football coaches, and alumni of western conference universities at the Hotel Sherman. The recommendation practically covers all angles of recruiting athletes, and any one connected with an institution who is found guilty of breaking any clause will be summarily dealt with by the president of the university involved.

In order to put more teeth into the recommendation, the athletes will be compelled to sign a sworn statement to the effect they have not violated a single phase of the recommendation. This blank form will be printed soon as possible, and every athlete who is now competing must sign it. The athletes already have signed a form regarding their amateur status.

Checks Tuition Remittance.

The recommendation was the outgrowth of certain universities remitting tuition fees to worthy athletes. It was also brought about by the fact that certain athletes are known to have had their way through college paid by clubs, fraternities, or other organizations. In some cases they have made loans from individuals and these have never been repaid.

The other recommendations adopted to cover recruiting are:

1. All directors and coaches should not by initiation of correspondence or by the distribution of literature or interviews seek athletes. It is legitimate in speech or in response to inquiries or casual conversation to point out what they believe to be advantages of the universities they represent. Moreover, they should exert their influence to discourage questionable recruiting by alumni and students.

2. Alumni and students, whether as clubs, fraternities, or informal groups, or individuals, should not only follow the rule of conduct as set forth in the original recommendation, but they should do all in their power to prevent its violation by others. They should vigorously oppose all unreasonable and unfair rushing of prospective athletes which deprive students of a free choice of a university. They should recognize that resort to questionable recruiting methods is a manifestation of disloyalty and poor sportsmanship.

3. General or field secretaries of alumni associations and similar officers should be particularly careful to refrain from improper recruiting activities.

4. Prospective athletes should not be promised employment in or by the athletic departments. After matriculation they may be employed to do certain work and paid a regular and reasonable scale, and shall be required to give full return in service.

Hit at Student Migration.

The conference faculty committee was instructed to print and distribute copies of these recommendations. The Big Ten committee was also requested to pass legislation to enforce the spirit of these recommendations, and that they be requested particularly to such enforcement as will affect faculty members, alumni, students, and all organizations engaged in practices as may be regarded as unwholesome.

The group moved that the conference go on record as not favoring excessive migration of students as may be harmful to students' personal or academic success on the part of the undergraduate body during the football season.

The program of the day's session was drawn by Profs. Paige of Minnesota, Moran of Purdue, and Long of Northwestern. It consisted of the following points:

1. Desirability and feasibility of intra conference football games.
2. Desirability and feasibility for adopting rotating football schedules.
3. Desirability and feasibility of advising conference committee make football schedules with advice of the directors.
4. Desirability and feasibility on staging simultaneous football games.
5. Recruiting and proselyting.

The last point took up most of the discussion and its salient features printed above. No action was taken on the first point, but it was decided that the matter of schedules be left as handled by the conference at present. Regarding the second point, it was moved that the conference committee and Maj. John L. Griffith, the athletic commissioner, make further study of rotating schedules and report back to the conference at any of its future meetings.

The group expressed satisfaction over the four year football schedule already announced, but moved that the conference committee make a further study in the hopes of improving the next batch of games to be arranged. The four year slate as announced will stand. No action was taken on simultaneous football games.

The group also went on record as favoring anything resulting in a greater participation in intercollegiate athletics. There was a note of harmony throughout the meeting and all agreed a great good has been accomplished. Athletics were discussed from every angle, but the recruiting of athletes came in for most discussion, and the group feels certain it has cleared up one of the bad phases of intercollegiate athletics, something which has been a bone of contention since the conference was organized.

Those present at the meeting were:

Northwestern—President Walter Dill Scott, Prof. O. F. Long, Robert W. Campbell, K. L. Wilson, and Fred Custon.

Minnesota—President L. D. Coffman, Prof. James Paige, Fred B. Snyder, Fred Luehring, Dr. C. W. Spears, and George Belden.

Wisconsin—President Glen Frank, Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, George Little, Glen Thistlethwaite, and Charles Byron.

Iowa—President Walter A. Jessup, Prof. Louis Pelzer, Director Belting, Burty Ingwersen, and Rush Butler.

Illinois—Acting President Kendric Babcock, Prof. G. A. Goodenough, Carl Lundgren, Robert Zuppke, M. J. Trees, and Ralph Chapman.

Chicago—President Max Mason, Prof. F. C. Woodward, Harold Swift, A. A. Stagg, and Scott Bond.

Michigan—President Clarence C. Little, Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, James O. Murfin, Fielding H. Yost, Tad Weiman, and Emory Thomason.

Purdue—President E. C. Elliott, H. W. Marshall, Prof. Thomas F. Moran, Nelson Kellogg, and James Phelan.

Indiana—President W. L. Bryan, Prof. W. J. Moenkhaus, O. L. Wildermuth, Corn Claycamp, H. O. Page, and Oliver F. Lindsey.

Ohio State—Prof. Thomas E. French, H. S. Aitkinson, L. W. St. John, Dr. John W. Wilce, and J. L. Morrill.

SPEARS WEIGHS —N. U. OFFER; WILL DECIDE SOON

Whether Northwestern will have Dr. C. W. Spears of Minnesota for a football coach in the fall will be known in a few days. After conferences of two days between Dr. Spears and K. L. Wilson, director of athletics of the Purple institution, terms of a contract were submitted to the Gopher coach, who is now considering them.

Dr. Spears can have the job by signing on the dotted line, but he has asked a few days to give the matter thorough consideration.

It is understood that powerful influnces at Minnesota are urging Dr. Spears to retain his position as head coach of the Gophers.

5 STATE CHAMPS WILL PLAY HERE

Everything to an opera singer centers down to protection of the voice that stands to reason. So when it comes to smoking, I am very careful. Hence, I always ask for a Lucky, not merely because of its ever so rich flavor, but because of its extreme gentleness to my throat. This cigarette, I call my friend for, as a good friend should, it gives me rein to indulge my whims—even as to smoking without imposing a price.

Leon Rothier

The Noted Voice of Rothier

is Safeguarded by Smoking Lucky Strike —Because "It's Toasted"

THIS favorite of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York City, Leon Rothier, like other men whose voices are their fortunes, seeks two merits in a cigarette—greater enjoyment and throat protection.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill audiences, as they have with the millions, because, first, they afford greater enjoyment, and, second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged, perfectly blended, give them their richer flavor.

But in addition, a costly extra process—toasting for 45 minutes—develops the hidden flavors the choicest tobaccos and at the same time removes all "bite" and harshness.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

LOYOLA GRAD WINS CARNEGIE AWARD AS HERO

Edward McGurn Loftus, 28 years old, son of Mrs. Mary L. Loftus, 6575 Glenwood avenue, a former Loyola academy football star, has been awarded the Carnegie medal and $1,000 by the Carnegie Foundation at Pittsburgh in recognition of his outstanding heroism June 10, 1922, when he rescued four persons from drowning at the foot of North Shore avenue and Lake Michigan.

Loftus, who now lives at 55 West 11th street, New York City, and is employed as an advertising salesman, was swimming in the lake when a sudden undertow carried several bathers out beyond their depth.

Loftus swam to the assistance of two, and while struggling shoreward with two frantic people in his grasp he spoke words of encouragement to a third, enabling him to keep up the struggle. He later returned to the water and rescued a fourth swimmer.

HAWKS BATTLE ST. PATS HOCKEY TEAM TONIGHT

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28.—[Special]—The Chicago Blackhawks are here to engage the St. Pats in contest tonight. The setback the team received in Pittsburgh Thursday night was more than offset by the return to the game of Mickey MacKay. The fleet wing man, who scored one goal and assisted Cully Wilson to register the other, was in wonderful form and participated in nearly every attacking play made by the Hawks.

George Hay and Eddie Rodden are expected to report for action at Detroit next Tuesday. These two star forwards will add the needed strength to Pete Muldoon's tribe, and will place them in prime condition for the Hawks' final drive to hold or better their present position in the American division of the National Hockey league race.

Used cars sold quickly through TRIBUNE WANT ADS!

THE superior buying power of Tribune readers makes the Tribune Want Ad Section the logical market in which to sell used automobiles. The experiences of the advertisers pictured here are typical of the hundreds who have testified to successful results in this field.

Mrs. O. Newman, 1545 N. Irving Avenue, advertised her car for sale in a Tribune Want Ad Sunday. It was sold Monday.

Mrs. J. W. Austin, 11319 Hermosa Avenue, sold her Ford quickly and had many calls after the sale.

If you have a car, or anything else, for sale, remember that Tribune Want Ads have the vital power to produce fertile inquiries. Sell with one today!

Letters in the $1,000 Want Ad Contest are being judged now.

Superior 0100—Adtaker!

"The Tribune ads are certainly the thing they stand for, service. I put an ad in the Sunday paper to sell my car, and I made the sale Monday. I surely appreciate the success I had."

MRS. O. NEWMAN, 1545 North Irving Avenue.

"We phoned an ad for our Ford, stating plainly what we wished to sell and asking a fair price for it. We sold the car early the next day for the advertised price, and had many other calls after the sale. The Tribune gave us splendid service, and the buyer received good value for his money."

MOON MULLINS—THE INVESTOR'S GUIDE

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: The first Western tennis tournament for women was held at the Kenwood Country club (bounded by Drexel, Ellis, 48th, and 49th) the last week in September, 1895. Among the "cub" reporters who covered the event were "Harve" then a student at U. of C., I think, and Tommy Chollar, now an advertising man in New York.

The thermometer registered over 95 in the shade the whole week. We girls wore heavy white duck skirts, ankle length and then some, measuring from five to seven yards around the bottom, tight corsets, full length huge sleeves, three inch tall stiff collars, and straw sailor hats, anchored with numerous hat pins.

Some days we had to play three matches but the Gardners (J. P.) were wonderfully good to us, opening their lovely Greenwood avenue home for luncheons and rest whenever we could snatch a respite.

The Faulkner girls, Georgene and Ann, Carrie Neely (I wonder if she is still playing), and dear Grace Cloes were among the players. The Neel and Wrenn boys, Harry Waidner, John Neely, John Ryerson, Sam Chase, and other masculine tennis high-lights were on the side lines.

The newspaper illustrations in the clippings in my scrapbook would certainly make you laugh.

Grandma, the Long-Forgotten Winner.

After the Chicago mayoralty election of March 2d, 1858, bettors who lost wagers upon the result were required, for the first time so far as known, to saw wood upon the public square as a penalty.

Henry Greenebaum thus lost to G. F. Laverenz. Mr. Greenebaum thereupon sawed wood in the square, beginning at 10 a. m. In the same way Mr. Weihe lost to Mr. Lochbeller, and his punishment was about the same. An admiring crowd viewed the proceedings. F. R.

Cobb and Speaker.

Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker have been restored to good standing in baseball by Commissioner Landis. This action was anticipated following the postponed "showdown" meeting with Ban Johnson. It will meet the wishes of a majority of fans who were with the players on the evidence adduced.

The whole affair was unfortunate. Perhaps, under the circumstances, it could not have been handled any other way. Cobb and Speaker are not retained by the clubs for which they formerly played. The reasons advanced are plausible and logical. Probably they will play elsewhere to take advantage of their vindication. The Wake regretted the necessity for so much publicity.

Maroon Basket Honors.

Friend Harve: Just an addition to your recent list of Big Ten basket honors. Chicago from 1907 to 1910 had a fine run of victories. In 1908, the Maroons won sixteen major collegiate victories, winning an extra game at Wisconsin 18 to 16 for the conference title, then winning two straight, 21 to 18 and 16 to 15, at Philadelphia from Pennsylvania's eastern champions. This gave a clean-cut national title. The Chicago winners included John Schommer, Bill Georgen, Pony Falls, Art Hoffman, and Pat Page. Indiana Maroon.

Paging An Old Song.

Dear Wake: Fifty years ago I sang to my children a song, called "Song of All Songs," whose words I have forgotten and wonder if any Helpers can help me. It began "As you walked through the town on a fine summer day, the title of my song you have seen, I dare say. On the fences and railing wherever you go, you will see the billboards stuck in a row. There was Annie Laurie and The Jockey and His Father. We were boys and girls, etc." Hannah Simon.

Maroons Open Big Ten Track Season Tonight

University of Chicago track athletes open the Western conference season in a dual meet with Indiana at Bartlett gymnasium tonight.

Indiana will bring some star performers to oppose the Maroons, its chief strength being in the dashes and hurdles. These are the events in which Chicago is particularly weak.

Pepper, sprinter, is one of the outstanding athletes on the Indiana team, and he will receive strong support from Stephenson in the 440 yard dash, and from Alexander in the mile. Benzel has been stepping over the hurdles in fine form, but he is certain to get rugged competition from Capt. Bert McKinney of the Midway squad.

Chicago's star is Anton Burg, high jumper and pole vaulter. Burg, who leaped 6 feet 7 inches for second place in the National Intercollegiate last spring, is almost certain to win first place in the high jump.

The finals of the second meet of the series held annually for Cook county high schools will be sandwiched in between the varsity events. The points counted in each of the three meets will be totaled to determine the winner. Hyde Park came out first in the previous meet, Senn second, and Tilden third.

PLAY INDIANA FIVE

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—University of Chicago will invade Bloomington tomorrow night for the first basketball game with the Hoosiers in two years. Indiana has been taking things rather easy this week, due to final examinations, but since Wednesday the players have kept practice going daily at top speed.

Tomorrow night's game will be the last for Jack Winston, tall Indiana back guard.

Indiana's swimming team, with two conference victories to its credit, left tonight for Ann Arbor to tackle Michigan tomorrow night.

150 SWIMMERS IN K. OF C. MEET CARDED TONIGHT

Nearly 150 of the best swimmers in the city will compete in the first annual invitational swimming meet of the West Side Knights of Columbus Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street, at 7:30 tonight.

The two day individual bowling tourney of the west side will also start today at the club.

CENTRAL "Y" WINS.

Central Y. M. C. A. Day High school won from the Luther institute five, 19 to 15, yesterday on the Y floor. It was Central's fifth straight victory.

Chicago gets its first look at

The magnificent new

ROYAL EIGHT

by Chandler

THE nearest thing on earth to riding on a fleecy, fluffy cloud across a sunny sky is a ride in the new Chandler Royal Eight. It is that smooth; that quiet; and swifter than the very wind!

Its great purring motor delivers 80 horsepower at 3000 revolutions—and at a speed of 75 miles an hour and better you feel you are traveling only half that fast. Inwardly, outwardly, artistically, mechanically, it is beyond any scintilla of doubt one of the finest automobiles that has ever been built. See it at the Show, together with the New 1927 Chandler Sixes.

Brisk competition among shippers, speculators and small packers caused an upturn of 10@25c in yesterday's early hog market, but part of the gain was lost late due to indifferent buying by larger packers who stayed out of the trade until after the noon hour. Several hundred 150 lb shippers sold early at $12.60, being 25c above previous top thus far this year.

The general average moved up 15c at $12.35, against $12.05 a week ago and $12.75 a year ago, when the average gained 35c. Packers bought mixed butcher hogs late largely at $12.15@ 12.20. Traders are expecting around $8,000 next Monday.

Light Beef Supplies Needed.

Although finished beef steers held a strong position throughout the week, the need of light supplies to avert a serious downturn in medium grades was indicated on recent sessions. Fair quality steers moved slowly yesterday and 25@ 35c under the week's high point.

Quality, as usual on Friday, was lacking and best steers available averaged 1,420 lbs. at $11.50, with $10.75 the next highest price. Cows and heifers showed little change, but moved extremely slowly. Calves were scarce and in demand at the week's $1 gain, selected vealers bringing $15.00. Stockers and feeders sold weak.

Lambs Bring $13.50.

Fat lambs advanced to the highest point of the year in yesterday's active trading, local packers purchasing freely at 10@15c gain, with spots up 25c. Extreme top reached $13.50, one load to Yard traders at this figure, with packers paying upwards to $12.35. The bulk of good to choice light and handy killing lambs brought $12.75@13.25. Aged sheep were in demand at the highest price since last May, choice light ewes going to packers at $8.25. Feeding lambs firm. Fat lambs are mostly 75c above a week earlier. Aged sheep show mostly 50c gain for the week.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 8,000 hogs and 1,000 sheep, against 188 cattle, 7,305 hogs and 995 sheep the previous Saturday, and 230 cattle, 3,706 hogs and 5,078 sheep a year ago.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Failure of the market to hold the early weak in wheat created a feeling that should Liverpool cables come higher there would be a response in Chicago and Winnipeg. The way that both wheat and corn run into selling on bulges tends to create a more cautious feeling about buying when prices move up, and the constant absorption of offerings on breaks has made the average operator go more slowly in selling.

A point was made by a number of close observers that the technical situation in cash wheat, corn, and rye has weakened the position of bulls for the time being, and as there has been considerable pyramiding on the long side of wheat and rye, there is more buying needed than has developed of late to carry prices higher.

Since the movement of corn from the country has increased and the cash demand from consumers has not kept pace with increased receipts, many traders have unloaded in the last few days, and the short interest said to have been decreased. Original bulls are still sticking to their lines and believe that within the next thirty days bearish influences will have been discounted and the country movement will be over. After that time they expect the market will be in a better position for a sustained upturn.

"The hand to mouth policy of buying wheat by European importers has resulted in a temporary strong cash position," says P. Griffin. "The tremendous discount of Liverpool May wheat under the cash article indicates confidence in the availability of abundant supplies shortly. It is never wise entirely to ignore the immediate or cash position, but these trading markets reflect the future and not the present, and from that viewpoint we continue to feel that the ultimate prices will be lower. Temporary bulges and erratic markets are likely to continue for another ten days, but eventually the excess of supply above the demand will control. Conditions in corn continue bearish. Rye is the only grain in which the bullish position is well founded."

A cable from Germany said: "We hear on good authority that monthly statistics show reduction in stocks of rye in farmers' hands with part of German stocks about exhausted."

DU PONT REPORT MORE PROOF OF 1926 PROSPERITY

Evidence of the high rate of prosperity which was enjoyed generally by industry in 1926 is given in the annual report of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., which was issued last night.

The volume of the company's business for the year was 14 per cent greater than in 1925 and from operations the income totaled $14,503,724, compared with $13,413,193, an increase of $1,390,-601. From investments income of $28,-511,847 accrued to the company, compared with $11,965,228, an increase of $16,546,609. Net profit after all taxes, charges and debenture dividends totaled $37,199,164, equal to $13.98 a share on the no par common stock outstanding.

During the year the stock was split on a basis of two shares of no par common for each $100 par then outstanding and on the basis of the new no par stock the total net profits of $19,928,626 of 1925 were equal to $7.49 a share.

Net income before the payment of debenture dividends totaled $41,969,574 against $24,033,957 in 1925. This item includes approximately $2,000,000, representing interest on a refund allowed by the government from overpaid income taxes. It also includes $6,654,145 in extra dividends received from the General Motors corporation, of which it is a principal stockholder and paid last January but does not include extra disbursements of $7,984,976 declared by General Motors, payable Jan. 4 of this year. The total amount of dividends received from General Motors during the year was $23,621,946.

The Balance Sheet.

Total current assets, as of Dec. 31, amounted to $73,834,552, which included $17,207,023 cash and $18,364,816 in marketable securities and call loans; whereas, total current liabilities amounted to $14,534,540, being 20 per cent of current assets or a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of 5 to 1. Total investments of the company, which represent its holdings of General Motors stock, securities of controlled companies not consolidated, and miscellaneous securities, are carried at an aggregate of $145,459,122. Total gross assets of the company amount to $322,583,674.00.

Another good showing was made by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad which issued its preliminary report for the year. The statement shows net income after charges and taxes was $11,515,881, equal to $10.67 a share on the common stock, compared with $6,-966,132 net, or $4.54 a share, earned on the common in the last previous year. A comparison of gross operating revenue and net income for December and the year follows:

For December—	1926.	1925.
Gross oper rev.	$11,673,194	$11,274,144

WHEELING & LAKE ERIE COUP NIPS SHORT TRADERS

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The panicky retreat of an overcrowded short interest in the common stock of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad, which soared 11¼ points to 65 and then lost slightly more than half its gain, overshadowed all other developments in today's stock market.

The general list disclosed considerable irregularity, most of the standard industrials and rails showing rather narrow changes on the day. Trading was comparatively light in volume. Credit conditions continued relatively easy. While there may have been some speculative disappointment at the failure of the New York federal reserve directors to decrease the rediscount rate yesterday, the maintenance of the 4 per cent charge caused no surprise in conservative banking quarters.

Fear of Corner Starts Fireworks.

The pyrotechnics in Wheeling and Lake Erie resulted from an unexpected demand for delivery of stock certificates by brokers who had been accumulating the stock in the last few weeks. This aroused fears of a corner in many quarters, causing urgent short covering in some issues and hasty liquidation in others, but as more stock became available for loaning purposes the Wheeling situation righted itself without any unpleasant circumstances for the time being, other than the huge losses believed to have been sustained by trapped shorts.

The stock closed at 59, a net gain of 5 points. At 65 earlier, a new record high, was 35½ points above the 1927 low. The preferred also touched a new top at 65 and eased to 63.

Rubber Shows Strength.

Rubber shares showed a temporary outburst of strength on buying influenced by the belief that with huge inventory losses of last year written off and prospects favorable for increased sales in 1927, the industry was likely to be one of the few to show gains in earnings this year.

Ajax touched 11¾, the highest price in months. Motors and equipment showed temporary outbursts of strength, but failed to maintain their gains. Steels held firm. Oils were quiet, but fairly steady. Aside from the Wheeling and Lake Erie issues, one of the most interesting movements in the railroad list was a 3 point drop in Southern Railway which sold as low as 119.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Establishment of another new high record since 1920 by Spanish pesetas, at 15.69 cents, featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady at $4.84 11-16 and French francs just below 3.94 cents.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY FRANK RIDGWAY

NEW WRINKLE ON PICKLE PATCH INSURANCE.

Garden crop disease experts of the federal government's staff of scientists in recent studies have demonstrated that the disease known as cucumber mosaic is carried over winter in the seed or roots of the wild cucumber, milkweed, wild ground cherry, pokeweed and catnip. Cucumber mosaic is prevalent in practically all cucumber growing sections of the central and eastern states and finding a way of holding this disease in check means much to gardeners.

Below are recommendations of federal man who took that the disease can be largely controlled by following these methods:

1. Plant the cucumbers in fields away from the farm buildings and vegetable garden.

2. Have the cucumber patch surrounded with cultivated crops if possible.

3. Kill by spraying the insects that carry the cucumber mosaic disease.

4. Kill by cultivation and pulling the weeds that carry the disease over winter.

5. Free the cucumber patch and the adjacent land for 50 to 75 yards in every direction of all the weeds that carry cucumber mosaic.

Scientists find it best to dig out the plants of milk weed, wild cucumber, wild ground cherry, and catnip if they are not too abundant. The plants eventually die if the shoots are pulled as fast as they appear. Cutting pokeweeds into the large rots and covering the cut surface with salt will kill the plants. Clean cultivation keeps down the host plant in the cucumber patch.

Eradication methods are given in bulletin 1461-D, published by the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

COTTON UP $1 PER BALE

Cotton prices closed at around the highest of the day with gains of 20@24 points in the most active markets and 16@21 points in futures in Chicago. Spots gained 10 points and closed with New York 13.70c; New Orleans, 13.40c, and Houston, 13.25c. Liverpool was stronger and closed 7@8 points higher with spot sales 12,000 bales.

Trade sentiment and statistics were mixed, with a good investment and trade buying on breaks and profit taking on the bulges. Hedge sales are fair sized and well absorbed and in Chicago execution of orders is more rapid, with trading confined.

Spinners' takings for the week were 418,000 bales, against 354,000 bales the previous week and 349,000 bales last year.

The most important news of the day was the announcement of the department of agriculture recommending a reduction of 30 per cent in cotton acreage in the United States this season to give the greatest gross value to the coming crop. It adds that unless acreage is greatly reduced or the season unfavorable the prospect is for a large supply for another year. European stocks of cotton are 1,000,000 bales more than last year, and spinners have taken 1,000,000 bales more than last year. Prices in leading markets follow:

TRADE REVIEWS OF WEEK

Marshall Field & Co. in its weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade say: "Current wholesale distribution of dry goods failed to reach either last week's volume or that of the same week a year ago. Road sales were slightly less than last week's total and did not reach the figure recorded for the corresponding week last year. There were fewer customers in market than in 1926. Collections were better."

Armour & Co. in its review of general packing house trade conditions says: "Packing house lines in general showed fair to good demand during the week just past, with the exception of one principal item. Lamb and veal continued to show good demand with advancing prices, due to light live stock receipts. Smoked meats tonnage was satisfactory for this time of year and prices showed a slight improvement. There was a fair movement of beef during the last week, with prices on a steady basis. Live cattle receipts were light, prices steady. Demand for fresh pork products continued quiet and at lower price levels. Collections were generally good, with a few exceptions, particularly in the south."

FINANCIAL NOTE?

FitzSimons and Connell Dredge and Dock company reports for 1926 a net income of $219,730 after depreciation, federal taxes and all other charges, equal after preferred dividends to $4.26 a share earned on the 50,000 shares of $20 par common stock. This compares with a net income of $272,768, or $5.32 a share, earned on the common stock in 1925.

Announcement is made by the Hyatt roller bearing division of the General Motors corporation of the placing of an order by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad for 120 Hyatt roller bearing equipped cars of the most modern type. The journal boxes will be of the Melcher-Hyatt type furnished by the Railway Motors corporation.

Allied Chemical and Dye corporation has bought a large tract of land at Hopewell, near Richmond, Va., on which it is planned to erect a $5,000,000 plant.

Negotiations have been practically completed by the interests identified with Waldorf System, Inc., and the First National Stores, Inc., for the sale of the chain of Ginter restaurants by First National to Waldorf.

LEECH DRAWS A LESSON AGAINST PINKS FROM 1926

BY HARPER LEECH.

Now that the year-end estimates of industrial production in 1926 are giving way to actual totals with the publication of the December figures to complete the year's picture, it may be appropriate to point out a slighted lesson of the great production records of 1923, 1925, and 1926.

At the close of the war we found that under forced draft methods we had attained a high rate of production, despite the absence of millions of men in the army and the imposition of an officious and resented bureaucracy.

Throughout the western world the forces of the intellectually bankrupt and emotionally socialistic "liberalism," which had been forcing all nations into an increasing degree of state socialism before the war, were quick to point out the fact that under a wartime régime, which in some respects approximated their ideals of regimentation, a high rate of production had been attained.

It is not a very logical or consistent stand for them to take. It was perfectly evident that the results had been achieved under the spur of a motive which temporarily supplied the place of the individual incentive for profit—namely nationalism and the human frailty for combat. The groups who acclaimed the economic achievements of capitalistic countires at war were the same persons who abhorred the idea of nationalism and combat, military or commercial.

However, these groups were not looking for logic. They were seeking vindication and also salve for their wounded self esteem. The war had shattered all their older playhouses, destroyed their elaborate systems of political and economic philosophy. They began to pour out a flood of books and pamphlets, articles and speeches. The magnum opus of this array was Wells' "Outline or History."

But the "Outline" was only one incident in the literary eruption. Attempt was made at political and social action. A whole flock of new organizations, federations, councils, fellowships, leagues, circles and forums were spawned. They carried different names, they professed different objectives—economic, pacifist, anti-militarist and what not. They professed to represent varied groups of the people—farmer, labor, women, youth, the churches and every other grouping which might contribute prestige to a "front."

But really the yearnings were all the same, as is revealed by an examination of the interlocking personnel and their records. Everywhere it was proclaimed that capitalist economy had broken down or would breed new wars and collapse.

It was said that post-war production had shifted to luxuries, that necessities must be produced in state owned key industries and all that sort of thing. It was of course sought to make the predictions come true by as much political and psychological sabotage of business and industry as possible.

The failure of the effort is written in the ton, gallon, pound, yard and bushel figures of 1923, 1925 and 1926. After the collapse of 1921 when the wastes and inflation of the war time productivity were revealed, normal business began a recovery which soon resulted in profit inspired productivity, eclipsing the peak records of the war episode.

SELLING CHICAGO! STUDEBAKER'S GIGANTIC USED CAR SHOW!!

Shrewd buyers from all over Chicago are taking advantage of this event—the greatest used car clearance of the year. Actually, few believe automobiles as attractive and fine performing as ours can be sold so cheaply until they personally inspect the cars themselves.

Never was there such a great variety from which to choose, and never were our prices so low.

Every car purchased is protected by the Studebaker National Used Car Pledge that guarantees honest representation and 5 days' driving trial.

HUDSON COACH.
This car looks good and runs good. Has had little mileage and it has been refinished in attractive color. The mechanical parts seem unused and the tires are in dandy shape. Equipped with radiator shutter, trunk, bumpers, spare tire, other extras. Reduced for clearance to $545.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN.
1926 Standard Six that is a beauty. Refinished a combination of gray and black, with striping to harmonize. The mechanical condition could not be improved and the tires are practically unused. The blue mohair upholstery is luxurious and some of the extras are Lorraine spotlight, bumpers, spare tire. Easily worth more than our price of $715.

FLINT SEDAN.
We say unhesitatingly, few cars rival this popular late model Flint in beautiful appearance. The finish is a navy blue with white striping. The equipment includes 4 wheel brakes, heater, 5 dandy balloon tires, bumper and bumperettes etc. The mechanical parts are the highest and the price the lowest—$785

HUPMOBILE CLUB SEDAN.
By refinishing this Hupmobile a Commander brown this sedan was given the appearance of a new car. Mechanical condition could hardly be improved, and the tires are good. Extras are trunk, spotlight, spare tire, etc. Will sell quickly at $585.

ESSEX COACH.
A very late model, painted an attractive black with Cherokee striping. Has 5 balloon tires, shutter front, bumpers, trunk, windshield cleaner, sharp. An unusual buy at this value. Easy terms. $445.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN.
You'll find this car a desirable one in every particular. Refinished in fine style, mechanical condition, and it presents a pleasing appearance. There's a number of extras and the price has been set unusually low—$295.

STUDEBAKER TOURING.
This late model has been refinished a deep blue and black, the mechanical condition is unusually good, and the tires are in fine shape. A certified car, reduced to $375.

JEWETT SEDAN.
Attractive finish; upholstery has not a mark. Has complete equipment: spotlight, bumpers, spare tire, heater, snubbers, trunk, and stop plates; engine in good condition. Worth much more than $445.

NASH TOURING.
The excellent California top possessed by this Nash gives the motorist open or closed car convenience. Mechanically a good buy. Appearance is good looking. Extras are bumpers, heater, slip covers, combination spotlight and trunk rack, etc. Marked down for this sale to $395.
